JUSTICE AGENT DEPARTS WITH CAMPBELL GUN

Baker Case Weapon Is on Way to Inspection by Chicago Expert.

CAPTIVE'S ATTORNEY GOES ON WITH PLANS

SOUDER LABORATORY VISITED BY OFFICERS

Method by Which Firearm Was Identified Shown in Detail.

Herbert M. Campbell's pistol, which experts say, fired the shots which killed Mary E. Baker, is on the way to Chicago, Ill., where it will be examined by Maj. Calvin Goddard, famed ballistics expert.

J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, last night detailed one of his agents to take the weapon to Maj. Goddard, who is director of the Scientific Crime Detection Laboratory of Northwestern University.

This move by authorities will not affect the decision of Campbell's attorney, Charles H. Smith, to institute habeas corpus proceedings in an attempt to free his client from the Arlington County Jail, where he is held on a charge of murdering the Navy Department clerk.

Fight for Liberty to Go On.

Mr. Smith last night said that he would not await Maj. Goddard's verdict, but would continue with his plans for a habeas corpus writ. The attorney feels that he has given the authorities ample time to investigate Campbell's alibi and the fight for his client's freedom will likely open tomorrow or Friday.

Application for the writ will likely be made before a court in a county other than Arlington. Mr. Smith expressed his intention of asking the writ in some court which "is not affected by the hysteria caused by Campbell's arrest." Whether the writ will be returnable in Arlington County is not known.

Mr. Smith added that he is not interested in what Maj. Goddard will say after examination of the gun. He disputes the reputed infallibility of ballistics testimony. Mr. Smith has been unable to find, after a diligent search, any record in the State of Virginia where ballistics testimony was accepted at a trial.

Conference Precedes Decision.

Lieut. Edward J. Kelly, Inspector William S. Shelby, Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth, and Maj. Henry G. Pratt held a prolonged conference early yesterday in the District Building regarding the wisdom of sending the gun to Maj. Goddard. All the District authorities agreed that Dr. Wilmer Souder, of the Bureau of Standards, was equally as proficient as Maj. Goddard in small arms identification.

Maj. Pratt and his aids consider Dr. Souder's identification of the pistol as that which fired the death shots as the final decision in the case. The initiative in sending the gun to Maj. Goddard was taken by Mr. Gloth, who believes that, in justice to Campbell and in view of his insistence that there must be some mistake in the examination, other authorities should be consulted.

Mr. Gloth talked with Maj. Goddard over the telephone early yesterday and the expert agreed to make an examination of the gun. It will probably be placed in his hands late today and the examination started tomorrow. No report is expected from him until Saturday. In addition to the gun the slugs taken from the girl's body will also be submitted.

Inspector Shelby, Lieut. Kelly, Mr. Gloth, a Department of Justice agent

Calvin Coolidge

Says: The European cartel for maintaining an arbitrary price for steel has been abandoned. The plan failed. Some years ago our Government was trying to fix a price for silver. More recently the British were trying to control rubber. In Brazil it was coffee, in Cuba sugar, and in Canada the wheat market. Our producers tried to hold the price of copper and the Farm Board went into wheat and cotton.

None of these efforts has been a success. It is not possible to repeal the law of supply and demand, of cause and effect, or of action and reaction. Value is a matter of opinion. An act of Congress has small jurisdiction over what men think.

When the consumer buys a product it goes out of the market and disappears. When private or public agents buy to fix an arbitrary price the product is still in the market, every consumer knows it and waits for the resale. The price can be held only as a local or temporary expedient which usually makes matters worse. But because all of us are bigger than some of us, not even the United States Treasury is powerful enough to put an arbitrary price on the great world staples with any permanent success.

BOMB STORIES LIES, M'DONALD TESTIFIES

ODD HEARING DRAMATIC

San Francisco, July 29 (A.P.).—John MacDonald, 58-year-old Baltimore waiter, today told the California Supreme Court he lied in 1916 when he testified Thomas Mooney and Warren K. Billings were to blame for the bomb explosion which killed 10 and wounded 40 participants in a Preparedness Day parade here.

MacDonald was brought from Baltimore by persons interested in freeing Mooney and Billings, serving life terms in San Quentin and Folsom prisons for the bombing. Billings had previously been convicted of a felony.

Under California law a person twice convicted can not petition the governor for a pardon without a recommendation from the State Supreme Court. Such a recommendation recently was denied Billings.

As a result Gov. C. C. Young announced he would pardon neither Billings nor Mooney, saying evidence before the court and before the advisory pardon board indicated both were guilty.

Then came MacDonald.

Bent and gray and walking with a cane, the little waiter, whose testimony played such an important part in the trials, came out of the past "to ease his conscience" and sat before a tribunal unprecedented in California. Never before had the State Supreme Court sat unofficially to hear evidence in a felony case.

MacDonald sat surrounded by the justices and lawyers, the latter repre-

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover paused yesterday in announcing the creation of a new fact-finding commission to defend the practice and promise that he would name other such groups.

His new commission was set up to determine a more stable basis for unemployment relief. It will be composed of representatives of labor, industries, research organizations and the Government and will revise existing methods of collecting unemployment statistics and "establish the method of cooperation between Government departments and business."

In defending the policy of creating such groups, the President presented statistics to show that the seventeen he had set up in as many months fell below the average named by Chief Executives since President Roosevelt took over the post.

President Harding with 44 commissions for his 29 months in the White House, and President Taft with 63 for his 48 months ranked next in the number of commissions appointed. President Roosevelt created 107 commissions, President Coolidge 118 and President Wilson 160.

"As we need the best brains of the country to assist in government and in coordination of public efforts," Mr. Hoover said, "I shall appoint others (commissions). The willingness of our people of specialized knowledge to give such voluntary service as this requires is one of the most gratifying qualities of citizenship."

The new committee is composed of representatives of the American Federation of Labor, of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the Manufacturers Association, industrial conference board, railway employes and other local organizations, National Bureau of Economic Research, committee on economic changes and other economic agencies.

William M. Steuart, Director of the Census; Ethelbert Stewart, Commissioner of Labor Statistics, and a representative of the Agriculture Department will serve as ex officio members of the committee.

In a statement announcing the step, Mr. Hoover said the need for "more systematic information," on unemployment has been generally indorsed by business and labor organizations for many years. Congress, he added, took a step in the right di-

Soucek Escapes In Midair Crash

Fails to Clear Plane in Leap, Parachute Opening 200 Feet of Ground.

San Diego, Calif., July 29 (A.P.).—Lieut. Apollo Soucek, Navy pilot, escaped spectacularly from a wrecked, falling bombing plane here today.

The officer's plane collided with a scouting plane 3,000 feet up. He jumped with his parachute. His shirt caught on a projection of his plane and he fell with it to nearly 200 feet from the ground, when he extricated himself and his parachute opened enough to break his landing. His only injury was a sprained back.

Ensign C. H. DuBorg, pilot of the scout plane, continued to North Island air station with his plane, which was only slightly damaged.

CHARGES OF CONVICT LABOR UNCONFIRMED

RUSSIA TO BE TREATED AS OTHER COUNTRIES

Votes of Congress Members Recalled as Protests on Goods Are Filed.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

What was described as the two-man war of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lowman and Matthew Woll against Soviet Russia was definitely checked yesterday, figuratively just this side of Moscow.

In so far as Mr. Lowman was concerned, a bedeviled retreat was in progress, not unlike that of Napoleon in the early Nineteenth Century.

From such boisterous statements as that attributed to him Monday, that a general ban on Russian importations was contemplated, the Assistant Secretary had dropped to a repudiation of this statement in the first place, and in the second to admissions that there was no definite evidence that pulpwood now being held in port in this country came from the hands of convict labor.

The fact that the day's discussions turned simply on this one commodity was evidence in itself of how the belligerency had been taken out of the war, the most amazing spectacle that Washington, used to most anything, has seen for many days.

Government Policy Cited.

It was learned on very high authority that the administration has no intention of attacking Russia's form of government through the tariff act; that, in fact, it has no intention of applying the act against that country any differently than against any other country.

The tariff on Russian matches was boosted 50 per cent by presidential proclamation, it was explained, by this same authority, under antidumping provisions of the tariff act.

Two shiploads of pulpwood are being held in American ports on protests that convict labor had to do with it and some 30 more carloads en route may also be held up until the protests are disposed of. This is apparently the extent of the matter.

As to the apparent sweep of Mr. Lowman and Mr. Woll across the front pages the past few days to bar manganese and lumber, the administration does not seem to take it seriously.

The unofficial explanation was that the incident could be largely attributed to the heat.

It appears to have been the tariff

REDS BURN MISSIONS AND LOOT CHINA CITY

SHIPS SAVE AMERICANS

Shanghai, (Wednesday) July 30 (A.P.).—The British North China Daily News today says all foreign missions at Changsha, Hunan Province capital, were destroyed by Communists who overran the city yesterday.

Shanghai, July 29 (A.P.).—Overrun by a Communist horde, the rich City of Changsha, capital of Hunan Province, today was systematically sacked and burned by the invaders while foreign warships removed their nationals to safety.

Striking the Nationalist garrison, weakened by transfer of troops to the northern civil war fronts, the Communists easily overcame opposition and poured into the walled city. An orgy of killing and pillaging followed, said foreign wireless reports from the city.

The raid was described here as the most serious Red incursion yet executed within China. Influential Chinese reiterated their belief it was instigated in the Third Internationale at Moscow.

They said unless the Nanking government is able to halt the civil war that has been ravaging the country for months and turn attention to Communist activity the Red threat is destined soon to become more grave.

After taking aboard missionaries and foreigners desiring to leave, the

Two Firemen Injured as Blaze Sweeps Hub Company Plant.

Other Pair Rescued from Death When Trapped by Flames.

Two firemen narrowly escaped with their lives and two others were slightly injured in a five-alarm blaze that destroyed approximately $130,000 worth of furniture at the Hub Furniture Co. warehouse at North Capitol and M streets late yesterday.

Nearly every piece of apparatus in the city was required to check the flames, witnessed by fully 10,000 persons. Traffic was jammed for blocks and police reserves from three precincts were needed to control crowds attracted by pillars of dense smoke and flames leaping 40 to 50 feet in the air.

Horrified spectators on the North Capitol street side of the block-long two-story structure saw two firemen snatched from the alternative death in the roaring inferno or a 50-foot leap to the ground. The men, whose names could not be learned, rushed to a window when flames trapped them on the top floor of the structure. There was no ladder at the window. For an instant they stood silhouetted against a mass of flames, then a ladder was quickly raised and the two descended, with flames billowing around them.

Elmer F. Stein and Isaac Kepler, both of Engine Company No. 14, were cut about the face and hands when a window burst from heat pressure inside. They stayed on the job after receiving first-aid treatment at nearby Sibley Hospital. Patients of the hospital were rolled into the street to witness the excitement.

Firemen were handicapped by low water pressure and the fact that the brick building had only a few small windows on the third floor, where the blaze originated, supposedly from internal combustion.

Fanned by a strong draft the fire swept from the L street corner to the M street front, and the intense heat made it impossible for firemen to fight the flames except from the outside.

The sheet metal roof crumpled under the heat like tinfoil, but it was not until the entire upper floor was ablaze that firemen could play streams from the top.

The newer section of the building, which covers most of the block, was

PRATT ORDERS LIST OF SUSPECTED DENS

Precinct Heads Must Report At Once; Active Vice Crusade Seen.

LONG ROLL IS INDICATED

A complete report of all suspected vice dens in the District has been demanded from precinct commanders by Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police.

The report, which is to be submitted to the major and superintendent tomorrow, is regarded as the preliminary step in a concerted District-wide drive against vice of all kinds.

"Send in report by August 1," said an order issued to precinct commanders yesterday by Maj. Pratt, "giving the location of all suspected bootleggers, speakeasies, gambling places and prostitutes in your precincts."

When questioned regarding the possible import of the order, Maj. Pratt yesterday expressed keen surprise that the document should have become known to The Post, and declined to discuss the matter.

"If I can't issue an order without having to explain it to The Post," he remarked with some asperity, "it's time for me to shut up shop. I will not discuss the affair at all."

Others in position to know, however, declared that the information was to be turned over to Sergt. J. R. Leach, who succeeded Lieut. Oscar J. Letterman as head of the vice squad recently, and that Sergt. Leach would be given definite instructions to remove each of the suspected places or else exonerate them, if they were found above suspicion.

Particular attention was called to insertion of the word "suspected" in the order, this being taken to imply that the report to be presented by each precinct to Maj. Pratt must give no possible offender the benefit of any doubt.

"If a place is under the slightest suspicion," said one police official, "it will be up to the tenant or proprietor to prove his innocence."

It was explained that there will be no disposition to violate the restrictions governing raids, from the standpoint of evidence upon which raids may be made, but that intensive ef-

R-100 MAKING GOOD SPEED ON MONTREAL HOP

Huge British Dirigible Soars Over Atlantic at 50-Knot Clip.

IRISH WEST COAST 473 MILES BEHIND

RIVALRY WITH GRAF SPURS EXPERT CREW

Continual Radio Messages Keep World Informed of Ship's Progress.

London (Wednesday), July 30 (A.P.).—The dirigible R-100 reported her position at midnight, Greenwich Meridian time (7 p. m. Eastern standard time) to the air ministry as 53.05 latitude north and 21.00 longitude west, which is approximately 473 miles west of Ireland.

The big airship radioed that the sky was overcast and the wind had slightly decreased. Visibility was good.

The master of the steamship Montclare radioed the Asociated Press that he had been in communication with the R-100 at 11:33 p. m., Greenwich time, Tuesday (6:33 p. m. Eastern standard time).

The dirigible reported that she was making a speed of 50 knots and all was well on board.

Since leaving her mooring mast at Cardington at 3:45 a. m. yesterday the pride of Britain's dirigibles has described an arc over northern Ireland. Quitting the English coast of Liverpool, she passed over the Isle of Man and through the mull of Kintyre, the narrow channel separating Ulster and Scotland.

Radio Gives Position.

Thence flying over Rathlin Island, she circled above Malin Head, Ulster, and headed southwesterly along the general line of the ship lane from Glasgow to Quebec. At 4:18 p. m. the Valentia wireless station, Ireland, received a radio giving her position as 205 miles west of Lain Head.

On board the big airship, her messages said, passengers and crew had settled down to the normal routine of airship life, which they will pursue, barring accidents, until they arrive late tomorrow or early Friday morning at St. Hubert Airport, Montreal.

"Nothing of interest to report. Every one now settled down to normal routine, nebulous clouds 1,800 feet and good visibility. Flying at 2,100 feet. Position 200 miles west of the west coast of Ireland."

Periodic broadcasts from her well-equipped wireless sets to the air ministry kept Great Britain informed of the first day's progress. She was constantly in communication with ships and picked up frequent weather reports.

As she headed toward the open sea the winds facing her unexpectedly shifted, and from having been favorable when she started, became adverse. This change produced a deviation in her intended course. Instead of heading north from the Irish Sea to the Hebrides, the airship cut much closer to northern Ulster.

Follows Great Circle.

Meteorological data picked up from passing ships proved to be of great value in determining her course. In general her route remains that of the great circle across the Atlantic. Squadron Leader R. S. Booth, her commander, probably will keep to his preferred course, heading to a point south of Cape Farewell, Greenland, then crossing Labrador and following the St. Lawrence River to Montreal.

However, the choice has been left entirely to his discretion and will depend on weather conditions.

Apart from adverse winds, the R-100 met fair weather. A few rainy patches, with squalls blowing from

Presence of Simmons In Hospital Revealed

Senator, Exhausted by Tariff Fight, and Wife Under Doctors' Care.

Senator Furnifold M. Simmons, of North Carolina, dean of the Senate, last night was reported resting comfortably in the Washington Sanitarium, where he has been under treatment during the last three weeks in a condition exhausted by the rigors of recent tariff activities.

His presence in the hospital was not learned until yesterday, when it became known also that Mrs. Simmons had been under the care of physicians in the sanitarium for almost six weeks, suffering also from poor health.

Senator Simmons was admitted to the sanitarium at about the time of the opening of the special session of the Senate to consider the London Naval Treaty, and while he was in attendance there during its discussion for a short time at intervals, he spent the bulk of his time in the sanitarium. Leaving Mrs. Simmons here, the senator made a hurried trip to his home in New Bern, N. C., and returned Saturday. Except for an hour spent in his office at the Capitol on Monday and yesterday, he has been in the sanitarium continuously since returning.

Senator Simmons, as Democratic leader of the Senate finance committee, played a foremost part in the recent debate on the tariff bill, and his arduous labors were believed to have exhausted him. In addition to this strenuous activity he made a vigorous and unsuccessful fight recently to win the Democratic nomination for the Senate, losing to Josiah William Bailey, Raleigh attorney. The question of Senator Simmons' anti-Smith battle was a vital issue. While the senator avoided any active campaigning and speaking in North Carolina, he made various trips there for conferences.

Mrs. Simmons said last night that the senator also was suffering from an eye and head ailment which has been chronic during the last several years. She said that both were improving and were under the care of Dr. D. H. Kress.

Senator Simmons, who entered the Senate on March 4, 1901, became the oldest member in continuous service upon the recent death of Senator Francis E. Warren, of Wyoming. He has had a notable career, having held the post of chairman of the Senate finance committee from 1913 to 1919.

Capital Edison Candidate Goes to Final Examination

Frederick Roop to Vie With 48 Other Youths for Scholarship.

Washington's candidate as the successor to Thomas Alva Edison, young Frederick Crouch Roop, left yesterday for West Orange, N. J., where he will compete tomorrow against 48 boys representing each of the 48 States, in examination to determine which will receive the 1930 Edison scholarship.

When the States and the District were asked several months ago to select the boys who would represent their territories in the final examination tomorrow, District school officials at first declined to participate in the event on the ground that it distracted the boys too much from their studies.

Later, however, this attitude was reversed and preliminary examinations were held, in which young Roop came out victorious. The boys, chosen from more than 10,000 who took the preliminary examinations throughout the country, will appear

Hoover Hopes Insular View of Appointee Will Be Cleared Up.

(Associated Press.)

Nicholas Roosevelt, of New York, yesterday received a recess appointment as vice governor of the Philippine Islands in the face of opposition from proponents of Philippine independence.

In announcing the appointment after the Senate had failed to confirm Mr. Roosevelt at the special session, the President expressed his conviction that the "misunderstanding" which had arisen in the islands as to the appointee's attitude would be quickly cleared up.

He asserted Mr. Roosevelt has been stanch in his support of the interests of the Philippine people, sympathetic with them and enthusiastic over their progress.

The New York man, who is a second cousin of Gov. Theodore Roosevelt of Porto Rico, is now an editorial Rival of Graf Zeppelin.

With her as yet inexperienced sister ship, the R-101, the R-100 is the world's biggest dirigible. The chosen few of England's finest fliers manned her for the transatlantic test.

As the two airships represent Great Britain's challenge to the German Graf Zeppelin and bid for world supremacy in dirigible travel, nothing was too good for officers and crew, and no care too minute for engines and gas bag.

Squadron Leader R. S. Both, the commander, was transferred from the royal navy in 1915 to be a captain of nonrigid airships. In 1915 he became celebrated for his brilliant performance when the R-33 broke loose from its Norfolk mooringmast and drifted over the North Sea at the mercy of a 100-mile-an-hour gale. He was appointed last year to command the R-100.

Ship's Designer Aboard.

The navigator, Squadron Leader Johnston, is a qualified master mariner. He was navigator of the first Imperial Airways flight to India in 1927.

Sir Denistoun Burney, who designed the ship, is also aboard.

So is Maj. E. H. Scott, assistant director of flying, who in 1912 was captain of the R-9, the first British rigid airship to fly, and in 1919 commanded the R-34 on its flight from Scotland to the United States and back. It was Maj. Scott who invented and planned the St. Hubert mooring tower and base at Montreal, which now awaits the R-100.

44 Making Trip.

Wing Commander R. B. B. Colmore, who represents the air ministry, was largely responsible for the scheme of combatting submarines by airship and seaplane patrols, so effectively used over the English Channel and North Sea during the war.

An experienced member of the R-100 crew is Squadron Leader Wann, who was commanding the ill-fated R-38 when she broke up over the East Coast in 1921. He was the only survivor from the forepart of the lost airship.

The airship is manned by a crew of four officers and 32 men, 14 of whom have no previous flying experience. With eight passengers, the total number on board reaches 44.

Charles Russell Gets Deputy Collector Job

Charles A. Russell, assistant assessor, yesterday was promoted by the District Commissioners to be deputy collector, a new post provided for in the appropriation act for the current fiscal year. The appointment carries an increase of salary from $4,800 to $5,600 a year.

Mr. Russell was born in December, 1876, and was appointed assistant assessor on February 13, 1918. He has had principal charge of the personal tax assessments and is said by William P. Richards, assessor, to have unusual ability as an organizer and has made himself an authority on the legal phases of the personal tax as well as certain phases of the real estate laws.

Maj. Pratt to Attend Convention of Chiefs

Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, will represent the National Capital at the annual convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police to be held in Duluth, Minn., beginning August 4.

Attendance of Maj. Pratt was authorized by the Commissioners yesterday. The superintendent will leave Washington August 1 and is expected to return August 12. The convention, it is said, will give the Washington official opportunity not only to become personally acquainted with the chiefs of other cities, but to discuss police matters with executives from all sections of the country.

Colored Residents Ask For Wider Employment

Aid of the District Commissioners was asked yesterday by a group of colored residents to persuade business concerns to give to colored men and women jobs for which they may be fitted. The group is interested in bringing about wider opportunities in employment for members of their race.

Commissioner Luther H. Reichelderfer, president of the Board of Commissioners, said the city heads were sympathetic with the problems of the colored residents and would do what they could to help them. The plea of the group was set forth in a petition. Speakers included Francis Wells, John Paynter, Mrs. Gabrielle Pelham, Miss Corinne Martin and J. Franklin Wilson.

Statement by Campbell's Brother Offers Alibi in Detail in Baker Murder Case

Feels Sure Herbert Will Be Cleared of Crime He Is Accused Of.

The following statement was issued yesterday by Frank G. Campbell, brother of Herbert M. Campbell, held in connection with the Baker murder case:

The stories that have been broadcast to the public concerning the events leading to the arrest of Herbert M. Campbell have been so fragmentary, garbled and, in many instances, untrue that the public mind is confused. I believe that it will be helpful to the promotion of justice to bring into one article the reasons and facts relied upon by the family and countless friends of Herbert Campbell in support of their vigorous contention that he is wholly innocent of the charges against him.

Perhaps I can best picture the reasons for our absolute certainty of my brother's innocence by describing my own experience during the past week.

On the night that Herbert was arrested I was awakened about 1:30 a. m. from a sound sleep by the insistent ringing of the telephone. Answering, I found Herbert on the wire. He said that he was about to be locked up and charged with the murder of Miss Baker. He said he had just told the authorities that he had lied to them concerning the gun that he had turned over to them in his eagerness to make his theory of the guilt of Barrere "stick." Herbert went on to ask me to go to his house and tell his wife of his arrest and help her as much as possible.

Knew Where Husband Was.

He was much more concerned about her than about himself. I did as he requested; took his wife to my home, and as soon as she could compose herself enough to answer my questions, she told me that she knew exactly where Herbert was at the time of Miss Baker's death. No one who knows my sister-in-law could possibly have doubted her truth and sincerity as she spoke there in the small hours of the morning.

She said that on the Friday that Miss Baker was killed she received a telephone message at her place of employment in Washington from her son, Eddie, to the effect that his Boy Scout troop was to have a "divisional inspection" that evening, and that he would have to have a scout belt. She said she was put out with him for not asking for the belt sooner, and when she went to Parker-Bridget's to get the belt, at a few minutes past 5 p. m., she complained to the salesgirl, who knew her very well, about her son putting the matter off until the last minute.

She took a bus about 5:20, or possibly 5:40, arriving home about 6 o'clock. She found Herbert and Eddie there. Herbert had brought home the food and was cooking the dinner. He usually started the dinner if he got home ahead of her. Eddie was taking a bath. She began to rebuke Eddie for being so late, telling him that he would never get to the scout meeting at Fourteenth and Park Road on time, because he usually went on the street car.

Told to Come Home.

Herbert called in to her and said, "Ruth, if you'll let the kid alone and come on and get the dinner, I'll drive him up to the meeting and he won't be late." After dinner she tried to help Eddie get the new belt on. It was new and stiff, and was not easy to fasten, and Herbert was out front honking the horn for Eddie to hurry. They drove off, and she heard no more from Herbert until later in the evening, when he phoned her and said that he had gone back to the scout meeting to bring Eddie home and that there was no one there. She told him that Eddie had probably gone to bowl with some of the boys, and to come on home.

That was all she knew when she first talked to me. She said she was sure the night in question was April 11, the day Miss Baker was killed, but that she could not sleep until she heard the scoutmaster, Mr. King, who lives on Harvard street, confirm her recollection, and she insisted on going at once to his house. It was then about 3 a. m.

I suggested that she wait, at least, until daylight, but she would listen to no delay, with the result that we went immediately to the home of the scoutmaster, Mr. King, on Harvard street, got him out of bed, and had him look up his records as to the date of the divisional inspection. His written and dated record showed the inspection to have been Friday, April 11, the evening that Miss Baker was killed.

That meeting was an unusual one, because two troops held a joint meeting on account of the inspection. Mr. King states that Herbert Campbell came into the meeting place and spoke to him, and shook hands with him, in the neighborhood of 7:30 p. m. Mr. King said that he would make inquiry among the boys to see whether any of them remembered the incident. Since then he has informed us that one of the boys saw and spoke to my brother, and that another, when asked about the matter, said, "Yes, he came in a black Hudson sedan, didn't he?"

Recalled Through Joke.

When I asked my sister-in-law how she remembered that the date of the Boy Scout meeting was the day Miss Baker was killed, she said that on Saturday evening, April 12, her parents came to visit her, bringing with them an evening paper containing the story of Miss Baker's murder, and that, as they were discussing the terrible affair, she tapped Herbert and said, in a joking way, "Well, I am glad I know where you were last night," and that this incident fixed his whereabouts on the evening of April 11 firmly in her mind.

The foregoing are the facts as they had developed up to the time that Mrs. Herbert Campbell was interviewed by the investigators, at my home several days ago. Since that time they have checked every detail of her story, with the following result:

The time card, at her place of employment, shows that she left at about 5 o'clock, as she said she had; the salesgirl at Parker-Bridget remembered the sale of the belt, and the conversation about the inspection; her son, Eddie, states that Herbert was home cooking the dinner, and had been home for quite some time before his mother got there, at 6 o'clock (Miss Baker was seen struggling with a man in her automobile at Seventeenth and B streets, in Washington, at about 6:05 p. m.); the Scoutmaster, and two of the Boy Scouts have confirmed her story, and, when questioned, Herbert said that after he left the Scout meeting he went to visit a Mr. and Mrs. Roy Smith, on Hamilton street. Mr. Smith's family corroborates this, stating that Herbert stayed for at least an hour and a half, and possibly two hours.

Within the past 24 hours additional confirmatory facts have developed in the following way. A local newspaper published Mrs. Campbell's picture, with a notice requesting any one who had seen her on either Friday or Saturday, April 11 and 12, to communicate with them.

Baked Birthday Cake.

This caused her to try to remember where she was, with the result that she remembered that Sunday, the 13th, was the birthday of one of her girl friends who works in the same place that she does, that on Friday night, while Eddie was at the Scout meeting, she baked a birthday cake for this girl so that she could take it to work with her on Saturday morning; that she had asked Herbert to bring her a box for the cake and that he had got a doughnut box from the grocery in Virginia Highlands for the cake, when he made his purchases for dinner.

She told Herbert, before he left to take Eddie to the Scout meeting that she would not use the doughnut box to send a birthday cake in, because it had a grease spot on it. When Herbert came home, after taking Eddie to the meeting, he brought her a new and clean box from a bakery.

When Herbert was asked whether he remembered getting the last-named box on the night in question, he said, "Sure, I do. I got it from the night man at Schnieder's Bakery, on I street, between Fourth and Fifth streets northwest. He is a short man, with missing teeth. If you ask him about it, you can tell him he reached up over a clock, or a doorway, to get it, and there are some more boxes up there."

Mosaic of Truthfulness.

The wife of the groceryman from whom Herbert got the doughnut box remembers giving it to him when he called to purchase the material for dinner, the night man at Schnieder's remembers giving him the new box, and the girl who got the birthday cake, of course, remembers that, and the fact that it was on Saturday morning, April 12, that she got it. Thus, the whole presents a mosaic of truthfulness that is unassailable. Even without these latest facts, every one of the official investigators assure us that they are convinced that Herbert has no knowledge whatever of the identity of Miss Baker's assailant.

The family and friends of Herbert Campbell have remained quiescent until now, because they have courted the fullest investigation of the whole matter. His family are agreed that all the sorrow and humiliation of the past week would be a cheap price to pay if, as a result, a clew was developed that would bring the murderer of Miss Baker to justice.

Having had in hand, from the very night of Herbert's arrest, the definite knowledge of his activities as outlined herein, we have known that the truth would prevail and that he would ultimately be vindicated. We have felt that, while in being locked up upon a charge as serious as this, his punishment was severe, he had only himself to blame because of the lies he told to make his theories of the guilt of Barrere hold water. However, enough facts have now been presented to convince any reasonable person of his innocence.

Never Wears a Cap.

When, in addition, it is remembered that the man who was seen beating Miss Baker about 6 p. m., wore a gray cap, that Herbert left a Mrs. Parsons at her apartment in Washington between 4 and 5 p. m., and that he had no gray cap then, that he never wears a cap; that the eyewitnesses to the assault on Miss Baker state that the man assaulting her was not Herbert Campbell, that Herbert is inseparable from his own automobile, while Miss Baker's assailant was in her auto, and that Herbert had his own auto with him at that time, the completeness of his defense will be apparent.

I believe that a mistake has been made in the identification of the gun. I do not believe it is the gun used to kill Miss Baker, but whatever experts may say as to the identity of the gun, one thing is certain—unless Herbert Campbell could be in two places at the same time he could not have been guilty of Miss Baker's death. Those who can not be convinced by the testimony of the many people above mentioned are those who do not want to be convinced. It has been suggested that the investigators must satisfy the public. That is all that Pontius Pilate was guilty of. The investigators should satisfy their own consciences, and common sense, and no more.

We are hoping that the investigation will be concluded promptly in a calm and judicial atmosphere. We feel sure that with the subsidence of newspaper hysteria, Herbert Campbell will not only be released but fully cleared of the serious crime with which he is charged.

To the friends who have sent us messages of love and confidence and cheer, thank you. To my brother's comrades in arms on the fields of France, of the V. F. W., who have called to pledge their confidence and support, thank you.

Has Only Self to Blame Because of Lies He Told, Is Claim.

CAMPBELL'S PISTOL ON WAY TO CHICAGO

and Assistant Attorney General William Collins yesterday visited Dr. Souder's laboratory at the Bureau of Standards, where the expert explained in detail the manner in which he arrived at his decision that Campbell's gun was the death gun.

Since the recovery of the gun it has been locked in a safe at the Bureau of Standards. The signatures of Inspector Shelby, Mr. Gloth and of an officer of the Department of Justice were required before it could be released. Mr. Gloth and Lieut. Kelly then went to the Department of Justice offices, where Mr. Gloth asked that the department send the gun to Chicago. Mr. Hoover acceded to the request. One of his agents left Union Station at 7:35 last night with the evidence.

Carl C. McEntire, an inmate of Walter Reed Hospital, who was arrested Sunday by Detective Sergt. Carlton Talley after he was reported to have expressed knowledge of the Baker case, was released yesterday from the First Precinct station. After his arrest he forgot all that he said he had known.

Brother Asks Public Faith.

Frank G. Campbell, brother of the accused man, yesterday issued an appeal to the public to withhold judgment against his brother until the facts are known. He predicted that his brother would be soon released.

Federal Post, No. 24, V. F. W., of which Campbell is a member, passed a resolution expressing the confidence of the post in Campbell's innocence. The measure also exhorted the authorities to make an exhaustive investigation of Campbell's whereabouts on the night of April 11, and further asked that the gun owned by Campbell be further checked as to its identity.

Copies were sent to Mr. Gloth and Inspector Shelby.

Whalen Indicted On Fraud Charges

Embezzlement of $23,000 Laid to Attorney in True Bill.

Robert E. J. Whalen, Washington attorney, with offices in the Columbian Building, was indicted yesterday by the District of Columbia grand jury on a charge of embezzling $23,000 from Miss Anne J. Hurley, of Hyattsville, Md., a client. The indictment is in ten counts, five alleging misappropriation and the remainder charging embezzlement.

Whalen was arrested recently on a warrant sworn to by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and is now at liberty under $10,000 bond. A similar charge is contained in a warrant sworn to in Prince Georges County, Md.

The attorney, while acting as lawyer for the woman, is alleged to have secreted and converted to his own use various sums of money which aggregate $23,000. The alleged misappropriations cover a period of a year and a half.

Judge Frees Dry Agent Who Slew Rum Carrier

Columbus, Ga., July 29 (A.P.).—W. K. Johnson, jr., Federal prohibition agent, today was freed of murder charges for the death of Ray Rodgers, 20, whom he killed Friday night as the youth tried to deliver whisky to an informer.

Judge Arthur Lynch accepted the agent's plea that the shooting was accidental and exonerated him of blame. Johnson said Rodgers was killed accidentally as Rodgers and his companion, Miss Eunice Johnson, scuffled with the officer for possession of his pistol.

ORDERS OF SHERIFF SUSPEND SERGEANT

Prince Georges Policeman to Question Early's Right to Discipline Him.

QUIT COUNTY, IS CHARGE

Sergt. H. G. Machen, of the Prince Georges County police, has been suspended from duty by Sheriff Charles S. Early, chief of the county police. Sergt. Machen was suspended on charges of "insubordination and absence from the county without leave," the sheriff announced last night.

According to Sheriff Early, Sergt. Machen had gone to Chester, Pa., last week and failed to notify the sheriff that he intended leaving the jurisdiction. The suspension was forwarded to the Prince Georges County Commissioners Saturday, but was not made public until yesterday.

Sheriff Early was loath to discuss the case last night, but said that he believed it necessary to suspend the sergeant in the interest of discipline.

Sergt. Machen, a member of the Democratic State central committee of Prince Georges and a prominent automobile dealer in Hyattsville, questions the right of the sheriff to suspend a member of the county force, inasmuch as the appointments are made by the county commissioners. He is the first county policeman to be suspended since the authorization of the police force by the State Legislature of 1927. This is the first time that the power of the sheriff to suspend members of the force has been disputed.

Sergt. Machen intends taking the matter before the county commissioners at their meeting next Tuesday.

First-Aid Groups To Be at Regatta

Arrangements Are Made for Herald Harbor Event Saturday.

First-aid and life-saving arrangements for the Tricity regatta at Herald Harbor, Md., next Saturday and Sunday have been completed under general direction of Dr. Roy Lyman Sexton, fleet surgeon of the Chesapeake and Potomac Powerboat Association.

Three first-aid stations have been arranged on the course, which is a triangular one. One is to be taken by the revenue cutter Apache, which will have the usual Coast Guard first-aid equipment. The two stations at other points of the course will be taken by civilians, physicians and nurses, under personal direction of Dr. Sexton, from Washington, and will be equipped with every first-aid appliance. These stations will be assisted by certified Red Cross lifesavers, under direction of Commander W. E. Longfellow.

The committee hopes that these arrangements for immediate care of the drivers will prevent any serious injuries.

Suit Follows Dispute At Golf Driving Course

Assistant United States Attorney William A. Gallagher and John H. Sullivan, local attorney and former assistant clerk of the District Supreme Court, yesterday filed suit in the tribunal against Joseph D. DiLeo, former attorney of the Department of Justice, seeking dissolution of a partnership in the operation of a golf driving course on Wisconsin avenue northwest.

According to the petition of the plaintiffs, DiLeo and Gallagher formed the partnership on May 28, 1930, and later admitted Sullivan to become a partner. DiLeo is charged with having told Sullivan on July 1 that the partnership was to be dissolved and to have ordered the latter from the driving field. Receipts from the course are said to total $800 and both petitioners seek an accounting. Attorneys Ford and Grove appear for the petitioners.

Lad Dies, Another Hurt In Fall From Ice Truck

Lawrence Chisley, colored, 6 years old, of 1215 C street southeast, was fatally injured yesterday morning when the wheel of an ice truck crushed him after he had fallen from the truck. The accident occurred on C street near Twelfth street southeast, where the child was said to have been hanging on the back of the truck.

Joseph Rixey, 6 years old, of 643 F street southwest, was seriously injured when he fell from an ice truck on Seventh street near F street southwest. He was treated at his home.

Taxicab Stand Removed When Evans Complains

Complaint of Joshua Evans, president of the District National Bank, yesterday resulted in an order by the District Commissioners moving the public hack stand which has been in use on the south side of K street near Ninth street northwest. The Commissioners moved the stand to the east side of Ninth north of the New York avenue building line.

The taxi stand has been in use since June, 1928, and has been widely used and no complaints have been made against the conduct of the drivers using the stand, Inspector E. W. Brown, chief of the Traffic Bureau, said.

First-Degree Murder Laid to Former Orderly

First degree murder is charged in an indictment returned yesterday by the District of Columbia grand jury against Walter C. Burris, Negro, formerly orderly at Emergency Hospital.

Burris is charged with shooting to death Arthur Hariday, also colored, last June 28 at a house on V street northwest near Third street. At the time of his arrest Burris is alleged to have confessed the slaying but to have pleaded self-defense.

Policeman Finds Liquor While Admiring Dogs

Eighth Precinct Policeman H. M. Smith liked dogs. In fact yesterday afternoon he took a few moments to make friends with four big police dogs owned by Benjamin Jackson at the residence of the 30-year-old colored man on Temperance avenue northwest.

One of the dogs became slightly vicious, snapped at him and then trotted into a small pen in the rear yard. The policeman peered inside the doghouse to pet the animal and found two bottles he said contained liquor. He promptly arrested Jackson on charges of possessing liquor and also on vagrancy charges.

CONSERVATIVE VOTE IN CANADA DECISIVE

Margin of 28 Votes Over All Opponents Assured to Party of Bennett.

THREE SEATS IN DOUBT

Ottawa, July 29 (A.P.).—A smashing Dominion-wide victory at yesterday's polls has returned the Conservative party to power in Canada for the first time since the World War, and has placed R. B. Bennett, 60-year-old Calgary bachelor and political veteran, at the helm of state as premier-elect.

Premier MacKenzie King today advised the governor general to send for Mr. Bennett and "ascertain if he is prepared to form a government." The premier said he is ready to resign any time the governor general deems it advisable to allow the Conservatives to take over the helm of the government.

Tonight, with two House of Commons seats still in doubt out of 245, the Conservatives had won 138 seats, the Liberals 85, the United Farmers 10, the Liberal Progressives and the Laborites 3 apiece, and the Progressives and the Independents 2 each.

Even if the opposition were to win all the contests still undetermined, the Conservative government, replacing the nine-year regime of the Liberals and Prime Minister Mackenzie King, is sure of out-and-out control of the Dominion parliament.

The Conservative majority is large enough to match the combined strength of all opposing parties and to leave a margin of 28 votes.

The Conservative victory was as general as it was decisive, and it was hailed as marking a return to a two-party system in which no minority group could hold a balance of power. The Liberal government has depended for its majorities, many times since 1921, on the support of scattered blocs outside its ranks. A coalition government, made up of Liberals and Conservatives, preceded the King administration.

Prime Minister-elect Bennett, in a statement today, declared that Conservative policies had been accepted by Canada "as the instrument of national development" and expressed gratification that "every province of the dominion has contributed to the result."

CHANGSHA LOOTED BY HORDES OF REDS

warships were forced by the rapidly receding river to withdraw. Millions of dollars' worth of foreign property thus was left at the mercy of the Reds. Whether this property had been plundered was not revealed in fragmentary advices reaching here tonight. Earlier indications were the properties, including missions and consulates, would be burned.

Headquarters here of some 25 Protestant and Catholic missions represented at Changsha futilely sought to learn the fate of their missions. Communication, however, was virtually paralyzed.

Whether there had been loss of life among foreign inhabitants was not determined, but late advices said four missionaries remained in the city. They were the Rev. W. H. Lingle, who has been in China since 1890 for the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions; Dr. Allen N. Cameron, in China since 1895 as a representative of the Galilee Baptist Church of Denver, Colo.; Miss Gertrude Rugg, a British woman of the China Inland Mission, and an Italian Catholic priest.

About 50 foreigners were rescued before sacking of the city commenced. The American warship Palos, two British and three Japanese gunboats effected the rescue. In addition to taking refugees aboard, the gunboats escorted foreign commercial vessels to safety and towed away floating equipment of various concerns.

Relief work of naval men who risked their lives in penetrating isolated portions of the city was warmly praised.

(Associated Press.)

The State Department was informed yesterday that all Americans at Changsha are safe aboard the U. S. S. Palos, except three, who refused protection.

Consul General Frank P. Lockhart at Hankow said Japanese and British gunboats assisted in the evacuation and he believed all foreigners who accepted protection are safe. The Palos was to remain at Changsha unless the situation grew worse.

Earlier, Lockhart had reported Changsha was under the control of Reds under Peng Teh Hwai. The consul said he was urging the American naval authorities to provide Hankow with a destroyer or other vessel for the protection of Americans. Lockhart estimated there were perhaps 20 Americans and 200 foreigners at Kuling and said the presence of the U. S. S. Monocacy at Kiukiang was advisable. Hankow is quiet, he added.

State Department records of January 1 showed 48 Americans were living at Changsha.

Dr. Walter A. Adams at Nanking advised the department today he had direct word from Americans at Puchow that all of them were safe and were remaining at that city. Some concern had been felt for the safety of Americans there.

forts will be made to obtain evidence wherever suspicion attaches itself.

That the list which will be in Maj. Pratt's possession when the reports of the fourteen precincts are submitted will be sizeable is indicated from the fact that in one precinct alone, within an hour after the order was received, a list was made up of suspected places, against which no definite evidence has thus far been available, containing more than 100 addresses. And that was in one of the "quiet" precincts.

Nine Charges Ignored In Grand Jury Report

Charges against nine persons were ignored yesterday when the District grand jury made its second report for the July term of Supreme Court.

Those exonerated by the grand jury are: Emanuel R. Galloway, joyriding; Thomas F. Masterson, housebreaking; George Green, Jesse Moore, Aloysius Jones and Pinkney Wood, housebreaking and larceny; Mary Elizabeth Johnson, assault with a dangerous weapon; Marshall Hunter, carnal knowledge, and Wellwood Hastings, false pretenses. The charge against Hastings, which was ignored by the grand jury, does not involve the case against Gustav Hertz. Hastings still is under bond on that charge.

Police, Fire Heads Order Job Survey

Extent of Outside Work in Off-Duty Hours Will Be Study Basis.

Survey of the police and fire departments to determine the extent to which members of the departments accept outside employment when off duty was ordered yesterday at a conference between Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby, Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, and Fire Chief George S. Watson and John P. Colpoys, representing the labor unions.

The conference was called by Commissioner Crosby following a complaint last week that firemen were accepting outside employment when off duty, thereby reducing opportunities for employment by regular tradesmen who were looking for work.

The group yesterday was unanimous that the practice should be stopped, but the question arose as to the authority to forbid outside employment by members of the departments. A case decided against the District by Justice Gould in the District courts was cited. The survey was decided on to determine just how prevalent the practice is and if it is deemed necessary legislation will be asked of Congress to end it.

Drowning Held Accidental.

A verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday in the drowning last Sunday afternoon of John W. Hogshead, 32 years old, who was head of a dental laboratory in the Medical Science Building.

$50,000 Damage Asked In Alleged Auto Crash

Dorothea W. Griebel, of Fort Wayne, Ind., filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court seeking to recover $50,000 damages from John J. Haggerty, of 2208 F street northeast, and Dennie Lee Healy, of 1012 Fifth street northeast.

Through Attorneys Albert E. Steinem and Milton D. Korman the woman tells the court she was riding in an automobile driven by her husband when a machine owned by Haggerty and operated by Healy collided with it, causing her serious injuries. The accident occurred July 31, 1927, near Abington, Md., and the woman claims to have been confined to bed since that time.

$5,230,000 IN QUAKE FUND GIVEN BY ITALY

Houses, Ordered Built by Duce, Will Be Able to Resist Shocks.

ROME TAKES IN ORPHANS

Rome, July 29 (A.P.).—The Italian council of ministers, directed by Il Duce, today came to the rescue of the earthquake-stricken zone of the Apennines with an appropriation of 100,000,000 lire (about $5,230,000) for rebuilding its ruined cities and towns.

Premier Mussolini instructed Minister of Public Works Crollalanza to return immediately to supervise the reconstruction of thousands of shattered homes and other buildings.

The houses will be rebuilt with materials better able to resist seismic shocks, and in many cases the historic sites of towns and villages will be changed to localities where in the past earthquake shocks have been less violent.

A note of cheer came to Rome in the report of Undersecretary of Public Works Leoni that the entire district was returning to normal activity. The troops engaged in salvage work are leaving, and the food problem has been solved. Emergency rations have been greatly cut.

Child refugees from the quake area today began arriving in Rome, which with other cities is caring for several hundreds. One hundred and twelve between the ages of 2 and 12 arrived from Lacedonia, Aquilonia and Bisaccia.

The youngsters, many of whom were orphaned, will be cared for at Rome's vacation colonies regularly maintained in the mountains and by the sea. Each entered the Eternal City with a roll of bread under his arm, guarding it zealously. All bore signs of the ordeal they had been under, although very few cried. Many refused to answer questions.

Prince Boncompagni Ludovisi, Governor of Rome, officially received the children. He sent them off to be bathed, reclothed and examined medically. Then all were given breakfast in the Rome school.

After six anxious days the work of reconstruction is now believed to have caught its proper rhythm in the devastated zone and is expected to go forward smoothly.

With the revictualling working efficiently, the first detachment of soldiers pulled out by train tonight for their base. A battalion of Bersaglieri left Villanova.

Sanitary conditions are reported good over the entire region. The disinfecting service are speeding up their work.

Two Die When Storms Strike North Carolina

Charlotte, N. C., July 29 (A.P.).—Two persons were killed, several injured, numerous buildings damaged and wire communications disrupted by storms that struck in scattered sections of North Carolina last night. Robert Lee, 45, a mill worker, and Alonzo Mason, 18, Negro, son of a tenant farmer, were killed by lightning in Gaston County.

Wind partially unroofed the McAdenville Textile Mill No. 1 at McAdenville. Eight firemen at Hickory were shocked by lightning which struck a boss being played on a blaze originating from lightning. Several buildings in that section were struck.

Prince of Wales in Belgium.

Brussels, Belgium, July 29 (A.P.).—The Prince of Wales landed today at Evere military airdrome in a driving rain after a flight from London. CLARKSBURG BLAST KILLS 2, HURTS 12

Explosion in Boiler-House of Tinplate Plant Laid to Defective Tube.

MAN'S BODY DESTROYED

Clarksburg, W. Va., July 29 (A.P.). Two men were killed instantly, five others were seriously injured and at least seven others hurt slightly by an explosion this afternoon which demolished the boiler house at the tin plate plant of the Weirton Steel Co., near here.

Those killed are John Yoho, 65, foreman, and Harvey Barker, 40, a water tender. Yoho's body was recovered, but Barker was so near the center of the explosion that few traces of his body remained.

Investigating officials advanced the theory that the explosion possibly was caused by a tube made defective by bad water.

All the dead and injured were Clarksburg residents. Many of the 900 men employed in various units of the tin plate plant participated in rescue work.

The explosion wrecked the boiler house destroyed four of the six boiler stacks and shook buildings in the vicinity of the plant.

Capt. Hawks to Assault East-West Plane Mark

Valley Stream, N. Y., July 29 (A.P.). Capt. Frank Hawks set down his "mystery" plane here at 6:30 p. m. (E. S. T.) today after a flight from Columbus, Ohio. He stopped off in Pittsburgh to fit a new propeller on the plane.

Capt. Hawks said he would take off for Los Angeles in a few days in an attempt to break the east-to-west transcontinental record.

M'DONALD, IN COURT, CONFESSES HE LIED

Faces Judges of California Supreme Bench With Denial of Stories.

BLAME PUT ON OTHERS

senting Mooney and Billings as well as himself. Among them was Frank P. Walsh, eminent Eastern criminal lawyer, who has fought for Mooney's freedom continually since his conviction.

MacDonald looked at these judges and lawyers and at 40 newspapermen and several police officers and admitted he had lied four times. This he did when Justice Preston of the court asked him if he hadn't told five different stories at five different times about the case. MacDonald answered he had.

"ow is the Court to know which one to believe?" Justice Preston asked.

"Only by your own judgment," replied MacDonald.

The witness recently made an affidavit in which he said he was "prompted" by authorities here to identify Mooney and Billings as the men who placed the bomb at Market and Steuart streets in July, 1916.

Using this affidavit as the basis of questioning the Court asked MacDonald if he gave false testimony at the time of the bombing. He said he did and he was "induced" to do so by Charles Fickert, then district attorney and who was one of the lawyers attending the hearing today.

"Whole Pack of Lies."

"A whole pack of lies was packed into my head," MacDonald said, referring to his "inducement" by Fickert. Both Fickert and Capt. Charles Goff of the police department, then a sergeant in charge of the investigation, have denied they prompted MacDonald. They said he appeared voluntarily and identified Mooney and Billings.

At the justices' request MacDonald described what he saw at Steuart and Market streets on the fateful day.

Chief Justice William H. Waste presided at the hearing which was held off bench, because informal. Justice John W. Preston initiated the questioning. After the justices finished lawyers interested were permitted to ask questions.

Both Mooney and Billing had asked to be present, but their attendance was not held necessary. Mrs. Mary Mooney, aged mother of Thomas Mooney, however, was admitted and was an interested spectator, hardly removing her eyes from MacDonald.

A close guard was maintained at the State Building by Federal and city officials to prevent any possible violence.

Williams' Permit To Fly Restored

Navigator of Bermuda Hop Says Consul Approved Flight Over Isle.

New York, July 29 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—As arbitrarily as it was taken away from him Monday by Gilbert C. Budwig, director of air regulation in the Department of Commerce, Roger C. Williams' right to fly was restored today by the same one-man tribunal. Apparently, all was forgiven Williams for flying over Bermuda on his recent nonstop trip by airplane from New York.

One report, current at Roosevelt Field, Long Island, was that Williams' suspension had been cut from the original 90-day period to a mere week. Another had it that Mr. Budwig telephoned from Washington direct to Williams and told him his license would be restored to him as soon as he surrendered it.

In the meantime, Harry Connors, navigator on the round-trip flight to Bermuda, divulged that he was assured at the British consul general's office in New York prior to the flight that there would be no objection to it.

QUIZ IN COMMONS BRIBE SPEECH BEGUN

Inquiry Voted Into Charges Laborites Get Intoxicated and Take Gratuities.

ACCUSER MADE TO LEAVE

London, July 29 (A.P.).—The House of Commons spent an hour today discussing what should be done about a speech of E. Sandham, Laborite member of Parliament, in which he is alleged to have brought charges against his Labor colleagues of intoxication and receiving bribes.

The matter finally was placed before the committee of privileges by a vote of 119 to 8. This committee will examine charges against Mr. Sandham that his speech was a "gross libel" and will report later to the speaker.

Mr. Sandham was in the Commons when debate on the question started. He did not, however, remain until the end of the proceedings.

A motion was placed before the house stating that his speech was a libel. To this he made no apology and no defense except to say that extracts in the speech complained of were torn out of their context. He then began reading the whole speech, but was stopped by the speaker, who later asked him to leave the chamber.

After an hour of hot debate, during which Edwin Scrymgeour, who sits as an Independent and has strong prohibitionist views, declared it was indisputable members of all parties were from time to time under the influence of drink, Prime Minister MacDonald proposed that Mr. Sandham's case be placed before the committee of privileges.

The matter was first brought up yesterday by Earl Winterton, Conservative, who moved the resolution denouncing Mr. Sandham. Mr. Winterton quoted Mr. Sandham as saying.

"The Labor members can receive bribes to help pass a doubtful bill in the interests of private individuals. Labor members can get stupidly drunk in this place, but none of these things are against the sacred traditions of the house, but in keeping with them. It is known that Labor members receive money from money lenders and other interests, and it is known that Labor members of Parliament get drunk at the house."

Spending by Bank Committee Halted

Group for Mexican Bondholders Restrained in Court Order.

Trenton, N. J., July 29 (A.P.).—The international committee of bankers of Mexico, which is handling a $43,000,000 fund established by the Mexican government for the protection of its bond holders, today was restrained from dispensing further moneys by an order filed in Federal district court.

Judge William Runyon, who signed the order, also issued a second in which he directed the committee to show cause on August 18 as to why it should not give an accounting of the fund's management. The latter order follows an announcement by Alexander Simpson, Democratic nominee for United States senator, that he had filed suit demanding such an accounting.

The orders were issued by the petition of counsel for Frederick Gallapin, a citizen of Switzerland and a resident of New York, who complained that the committee was mishandling its funds. An appeal for a temporary receiver was denied.

Bank's President Held in Shortage

$200,000 Found Missing at Institution in Galion, Ohio.

Galion, Ohio, July 29 (A.P.).—Alleged to have removed more than $200,000 from the Citizens National Bank of Galion within the last year and used it in playing the stock market, J. E. Casey, 45, who resigned Friday as president of the institution, was under arrest tonight facing charges of misapplication of funds and falsification of records.

William Taylor, chief bank examiner of the Fourth Federal Reserve, who took charge of the bank when it failed to open its doors today, said that examiners had found that since August 12 last more than $200,000 had been removed from bank funds and turned into three accounts to which Casey had access.

Casey was held prisoner at the bank by Taylor until tonight when Deputy United States Marshal Andrew L. Gibson came here to return him to Cleveland for arraignment tomorrow before United States Commissioner H. K. Cochrane.

Nine-Day Watch Ends With Liquor Arrest

Watchful waiting for nine days at an H street residence near Ninth street southwest by Fourth Precinct Detectives N. G. Thayer and J. Auffenberg was rewarded yesterday afternoon with the arrest of George P. Harrigan, 53 years old, on charges of sale of 1 pint of liquor and possession of 3 gallons of liquor.

He gave his address as I street near Sixth street northwest. Harrigan was released on $1,500 bond.

writer on the New York Times. He has written a book upon Philippine problems and has made a long study of Far East conditions.

After his nomination was sent to the Senate, leaders in the Philippine movement attacked his views and urged his rejection. Pedro Guevara, the resident commissioner in Washington, the president of the Philippine Senate and the speaker of the Philippine House, who was a member of the commission which appeared before Congress at the last session to urge independence, submitted their opposition.

The Senate then declined to act upon the nomination until hearings had been held at the next session of Congress.

"I have tendered Mr. Nicholas Roosevelt an interim appointment as vice governor of the Philippines," the President said. "Mr. Roosevelt has been so stanch in his support of the interests of the Philippine people and so sympathetic with them, so enthusiastic over their progress, that I am sure that the misunderstanding which has arisen in the Philippines as to his attitude will be quickly cleared up."

Ending of Danish Rule Demanded in Iceland

London, Wednesday, July 30 (A.P.). Copenhagen dispatches to the Daily Herald said that wild demonstrations in favor of immediately ending Danish rule in Iceland were made Tuesday at the opening of the Icelandic Parliament in Reykjavik.

The Danish flag was pulled down from the Parliament House and the Iceland home rule flag hoisted. A man arrested for his part in hoisting the flag was promptly rescued from the police by the demonstrators.

Jury Trial Is Won By Carroll, Actors

Judge Goes Back 15 Years to Final Precedent in Own Decision.

New York, July 29 (A.P.).—Judge Rosalsky today went back fifteen years to find a precedent in one of his own decisions and granted the right to a jury trial to Earl Carroll and three members of the cast of his musical revue "Vanities," who are charged by police with giving an indecent performance.

"The question of whether a play or entertainment of the State is obscene or indecent or tends to suggest impure thoughts is one that should be presented to a jury," Judge Rosalsky held. He said he made the same decision fifteen years ago in the case of the producer of "The Garden of Passion," and that his decision since had served as a precedent for many similar rulings by other judges.

Carroll and his three codefendants, Faith Bacon, Kay Carroll and Jimmy Savo, had been held by Magistrate Gotleib for special sessions, where three judges sit both as judge and jury.

Bandits Kidnap Cashier, Rob Bank of $15,000

Hillman, Mich., July 29 (A.P.).—The Montgomery County Savings Bank was robbed of $15,000 in cash and securities at 8:25 a. m. today by two men who kidnaped William Niergarth, the cashier, at his home 3 miles from town and forced him to accompany them to the bank.

The men escaped in a small coupe after locking Niergarth in the bank vault with William Studt, a farmer, who entered while the robbery was in progress. The robbers' car later was found a mile and a half east of town. Believing the robbers to be in the woods, a posse of about 200 farmers started a search.

DRIVE AGAINST RED IMPORTS CHECKED

TARIFF VOTES RECALLED

boost on matches that set the works off, but once started the matter spread as did the Sarajevo incident of 1914.

Mr. Lowman and Mr. Woll, who, although a vice president of the American Federation of Labor, always gets into these tariff controversies right conveniently as the head of the Wage Earners Protective Association, whom nobody seems exactly to be able to place, were apparently in a fair way to gather all the malcontents of the recent tariff making in their drive.

It is because the malcontents are such a motley and incongruous crew that disaster was encountered.

For example, when the thing first began, Senator David A. Reed rushed to the Treasury with a demand that Russian manganese, lumber and coal be barred. That country could not undermine American workers, he said.

Reed Vote Recalled.

Now it so happens that Senator Reed was one of those of the Senate finance committee who voted to place manganese on the free list, just a few months ago. It was developed that American production was negligible. Only a 1 per cent duty existed.

The Progressives immediately protested and said this was about the highest handed thing they had ever seen, that it was done at behest of steel companies. They threatened to make this one of their main issues and as a result the duty was restored, the metallic content governing the duty in the manganese ore being reduced to 10 per cent from 30.

It is not improbable at all that Reed regretted his words on manganese the other day the minute he got them out of his mouth. The steel companies of his State are the greatest users of the product he wanted banned.

Congress Stand on Lumber.

There is an even better story on lumber. If there was one single thing the recent Congress took a stand against it was a tariff on lumber. Even the House ways and means committee would only give 25 per cent on shingles. The Senate finance committee knocked even this out and entreaties of the Northwestern senators availed nothing at all. The Senate voted down a $3 rate on lumber and it voted down one of $1.50. Then the House to show its firm attitude voted down a rate of 75 cents.

Subsequently when the bill went to conference Senator McNary, of Oregon, corralled enough votes to prevent passage of the bill unless he was given something on lumber. Thereupon a rate of $1 was given. The free admission at the time was that although the administration was against the lumber levy a small one was absolutely necessary to pass the bill.

Although the $1 rate fell far short of what Northwest interests were seeking, they were jubilant because, as they very frankly explained, the $1 rate removed lumber from the free list and therefore placed it under flexible provisions by which the President could raise the rate 50 per cent later. That they should have loosed their drive so soon, however, was most surprising.

14 Months of Controversy.

All of that Soviet stuff figured in the fight made by the lumber people before Congress. There was fourteen months of it.

Incidentally, the lumber people were credited largely through their maneuverings, with breaking up the coalition.

As sort of a sidelight on the matter, Mr. Lowman heard a delegation of Amtorg Trading Co. officials, New York importers, charterers and representatives of New York longshoremen in protest against holding up shiploads of pulpwood. The longshoremen, members of the American Federation of Labor, said Mr. Woll did not represent them, as holding up the vessels in question meant $2,000 a day to them.

Convict Labor Provision.

Newspapers of this country have long been at the mercy of Canadian pulpwood producers, so it is with Canada that Soviet Russia is competing with 30 more shiploads of pulpwood on the way. The delegation before Mr. Lowman denied that the pulpwood was a convict labor product.

This convict labor provision of the tariff is nothing new. A new provision bars importations that come from "indentured or forced" labor. However, it does not go into effect until January 1, 1932.

Mr. Lowman had quite a show of the hearing of Amtorg officials and other protestants. Usually such meetings are behind closed doors but Mr. Lowman threw this one open to some 40 newspapermen, and his enjoyment of the proceedings was obvious.

Tear Gas in All Prisons Seen as Curb to Riots

Rochester, N. Y., July 29 (A.P.).—Electrical tear gas systems eventually will be installed in all the big prisons of the country as a safeguard against outbreaks, State police chiefs in session here were told today by J. A. Sacker, of Cleveland.

"A row of buttons make it possible to produce tear gas 'showers' in whatever section of the prison needing control," he said. "In former riots tear gas has been found the most effective controlling agent, but its value has been lessened through inability to have the gas at hand when it is needed quickly."

Former Gov. Al Smith Sees Fifth Grandchild

New York, July 29 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The new Empire State building had to get along the best way it could today. Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, boss of the job, was inspecting the world's tallest shortly before noon when a message came to him. The message said that Smith's fifth grandchild had just been born. He quit work on the spot and left for St. Anne's Hospital to felicitate the mother, Mrs. Francis J. Quillinan, and her 8-pound son.

Mrs. Quillinan was Katharine Smith, second daughter of former Gov. and Mrs. Smith. Her husband is a lawyer associated with Senator Wagner in the firm of Wagner, Quillinan & Riskind. They were married in June, 1928, and this is their first child.

MOFFETT INDORSES BILLION NAVAL FUND

Aeronautics Chief Regards Outlays Under Pact as Good Investment.

CALLED WAR PREVENTIVE

Bay City, Mich., July 29 (A.P.).—The expenditure of nearly a billion dollars on the Navy was urged as a good "investment" here tonight in a speech by Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics, at services dedicating a new airport.

Admiral Moffett dedicated the airport to the memory of James Clements, the first Michigan aviator killed overseas.

"The cost of building to the London treaty navy," he said, "has been estimated by the general board to be $990,000,000 to be expended over a period of six years, while the expenditure by the Veterans' Bureau for veterans of the last war is more than $500,000,000 annually.

"I know of no better investment for the United States—the expenditure of $990,000,000 for building to the treaty navy. By doing so we will maintain our self-respect and prestige as a nation, our force for peace, be able to prevent another war, the cost of which will be billions instead of millions.

"Had we had a Navy commensurate with our population and resources as a Nation in 1914, there would have been no war."

Admiral Moffett also discussed the merits of the projected 10,000-ton combination ships which could carry as many as two dozen airplanes and yet retain the effectiveness of a cruiser in the battle lines.

"A 6-inch-gun cruiser with aircraft having a range of 200 miles," he said, "would make an ideal vessel for protection of commerce—certainly, it is at least equal to the 8-inch cruiser without landing decks and aircraft.

"We have 78,000 tons of cruiser tonnage available under the London Treaty," the admiral said, "besides our present 6-inch-gun cruisers and the eighteen 8-inch-gun cruisers provided. This can be most effectively used by building 10,000-ton 6-inch-gun cruisers and placing landing decks and aircraft aboard them."

He warned that it was "most important that no nation violate the spirit of the treaty by turning a cruiser into an aircraft carrier, so that cruisers must be essentially and primarily cruisers and not aircraft carriers."

Broker, Pilot Die As Plane Crashes

Men Burn to Death, Caught by Blazing Debris in Wisconsin Marsh.

Madison, Wis., July 29 (A.P.).—A wealthy Los Angeles broker and his pilot were burned to death this afternoon when a new biplane crashed into a marsh near the Madison Airport and burst into flames.

Charles E. Anderton, jr., 39, the broker, who had been living temporarily in Chicago, took off with his pilot, George A. Morgan, 25, St. Paul, early this afternoon en route to Lacrosse, Wis., and St. Paul. Airport officials said the plane left the ground after a short run and started to climb. Suddenly it nosed downward and fell into the marsh half a mile from the field. The plane burst into flames as it struck and the men died strapped in the flaming pyre.

Spectators said one of the pair attempted to free himself, but slumped in his seat as flames reached him. Firemen recovered the bodies, which were burned almost beyond recognition. Anderton and Morgan left a Chicago airport this morning and arrived here shortly after noon. They had luncheon while gasoline tanks were filled.

Five Killed, 20 Injured In Spanish Town Riot

Madrid, July 29 (A.P.).—Five persons are reported to have been killed and twenty wounded today at Santiago de Castaneda in a free-for-all fight that broke out during celebration of a religious holiday. Dispatches from the town, which is located in an isolated region that has poor communication facilities, said the fighting began between groups of young men from rival towns.

A band of visitors made disparaging remarks to the residents. Hot words were exchanged, and this quickly led to fighting with revolvers, clubs and stones. About 100 shots were fired. Many were arrested by police sent from other towns. Order was restored in the evening.

Boy Gets 50-Year Term For Slaying His Mother

Ida Grove, Iowa, July 29 (A.P.).—Lester Mohr, 14, confessed slayer of his mother, Mrs. Gus Mohr, was sentenced today to 50 years imprisonment. Judge P. J. Klinker said that because of the youth's age he would not impose a life term.

The boy, who pleaded guilty, said he had been drinking "spiked" beer and had gone home, where he quarreled with his mother over some work. When his mother slapped him, the boy testified, he beat her with bricks, then shot and killed her.

"The best Insurance against Tube Troubles ...RCA Radiotrons"

JOHN S. GORMAN
Vice-President and General Manager
GULBRANSEN COMPANY

"WE strongly recommend that every Gulbransen Radio owner use RCA Radiotrons. Our engineers use RCA Radiotrons in laboratory work and for testing, as they are of uniformly high quality and give the best results. We find that RCA Radiotrons not only safeguard sensitivity and selectivity and insure Gulbransen realism, but act as the best insurance against vacuum tube troubles. It's good common sense to demand RCA Radiotron quality for both first equipment and replacement."

This is the 20th in a series of endorsements of RCA Radiotrons by the leading radio set manufacturers.

RADIO ENGINEERS ADVISE:

Replace all the vacuum tubes in your radio set with RCA Radiotrons at least once a year. This is the only sure way to maintain good performance and minimize disagreeable noises and other troubles caused by inferior tubes. RCA Radiotrons will give you the maximum in selectivity, sensitivity and tone quality.

Old tubes may impair the performance of the new

PLANS COMPLETED FOR FIREMEN FETE

McLean Volunteers Will Open Carnival on Next Saturday Afternoon.

BABY SHOW IS FEATURE

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The annual McLean carnival for the benefit of the McLean Volunteer Fire Department and the School and Community League will begin Saturday at noon and continue through the next week, closing at midnight on Saturday, August 9. On week days the carnival will open at 7 o'clock in the evening. A special feature each night will be dancing. On the opening day, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, a baby show will be held, under direction of Mrs. Bruno Wittig, who will be assisted by Mrs. Alfred Rawlings. They have asked Mrs. Robert Conner, of Cherrydale, and Miss Gladys Winfield, of Fairfax, both graduate nurses, to act as judges. Mrs. Fannie Lou Seamons, Fairfax County health nurse, will also be present and will distribute health literature to the mothers. Prizes donated for the baby show include $6 from a Georgetown bank, with which to start saving accounts for the winner; a silver spoon from J. C. Tribby and a pair of baby shoes.

The baby show will be followed by a tug of war between residents of McLean and Forestville. That evening there will be a display of fireworks by members of the fire department. Games and other carnival attractions will help entertain the visitors.

On the closing day of the carnival a hook-up contest, open to all fire departments, will be the feature. The McLean department will not compete. John Wheat, of McLean, has donated a large silver cup, to be known as the Wheat Cup, which will be awarded to the winning company. This cup must be won by a company three times before it becomes the permanent property of that department.

A fried chicken dinner will be served on both Saturdays under direction of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Fire Department. Mrs. Lewis Magarity and Mrs. Grace Magarity will act as chairmen of the dinner committee. Mrs. A. M. Berthiaume has charge of collecting donations for the dinner.

Deputy Sheriff Paul Herrman, of Fairfax County, who was injured early Sunday morning when his motorcycle collided with a truck on the Lee Highway near Merrifield, was returned to his home in Falls Church from the Georgetown Hospital yesterday. It is stated that his injuries are not as serious as at first thought.

Mrs. Fannie Lou Seamons, Fairfax County health nurse, returned from her vacation this week and is busily engaged in making preparations for completing preschool clinics. Arrangements are now being made with a Washington hospital for removal of diseased tonsils and adenoids of the children. These operations are performed for children at a reduced cost after consent of the child's family physician has been obtained. The county health unit is also planning to make as many other physical corrections as possible before school opens this fall so that children will be eligible for five-point health certificates this winter which will show that they have met the State health department's requirements as to physical fitness.

Divisional Superintendent of Schools Wilbert T. Woodson announces that bids for erection of the agricultural school building at Herndon and the addition to the Herndon colored school will be opened tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock in the office of the school board at Fairfax. Bids will be received up until noon that day. A special committee, composed of School Trustees Joseph Murphy, of Dranesville district, and Frederick Robinson, of Herndon, and Superintendent Woodson was appointed at the last meeting of the school board to advertise for bids for erection of the two buildings and they were also given authority to award the contract. A representative from State Architect Raymond V. Long's office in Richmond, who prepared plans and specifications for the buildings, will be present to assist the committee in making its selection.

Superintendent Woodson stated yesterday that the August school board meeting will be held Monday, August 4, instead of on the regular meeting day, August 5, which this year is the date on which the Democratic primary is to be held.

Edmund H. Allen, president of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce, announces that the chamber's radio program this evening over Station WJSV from 7:30 to 8 o'clock will include a description of the early vestry of Pohick Church and the organization of Truro Parish in 1732. At that time, it was said, the functions of the church vestry were mostly civic in their nature and included levying of taxes and other functions.

The annual meeting of the Fairfax District Council Daughters of America will be held today at Cherrydale, with the Arlington Council as hosts.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Church will meet this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Rufus Lane in Falls Church. At 1 o'clock luncheon will be served. Later in the afternoon there will be an address by Dr. Paul Harrison, medical missionary to Arabia under the Congregational Church.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Church of the Brethren at Oakton will hold a meeting tomorrow afternoon in the church house. They will make definite plans for a pageant to be presenetd this fall.

not damaged. Neither were the adjoining structure of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. and an apartment building threatened, as the flames were bottled in the brick walls, which held.

Several airplanes bearing passengers hovered low over the scene as firemen battled desperately to keep the flames from spreading.

A hose burst on the M street side, drenching about 200 spectators. Furniture was stored in the two stories of the building and in the basement. Most of it belonged to the Hub Co., a unit of Reliable Stores Corporation, with headquarters in Baltimore.

Losses Are Estimated.

Storage quarters of the National Furniture Co., located on the first floor, did not catch fire, but water seeping through a concrete floor damaged rugs to the extent of about $30,000. Water also slightly damaged stock of the Lansburgh Furniture Co., located in the basement.

Howard McKinley, auditor of the Hub company, and Mr. Fellinger, the shipping clerk, roughly estimated their damage at $100,000. They said they did not know whether or not the stock was covered by insurance. Max Copeland, head of the firm, lives in Baltimore and could not be reached for an estimate.

The first alarm was turned in at 5:04 o'clock by F. H. Middledorf, of 530 Taylor street. In his excitement, Mr. Middledorf cut his hand slightly when he broke the glass on the alarm box. The last alarm was rung at 5:26, and by 6:15 the blaze was well in hand.

Spontaneous Combustion Blamed.

Although firemen could not definitely agree on the cause of the conflagration, it was understood that spontaneous combustion was to blame.

A number of workmen were on lower floors of the building, but none knew of the fire until the engines arrived.

The same property is said to have burned three or four times within the last few years.

CAPITAL CREDIT MEN ELECT COMMITTEES

Frank W. White Appointed National Councilor for Organization.

TRACTION REPORTS OUT

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Declines from the month a year ago and the first half of 1929 are shown in the June statements of operation of the Capital Traction and Washington Rapid Transit Cos. filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission. Net income of the traction company for June, 1930, was $40,884.32, a decrease of $8,213.60 from the month last year. Its net for the first six months of the current year is $269,091.28, which is $61,207 off from the corresponding period last year.

Income balance of Washington Rapid Transit Co. for last month a deficit of $2,500.44 as compared with one of $508.15 for June, 1929. That for the year to June 30 reveals a deficit of $3,728.07 against a surplus of $12,816.20 for the similar comparative period last year.

Charles W. Clayton, president of the Washington Association of Credit Men, announced yesterday standing committee personnel for the new administrative year, Frank W. White, National Electric Supply Co., being appointed national councilor.

B. & O. Shows Coaches With Lunch Counters

Baltimore, July 29 (A.P.).—A reclining seat car, with a lunch counter and smoking rooms for both men and women, was displayed today by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad here along with other new equipment built at the local Mount Clare shops. Four of the new coaches, it was announced, will take the places of the usual day coaches on the night trains on the New York-Washington route.

The women's smoking compartment, at the opposite end of the car from the men's, is equipped with arm chairs. The lunch counter, it was announced, will serve sandwiches, coffee and soft drinks.

Other new equipment displayed a new air-cooled dining car, sleeping cars with thirteen individual rooms and an improved type of coach built by the Pullman Co.

EDISON CANDIDATE ON WAY TO TESTS

tomorrow before a board of examiners headed by Lewis Perry, principal of Exeter Academy.

Other members of the board are William Lowe Bryan, president of the University of Indiana; George Eastman, Harvey S. Firestone, Henry Ford, and Dr. Hubert S. Howe. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who served last year, recently declined Mr. Edison's invitation to serve again this year.

The boys are to be welcomed at the Edison Laboratories today by Henry Lanahan, general counsel, and after a brief inspection tour of the laboratories, they will be entertained at a luncheon on the lawn at Glenmont, the Llewellyn Park estate of the Edisons, who will be assisted in entertaining the youths by N. C. Durand and L. W. McChesney, vice presidents of the Edison Co.

To Dine and Dance Tonight.

Fifty-two of the "most refined" and, unofficially, most beautiful of last season's girl graduates from high schools of all the Oranges and Maplewood will dine and dance with the young candidates tonight at the Rock Spring Country Club. The girls were invited by the Chamber of Commerce.

Wilbur Huston, who won Edison's first scholarship last year, will be present today when the boys first meet the famous inventor. He has now finished the first year of his scholarship at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Mr. Edison will have an opportunity to pass upon the progress made by his protege.

Young Roop graduated this summer from Central High School. Until shortly before his graduation he was a delivery boy and collector for The Washington Post, but terminated that work in order to prepare for his entrance at Princeton in the fall.

Always Interested in Science.

His interests always have dwelt along scientific lines, his father said last night, and, although he was one of the "honor students" with 100 per cent marks in all his grades at school, his outstanding work was in his chemistry and physics classes.

He was deeply interested in military affairs, and was a first lieutenant in the High School Cadet Corps. He returned only last week from the cadets' encampment at Camp Simms.

Young Roop also was an enthusiastic boatman and was a member of the Capital Yacht Club, and a boatswain in the Sea Scouts. For several years he has been the enthusiastic owner of a small sailing vessel, in which he was an expert navigator.

He is a competent musician, playing the clarinet in the Central High School Orchestra, and also in a private orchestra, as a member of which he played for the Sunday evening motion pictures at All Souls' Church.

Forest Fire Threatens Tract in Monongahela

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., July 29.—Forest rangers summoned 50 additional volunteers today to assist in fighting a serious forest fire raging the last three days in the Dobbins Slashing section of Tucker County. Fifty other fire fighters had previously been taken to the scene.

The fire, which has gained big headway and is out of control, threatens to spread into the Monongahela National Forest Preserve.

MARYLAND ADOPTS VOTING LAW CHANGE

Bill Altering Registration Dates Passed as Favor to Jewish Voters.

RELIGIOUS FETES FACTOR

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., July 29.—Without the slightest ripple of discord the Maryland General Assembly in special session today passed a law providing changes in dates for registration of voters, thereby preventing disfranchisement of thousands of Jewish voters in the State.

The legislative machinery was speeded up to enact the emergency measure. The bill was introduced, referred to committee, passed under suspension of rules and sent to the governor for his approval. Scarcely more than an hour was required to consummate the whole proceedings. The action was entirely in harmony with the suggestions of Gov. Ritchie. The assembly also passed an emergency appropriation to cover expenses of the one-day session which, it is estimated, will be between $8,000 and $9,000. There was no occasion for delay, as the whole proposition was in the nature of a cut-and-dried affair, as it was explained by the governor in a message which required less than ten minutes to read at a joint meeting of both branches.

The registration will be conducted on September 16 and 17 and October 9 and 16, with October 17 set apart as a day for revision. The registration dates fixed by a law passed several years ago were September 23 and 24 and October 7 and 8, but it developed that these dates fell at the time of the Jewish celebrations of their New Year and Feast of the Tabernacles, respectively.

Editor Dons Sandals For Winchester Visit

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., July 29.—W. O. Saunders, Elizabeth City, N. C., editor who startled New York by appearing in pajamas on Fifth avenue, breezed into town today wearing his famous yellow pongee pajamas, Roman gladiator sandals and ankle length socks. Unlike New York bluecoats local police did not arrest him for disorderly conduct, but complimented him on his efforts to keep cool with shaded street thermometers still hugging 100.

The former editor of Collier's was here with A. T. Stroud, native North Carolinian, now of New York, as guests of former Gov. Harry F. Byrd.

Demurrers in Glassman Liquor Case Sustained

Holding in effect that the immunity guaranteed under the National Prohibition Act to persons who give evidence in liquor-law violations does not include documentary evidence, Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat in District of Columbia Supreme Court yesterday sustained demurrers filed by the Government to pleas in bar of trial filed on behalf of Herbert Glassman, who with twelve other men, is under indictment on a charge of conspiracy to violate the eighteenth amendment.

Glassman claimed through Attorney Alvin L. Newmyer that his interests had been prejudiced by the presentation to the grand jury that returned the indictment of canceled checks drawn on a local bank by the defendant. Newmyer claimed that canceled checks held at a bank belong to the depositor but the ruling of Chief Justice did not take in that point.

Norfolk & Western Appoints New Solicitor

Roanoke, Va., July 29 (A.P.).—Norfolk & Western Railway officials announced here today that Whitwell W. Coxe, of this city, has been appointed general solicitor for the railroad to succeed J. Hallton Chester, former assistant general solicitor, who resigned recently to become connected with the Pennsylvania system.

Officials also announced that the legal department now maintained in Philadelphia would be moved to Roanoke when the general office building here is completed.

Alleged Crash Hurts Basis of $25,000 Suit

Mary A. Young, of Columbus, Ohio, filed suit yesterday in District of Columbia Supreme Court seeking to recover $25,000 from Justine Crosser, of 2440 Sixteenth street northwest, as the aftermath of an automobile crash last September 16.

The plaintiff alleges that she suffered permanent injuries when the automobile operated by the defendant collided with the motor vehicle in which she was riding. The accident, according to the declaration of suit, occurred in the Department of Agriculture grounds. Attorney Alvin L. Newmyer appears for the plaintiff.

Eczema on Boy's Head Lasted Ten Years. Healed by Cuticura.
"Eczema started first in a round spot about the size of a dime on my boy's head. Gradually it spread and finally covered the top of his head. It itched badly and when he scratched sore eruptions formed. The trouble lasted ten years.
"I used everything I heard of but nothing helped him. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. Later I purchased more and in a short time he was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Virginia E. Golder, 833 Vine St., Baltimore, Md.

CANADA'S ELECTION.

The Canadian upset illustrates an old political adage: Hard times bear hardest on the party in power. The Canadian government has been in the hands of the Liberal party for upwards of nine years. It was generally believed prior to Monday's election that the chances of the Conservatives were slim. But the tabulated vote shows that the Conservatives gained far more than the number of seats required to control the government. Even in the Liberal stronghold, Quebec, they won a smashing victory.

The campaign was waged on the issues of tariff protection, unemployment and the farm problem. Of these, the latter two are false issues and the question of a protective tariff was hardly a valid issue in that both parties espoused it in one form or another. It may be that the Liberal departure from its traditional free-trade policy in the interest of political expediency had a bad effect on the voter. The switch was made palpably as a bid for support when a hue and cry against the American tariff was raised; the voter, as a rule, does not like a straddler and the Liberal espousal of limited protection was indubitably a straddle. But so far as unemployment and the farm problems were concerned, the blame, as is always the case, fell upon the party in power despite the fact that that party had guided Canada through many years of prosperity and the fact that neither unemployment nor the farm problem is susceptible, except to a very limited degree, to adjustment by the government or by politicians.

The Canadian election points a lesson to the Republican party. The Democratic party unquestionably will attempt to inject economic subjects into the forthcoming campaign. They will blame the administration for the evil days that descended upon America following the stock market collapse last autumn, carefully avoiding mention of the facts that the Republican party guided the country through many prosperous years, and that under its direction an effective campaign to counterbalance the threatened depression was got under way and prosecuted to a point where a successful conclusion no longer can be doubted. It would be well if an effort were made to disclose the falsity of such issues before they are made the dominating factor in the campaign. The forthcoming campaign should be confined to true issues. The Canadian upset may be considered a warning. It shows the need for a strongly organized, militant, expertly-guided Republican party.

PHOENIX.

Seismologists are saying that the recent earthquake broke the geological backbone of Italy, but it can in no sense be said to have broken the backbone of the Italian people. The inhabitants of stricken areas have faced the ordeal with patience and fortitude. Italy has declined offers of outside aid, and has promptly furnished to the sufferers all possible relief. The work of rescue has hardly been completed, but reconstruction has already begun.

Roads have been repaired so that food and other necessities can be taken into all the distressed areas. Water systems have been repaired, and homes that were not completely destroyed are being reconditioned. The people are gradually returning, and reverting their attention to the harvest.

Such an appalling loss of life can never be said to be a blessing. Nevertheless, this disaster has made vast improvements possible. Where towns were demolished new and more accessible sites are being selected. Areas that are less susceptible to temblors of the future are being surveyed by engineers. Instead of building with huge stones and not much mortar, every effort will be made to have the new houses earthquake proof. Out of the ruins will rise more prosperous communities than this section of Italy has ever known.

The Chicago fire prepared the way for the magnificant Chicago skyline of today. The San Francisco earthquake stimulated the people to build a finer and more beautiful city. In the hum-drum of routine events no community realizes its fullest possibilities. But when aroused by a major catastrophe people have a habit of turning disaster into advantage. There is much in such spectacles as these to justify the old adage which advises one who seeks achievement to welcome adversity.

DIPLOMATIC COURTESY.

When a citizen undertakes to lecture a diplomat representing a foreign nation in Washington, he succeeds only in making himself ridiculous and in embarrassing his own government. The law of diplomatic immunity is everywhere recognized and upheld. It is one of the fundamentals of international relationship. When a fanatical devotion to the prohibition law leads an American citizen to assault that principle, the country feels obligated to apologize for him.

Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, at whom the insult was directed, has shown a disposition to make nothing of it. Doubtless he discounts the effrontery by considering its unofficial source. The British Ambassador is not amenable to the laws of the United States. The embassy is essentially British territory and subject to British law.

American representatives sent to foreign capitals are expected to remain Americans. Diplomatic courtesy and custom so demand. The same consideration demands that Sir Ronald Lindsay be allowed to remain British without being accused of showing disrespect for the Constitution. The boomerang of public opinion that has been directed at the author of this letter should be a lesson to citizens who in the future are tempted to lay dignity and common sense aside.

LEFT TURNS.

The skids are greased for shooting the rotary left turn into the discard. Washington and Cleveland are the only two large cities in which this turn is used and in the interest of uniformity it is held desirable to adopt the turn specified in the set of model traffic regulations. The greater safety of the rotary turn is proved by the favorable place occupied by Washington in the traffic casualty lists, but it can not be denied that the rotary turn retards the even and expeditious flow of traffic and that it is confusing to the many visiting motorists who are in Washington at all times.

The left turn specified in the model regulations starts from the center instead of from the outside of the street; it is made on the green light and offers the authorities the option of specifying a turn around or inside the button located at the exact center of the intersection. If the rotary turn is abandoned, the turn short of the button should be substituted in its place.

Theoretically, the rotary turn offers the fewest number of points where streams of traffic cross one another. The inside turn presents the next fewest and the turn around the button the largest number. From the standpoint of points of conflict the inside turn is preferable to the outside. Moreover, the inside turn permits a sweeping maneuver of the vehicle. It is technically improper to force the driver of a vehicle as heavy and as bulky as an automobile to make a short, sharp, right-angled turn if he can be allowed to make a sweeping turn without increasing street hazards.

COLORADO RIVER DISPUTE.

When Congress was debating the Black Canyon Dam bill a year and a half ago the late Representative Leatherwood suggested that it ought to be designated: "A bill to guarantee to the landowners in Mexico not less than 4,000,000 acre-feet of water in regulated flow from the Colorado River." Congress ignored the report of the Sibert Board of Engineers which urged that an agreement with Mexico on division of the Colorado waters be concluded before the Black Canyon Dam was authorized. Now it has appropriated $10,000,000 to begin the work in spite of the fact that it seems impossible to conclude an agreement with Mexico that would be satisfactory to the States chiefly concerned in the project.

The commissions appointed from Washington and Mexico City to settle the disputes over the Colorado, Rio Grande and Tia Juana Rivers did not even get close to an agreement. Inasmuch as nearly all the water of the Colorado is drained from the United States, the American section advanced the theory that Mexico has no rights whatever to it. As a matter of "comity and friendship" the American section proposed that Mexico be allowed annually the largest amount of water that country has ever taken from the Colorado in any one year in the past. This would be in accordance with the doctrine of prior appropriation. Mexican lands already cultivated by use of this water would continue to be supplied, but expansion would be impossible.

On the other hand, Mexico considers the river an international stream—because it forms the boundary for 18 miles, and runs exclusively through Mexican territory for 100 miles—and insists that it be developed as a common source of wealth. On this basis Mexico would be warded 3,480,000 acre-feet of water and the United States 13,920,000. The offer made by the American section would give Mexico only 750,000 acre-feet. There is not enough water in the river to allow development of all the irrigable land within its reach. The question is: Shall all future development of the river basin be confined to the United States or divided between the two countries on a proportionate basis?

Possibility of an early agreement seems to be dim. The States of the Colorado River Basin, except Arizona, have entered into a compact on the assumption that they own all the water. California and Arizona have not yet agreed upon division of their allotment, and the latter State is preparing a suit to prevent construction of the dam. When Mexico's legitimate rights are recognized, other States may discover that they acted too hastily in ratifying the flimsy and indefinite compact upon which the whole project rests.

The American negotiators do not presume to hold rigidly to their theory that Mexico has no rights in the waters of the Colorado, because they are also confronted with a settlement on the Rio Grande. In that case the situation is reversed. Two-thirds of the water drawn from the Rio Grande by farmers of Texas arises in Mexico. If they are to be protected by the doctrine of prior appropriation, the Mexican interests drawing water from the Colorado must also be so protected. Nevertheless, this principle works to the disadvantage of Mexico, because the American lands drawing water from Mexico are now well developed, while most of the Mexican lands for which water from the Colorado is desired are not yet under cultivation.

In spite of this situation, Mexico holds a whip hand. If the Black Canyon Dam is completed, the generation of power will regulate the flow of the river the year round. This would greatly increase the water flowing into Mexico during the season when it is most needed for irrigation. Agricultural expansion is now limited because about all of the low-water flow is used. But if the flow were regulated, rapid expansion would be possible. In the absence of an agreement, who could say that such newly cultivated lands should not acquire rights under the doctrine of prior appropriation; for it is well known that this new supply of water can not be put to agricultural use on the American side for many years.

As these loose ends of the Black Canyon Dam project are brought to light it assumes more than ever the outline of a white elephant.

UNITED STATES OF EUROPE

From the London Times.

The British reply to M. Briand's proposals for the federation of Europe is necessarily of a tentative and preliminary nature—the need to consult the dominions fully would alone prevent an immediate decision—but enough is said to show that the scheme, as it was enunciated by M. Briand in his circular dispatch of May 17, is not likely to obtain very cordial support from his majesty's present government—nor, indeed, it may safely be added, from any other British government. Any attempt to divert the attention of European governments away from their differences, and to direct it upon their common interests, must, of course, always command the sympathy of this country, whose greatest interest is peace. But whether the method chosen by M. Briand is really well calculated to achieve that purpose is extremely doubtful. The new bodies which he would set up—as is pointed out in the British memorandum—could derive no organic authority from the covenant or from any part of the Treaty of Versailles; and their relation to the League of Nations might easily be ambiguous and embarrassing. There may of course be certain technical matters on which the countries of Europe may profitably create fresh machinery for achieving more promptly and more directly settlements of interstate difficulties. Any proposals to this end will no doubt be fully debated at Geneva when the assembly of the league meets there in September. His majesty's government expresses a preference for "open discussion;" and the assembly offers the further great advantage that it is attended by representatives of all the dominions and of India.

The replies of most European states have by now reached Paris. In every case they are favorable to the principle; almost as invariably they make reservations; and it is difficult to say at present which will ultimately prove to be the more important, the general agreement or the particular objections.

It is probably not without significance that among the states which have been laggard in replying are two which, like Germany, were among the vanquished in the war, and which are not entirely satisfied with the consequent territorial settlements. There can be little doubt that the states which are not contented with their present frontiers see in M. Briand's plan, in effect if not in intention, the imposition of a permanent rigidity upon present territorial arrangements. It would indeed be a paradoxical consequence if the discussions at Geneva were to raise the issue of existing frontiers, or of the rigid dogma of the protocol, and thus entirely to defeat their purpose of promoting European unity.

It would be idle to duplicate the work of the League of Nations. And it would be positively harmful to create any body which might be regarded as antagonistic to any other state or group of states. All countries in their replies insist that there must be no interference with national sovereignties; and their reservations constitute in all a formidable list of prohibitions. The first process in the discussion of M. Briand's project might profitably be the elimination of proposals which are likely to do more harm than good; the residue, which may not be inconsiderable, may perhaps usefully be adapted to the formation of a sort of European committee within the League of Nations.

A little shifting of one's position and what a change of scene!

Literature is the great cerulean over the landscape of life.

Vanished without record is for the most part the past, like the wake of a ship, wave-swallowed. Only that in it which is not past remains, some surviving worth.

The world moves away from the standpoint of its standards, continually needing new ones.

We err not in our argument so much as in what we omit therefrom—in our premises rather than in our reasoning.

WE START FOR THE COTTAGE.

Candlesticks, blankets and sheets,
Carpets and flatirons and shoes,
Pile up the floor and the seats
With things which in town we can't use.
A trunk or two strapped on the rear,
Three suitcases tied to the side,
There's a broomhandle close to my ear!
It's a wonderful day for the ride!

Goldfish, canary and dog,
Canned goods to last us till fall,
A poker to stir up the log,
A punch bowl we won't use at all.
"Good stuff for the cottage," she cries.
Bridge prizes she won't throw aside,
Three rugs, six by nine is the size,
It's a wonderful day for the ride!

Eight baskets of ellies and jams,
We can pack it all in if we try,
Books, records, a cake and a ham,
A truck is a thing I should buy.
Liniments, lotions and pills,
A chair—and the paint hasn't dried—
A box for receipts and the bills.
It's a wonderful day for the ride.

Molasses and oilcloth and plants,
Shelf-paper, towels and screens,
Stuff to discourage the ants.
Frying pans, clocks and tureens,
Pack it in, stack it in high,
Be sure that each bundle is tied,
Now for the cottage we'll try.

The Hound Sneaks Behind the House If the House Is a Mean Log Cabin

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

PICTURE a boy of 18 who has finished high school or quit without a diploma. He knows that he can not attend college without working his way through. He has no ambition. He can not or will not find a job. He has no money except the occasional dimes and quarters wheedled from his reluctant parents. His associates are the idle and the worthless.

I have known many such boys. They are to be found in every community. And every one of them is condemned and scorned by thoughtless adults.

"He is no good," people say, "just a lazy, trifling, good-for-nothing loafer who will end in jail."

Perhaps the prophecy is true; yet most of these boys are as intelligent and as decent as their critics and would become respectable citizens if properly handled.

A boy of that age is a dreamer and an idealist. He is full of sensitive pride. He resents restraints and is eager to prove his manhood.

If he "goes to the bad" it is not for lack of restraint or instruction, but because he lacks background or responsibility.

If he has a normal home life and a family of which he can be proud he absorbs from these a self-respect that saves him.

If he has a widowed mother to support, or other responsibility to develop a sense of duty, he becomes a man quickly.

But if no responsibility is thrust upon him and some flaw in his background shames his sensitive pride and causes him to feel inferior to the people he passes on the street he will lose heart and hope and find associates among the worthless where he can feel at ease.

The fault is not his—not one time in ten.

And because the fault is not in him, but in his environment and his background, he needs only a new environment to save himself.

The boy who will not try at home because he is the son of the town drunkard will fight tooth and nail to surpass youngsters of his own age in another town that calls him "Mister."

THE ONCE OVER

SUMMER AMBITIONS.

I'd like to be a polar bear
And loll on icebergs blue—
And not do very much of that Unless I wanted to.

I'd like to be a playful seal,
Quite cool and full of vim—
And never have to change my clothes
When going for a swim!

To be a walrus on a field
Of floating ice? How fine!
And never move a single inch
Through any fault of mine!

I sometimes wish I were a duck,
To fly North when it's hot,
And quickly fly far South again
In winter when it's not!

These days I very often feel
I'd like to be a fish,
With not a single thing to do
But hear my body swish!

To be an oyster must be swell—
The life is hard to beat;
Nobody slaps one on the back
And talks about the heat!

The little round clam leads a life
Quite advantageous, too;
Down where it lives no one pipes, "Is
It hot enough for you?"

The flounder, so it seems to me,
Knows how to pick and choose—
Its summer problems don't include
The cleaning of white shoes!

In torrid weather such as this
I'd be a leg of mutton
Upon the ice far from the boss
Who summoned me by button!

BUT CAN HE SEW AND KNIT?

A woman won the King's Cup and the rifle shooting championship of the British Empire, defeating the crack shots of the British army and navy. This, coming on top of Miss Amy Johnson's defeat of the empire's best aviators the other day, would seem to indicate that an Englishman is safe these days only in claiming to be an ideal home-builder and a good cook.

Sir Thomas Lipton's fifth Shamrock is on the way to this country. Good luck to her. Sir Thomas is at least going after the cup with a ship, not a flotilla.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Among the Misnamed States Stands Washington.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The idea of Correspondent Samuel Russell that the names of West Virginia, Arkansas, North and South Dakota, North and South Carolina should be changed so as to give them more distinction reminds me that there is a State, not very long since christened, whose name was chosen with very little regard for suitability.

I refer to the State of Washington. To guess how sentiment got the best of common sense in its naming is too much for me. Strange that there was no one to point out the obvious folly involved in selecting a name in constant use to designate "the seat of the Government of the United States."

The name "Washington" is not only specially applied to the Federal City, but indeed stands for "the District of Columbia" in common practice. So that calling the new State "Washington" was in effect very much like naming it after another State.

And observe how it works. A Washingtonian is known the world over as a resident of the Capital of the United States. When a citizen of Washington—that is, a citizen of Washington State—calls himself a Washingtonian only the folks back home know what he means.

Indeed, considering the confusion resulting from this duplication of names, it does seem unfortunate that the Board on Geographic Names was not consulted before the christening of the young Commonwealth.

CHRIS HARPER.

The Sage of Coeur d'Alene Again Speaks—This Time on Presidents vs. Kings.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A writer in the American Mercury says that the Presidency is increasing in prestige and in the concept of individual rule; also that America is rapidly evolving into a monarchy, in fact if not in theory. If what he says is true I do not lament a growth in the prestige and power of the Presidency, although I would lament a hereditary monarchy.

Rulership should conserve only one thing—the good of the people. A hereditary monarchy can not do this, for sons rarely inherit the genius of their fathers.

The ideal government is that of a real king, appointed king for life. The best thing for this or any country would be to have men of kingly type as rulers. A man wise and magnanimous enough to be appointed king would desire the office to cease in his family if none therein were worthy to succeed him.

The aim of a democracy should be to have the best man rule, and to have him rule so long as he is capable of ruling wisely and well. There is no real reason why a great and good American President should not rule for life. Four years, or even eight, is all too short a time for a great man to put his policies into effect. At any rate, while a President is President, he should be master. The Congress should act merely as an advisory body. Counsel is many headed, but authority is one.

CHARLES HOOPER.

Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, July 21.

"Dog Days" and Sirius, the Dog Star.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Last winter the sun Sirius was scintillating brilliantly in the evening sky. Now Sirius is scintillating brilliantly in the morning sky. It rises about the same time as our own sun. Formerly it was supposed to influence midsummer's heat. Accordingly, the hottest time in the year was called "dog days."

The so-called "dog days" began on the 25th of July. Throughout August they will be with us. They will end on the 5th day of September. However, dog-day weather does not always occur during "dog days." Sometimes in August we are very comfortable. Bluish-white Sirius, one of the nearest suns of night, is approximately, nine light years distant. Therefore, we do not feel its rays like we do those of our sun. Our sun is distant only 490 seconds.

Objects to "Insult" to President Hoover.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While attending a local theater today an incident occurred which left a very bad taste in my mouth. Comments were made very freely by others sitting near me.

A picture was on the screen showing President Hoover signing the London Naval Treaty recently concluded, after which he made a speech concerning same. Before he finished, however, the curtain was jerked across his face in a very rude and abrupt manner.

There was absolutely no reason for this, as the audience sat in silence for ten minutes after the incident waiting for several hundred soldiers to be seated. The impression on the soldiers at the treatment of their commander in chief, I leave to your imagination.

Says Old Capitol Prison Was at First and East Capitol Streets 48 Years Ago, and Not at First and A.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I saw in your Sunday Magazine Section a picture of the Old Capitol Prison, formerly the old Brick Capitol. The prison was, however, at the southeast corner of First and East Capitol streets when I was a boy and was called "Carroll Prison." It was torn down about 48 years ago. Years afterward the Library of Congress was built where Pennsylvania avenue came through from the Capitol Grounds. I saw this prison torn down, and some of the boys are living on the Hill yet who remember the old prison well. I have lived on the Hill 50 years, in the same neighborhood.

Scotch Moors Are Calling To Americans

Mr. and Mrs. Stead Sail to Be Guests in Castle of Hendersons.

FOR a number of years smart American society has been taking itself annually to Europe. Usually to Paris or to some watering place of the continent. Now a number of people have decided that the out-of-door life and invigorating sports of the more northern countries offer more diversion.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Stead will sail tonight on the Aquitania to pass several weeks abroad. They will go immediately from England to Glasgow, Scotland, where they will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Henderson, at their home near that city where they will lead the life of real Scotch country folk.

Mrs. Henderson was, before her marriage several years ago, Miss Dorothy Yates, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Richard Yates. The Hendersons have restored one of the old castles in that part of the country, and make their home there the year round with the exception of a few weeks in the winter when they go to Glasgow. At other times they entertain house parties for grouse shooting on the Scottish moors, deep in heather, and hung with cool mists. At other seasons there is deer hunting and again salmon fishing, and always the national game—golf.

Mrs. Henderson was a close friend of Mrs. Lewis Booth, of New York, formerly Miss Elizabeth Stead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stead. Mrs. Booth was among the attendants at the wedding of Mrs. Henderson.

Henrys Are Motoring Toward Canada.

The Chief of Cavalry and Mrs. Guy V. Henry are motoring through New Hampshire and Canada, having left Washington on Monday. Their daughter, Miss Mary Ingram Henry, has gone to Montana, where she will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Corette at Swan Lake.

Mrs. George Mesta, who is passing the summer at her villa at Newport, is attending the races at Saratoga and is staying at the United States.

With her for several days this week will be Mrs. John A. Hull and Mrs. Frank C. Letts, who were the honored guests at a luncheon given by Mrs. Mesta yesterday at the Saratoga Club.

Mrs. David Hunt Blair has returned to her apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel after passing some time in Winston-Salem, N. C. Mr. and Mrs. Blair's son, David Hunt Blair, jr., will leave today for Camp Overall, near Luray, Va., for the summer.

Senor Eugenio J. Chevalier has been appointed secretary to the presiding commissioner of the United States and Mexican Claims Commission, Dr. Horacio Alfaro. Senor and Senora Chevalier will leave Washington on Saturday for Mexico City.

Mrs. Richard Amphlett, of England, and her three children, Mary, Richard, and Caroline, will sail from England on August 9 on the Baltic for this country.

They will come to Washington on their arrival to visit Mrs. Amphlett's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fielding Lewis Marshall, for about six weeks. Before her marriage to the late Maj. Amphlett, of the British army, Mrs. Amphlett was Miss Mary Marshall, of Washington. Her husband was killed in the late war. This will be the first visit of the two younger children to this country.

Silver Stein Presented To Mr. Marriner.

Mr. J. Theodore Marriner, chief of the western European division of the State Department, will sail on Friday aboard the Leviathan for Europe bearing the American instrument of ratification of the London naval treaty for deposit in the archives of the foreign office at London.

Several of Mr. Marriner's State Department colleagues recently presented him with a rare antique as a tribute to his work. It is a large and beautifully designed silver stein.

Mrs. George W. Evans has returned to Washington from an extended visit with Dr. and Mrs. Rufus L. Allen, at their estate, Columna, Waynesville, N. C.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. R. Hitt are at the Ambassador in New York.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Winthrop S. Wood, with their sister, Miss N. P. Culler, have returned to their apartment in the Highlands, after a motor trip to West Point, N. Y., where they spent several days visiting their son, Cadet Paul Douglas Wood. On their return they visited friends in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Fenton Bradford has closed her apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel and gone to New York for a visit.

Mrs. George E. Bowen, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Andrew Betz, has left for her home in Salt Lake City.

Fifth Ave. Fashions NEW YORK

552

Paris favors plaits, particularly the kilted plaits that are so easily pressed in place.

You'll like this model because of its simple smartness and practicality.

It's the choice of all smart young things for active and spectator sports.

The plaits, stitched to a depth of a yoke, gives tightened hipline the mode demands.

Style No. 552 may be had in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. The medium size takes but 3½ yards of 36-inch material with ⅝ yard of 36-inch contrasting.

It's a type that lends itself perfectly to cotton or silk pique, shantung, pastel flat washable crepe, sheer or heavier weight linen and cotton or silk striped shirting that are so entirely fashionable for general daytime wear.

Price of pattern 15 cents. Address Fashion Dept., Washington Post, 259 Fifth Ave., New York City.

Lady Lindsay Departs for Long Island

With Ambassador May Spend September at Newport.

Lady Lindsay, wife of the British Ambassador, has left Washington for Long Island, where she will pass some time visiting. Lady Lindsay has been ill for some time, and had not expected to leave town so soon. She will remain away until the middle of September.

It is reported that the Ambassador and Lady Lindsay have taken a cottage at Newport for part of September to be there for the annual yacht races, in which Sir Thomas Lipton, veteran skipper, will pilot his Shamrock V.

"The Mill Round Table" will be the subject of the final entertainment of the Arts Club's summer season and will take place tomorrow evening in the club garden, following the last club dinner of the summer. Short stories, which have been written throughout the year by Arts Club members, will be read and criticisms will be invited, the comment to be led by Mr. Lewis Mohleyway. Mr. James True, the conductor of the Arts Club "Mill," will be the evening's host.

While there will be no further entertainments until it opens formally again on the first Tuesday in September, the club's garden will be open to its members and their guests. This green and shady retreat has been a boon to members during these warm July evenings, and the club management has decided to have it remain open for the enjoyment of members during August.

HIDE IN THE DARK

By FRANCES NOYES HART
Author of "The Bellamy Trial"

Time: All-Hallows Eve.
Place: Lady Court, an old manor house south of Washington.
Cast of Characters.

Lindy Marsden, lonely, lovely, a dark-eyed romanticist, and mistress of Lady Court.

Doug King, hilarious and jovial, the life of every party and the founder of the March Hares.

Neil Sheridan, sleek, dark, highly successful in his career as a lawyer and husband of Trudi, wise, witty and chic, with all the ease of manner of a grand duchess and the lack of manners of a fishwife.

Chatty Ross, small, gay, blindly adoring wife of Tom Ross, the least successful man in the room, shabby and sensitive among his wealthy friends.

Hanna Dart, a gentle lady, immaculately beautiful, whose reserve masks a deep affection for her husband.

Gavin Dart, a rather tired and immensely successful business man of 50, with shrewd, dark eyes and steel-gray hair.

Ray Hardy, the youngest member of the party, not long married and overwhelmingly in love with

Joel Hardy, her charming and irresistible husband, who has not grown five minutes older in the last ten years.

Jill Leighton, graceful and gracious, stepsister of that legendary Sunny. She believed girl whose strange death ten years ago still lay like a shadow over the gay group.

Larry Redmond, an agreeable young banker, who cannot understand why Jill hates him.

Kit Baird, wanderer and adventurer in strange lands, who in his casual way does every romantic thing magnificently well.

THE STORY THUS FAR.

Thirteen gay revelers, calling themselves the March Hares, have gathered on Halloween at Lady Court, an old manor house. As the party gets under way, some one starts a graphophone. The record is "Underneath the Stars," Sunny's tune. Sunny herself, whom every one loved, having been drowned in Washington.

Kit entertains with a few songs. Lindy then tells him why she arranged the party. She confesses her love for him, proposes, while in another part of the house Larry proclaims his love to Jill. Outside a storm is raging, but the March Hares continue to make merry.

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY.

Even Hanna the sedate, and Jill the demure, were on their feet beating time to the idiotically infectious swing with a peal worth of a better tune. As for Douglas the irrespressible, he whooped, he howled, he pranced, he executed intricate little jig steps and abortive cadenzas with the abandon of a whirling dervish and a Pawnee Indian. It was a really memorable performance.

"Now we're all up, boys and girls, how about a dance? Just one, Lindy, because the night is young and so are we! The lights—the lights, and the music—that's us all over, isn't it? Just look at that old music box standing up on its hind legs rarin' to go; all right, boy, you and me both! Do your stuff—let's go!" He spun the handle, gave a professional twirl to the black disc and stepped back with a magnificent gesture of invitation.

"Boy, listen to that! They don't write music like that these days. 'Underneath the Stars'—to do do, dee daa—da! This is ours, Lindy; here's where we teach 'em how to dance!"

Lindy, her eyes black pools in the white terror of her face, pressed back against the sofa.

"No, no, Doug, I'm tired. No!"

"Chile, I don't even know how to spell 'no.' Come on, show this gawking crowd what the poetry of motion means. Attagirl! Jack-o-lanterns in the gardens glea-eaming——"

No one stirred—no one moved—they stood transfixed, the glasses still in their hands, the candle light in their hair, the music of Sunny's tune rising and falling about them as Doug swung by with Lindy in his arms. Swaying, circling, dipping to the old unforgotten tune—the old unforgotten words——

"Underneath the silver——"

It checked, wavered and swung off into space with a long, rasping cry as Kit Baird pushed the lever ruthlessly across the still-spinning disk and stood staring down at the long scar that it left in its wake. In the far corner of the room Doug King flung about on his heel.

"Who did that? You, Baird?"

"I, myself—in person," said Kit Baird, his eyes still on the disk.

"It's the second time that you've done it," said Douglas King, "and if you're asking me, it's twice too often."

At that Kit raised his eyes, and they were smiling.

"Do you know, for a moment I almost thought you'd forgotten. * * *" He came forward through the little group with his long, light step, his eyes still smiling. When he was a pace away, he stopped and dropped one gentle, detaining hand on Doug King's shoulder.

"Your mistake, old man. Didn't you hear her say that she was tired?"

In the silence that had fallen abruptly and appallingly over the great room, a strange voice rose—a voice thickened and coarsened beyond recognition.

"Take your hand from my arm, you——"

There was a small crash of splintering glass as Joel Hardy moved swiftly forward.

"Steady on there, King. This isn't a tavern."

Lindy, swaying very slightly, steadied herself by catching at Doug's free arm. She slipped her hand through it, smiling desperately up at him, and at the look in her eyes, Kit relaxed his grip abruptly.

"Doug, please—it's my fault. I signed to Kit to do it because I didn't feel as though I could dance—truly I was so tired. This is my party, Doug. You aren't going to spoil my party, are you? Kit, I do think that was rather rude."

Kit, his eyes never leaving her face, said carelessly and pleasantly, "It begins to look as though none of us will make the third grade. Shall I stand in the corner, Lindy?

"Not this time," Lindy's caressing voice was resolutely light. "Suppose you sit over there with Joel and Chatty and we all get at the porridge? Doug, you come over here with Hanna and me—you, too, Sherry Oh, no, Doug has to carve first—he's the butcher. The ham's in that little hamper there, and here's a nice sharp knife."

"Oh, Joel, look out, there goes that window."

Joel caught it just in time to save the flickering candles and from somewhere a door banged an answer, and another door, farther away still, echoed it with feeble violence. He turned a rain-spattered countenance back to the reassuring warmth of the fire, stopping to wring out a rain-soaked cuff.

"Gosh, what a night!" he laughed, with all the curious hilarity that a struggle with the elements engenders. "It's blowing a fair gale and raining like the last day of the deluge. Now, are we all set?"

Trudi remarked cavernously from the depths of the winged chair: "Jill, you don't want Larry and Gavin and Tom, do you? Well, then, suppose you keep Larry at the table and send Gavin and Tom over here. Just for the present you two boys can pretend that you're a pair of nice little lackamoors in red panties, busy as bees gathering honey for the Queen Mother. About seven more plates of that salad, I should say, and another pound or so of Doug's ham, Lindy, never in my born days did I eat anything to equal these biscuits."

She caught the glance of rapt gratutude tossed her by Jill, safely isolated in the shadows with Larry by these skillful maneuvers, wagged her head at them in mocking admonition and turned on the tranquil Hanna.

"Darling, don't those earrings give you megrims or something? I should think they'd double you right over. I don't believe they're healthy that size—I hope to heaven they aren't real. Sherry, you hope they aren't real, too, don't you?"

"I know darn well they're real," said Sherry. "And you can't scare me by talking jewelry, either, young woman. You take it out on shoes.'

"Boy, let me tell you that child spends enough for one shoe to keep a reasonable man in watches and chains for the rest of his life. I wish you'd get her to go in for something economical, like diamonds, the way the other girls do, Hanna."

Lindy murmured in her voice of moonlit languor, "Hanna has diamond shoebuckles. Gavin gave them to her for her birthday on the Starling last winter. You remember, Doug—it was just before we picked you up in Palm Beach. I was even more impressed with Hanna's buckles than Gavin's yacht. I do know people who have yachts, but I never even heard of one with diamond shoebuckles."

"Oh, Hanna, have you really got a yacht? With sails and sailors and cabins and decks and everything?" Chatty's eyes were pools of delight.

"Everything but a powder-monkey," proclaimed Doug.

"Hanna, does it sail everywhere? Is Gavin the captain? Oh, Lindy, were you on it? When were you on it?"

"We were cruising for almost four weeks, weren't we, Hanna? After we picked up Doug and those nice Hammonds in Palm Beach, I mean."

"Didn't it ever get rough?" asked Chatty breathlessly, "Didn't you ever get sick?"

"Oh, not ever—not even hardly ever. The water was like blue silk—wasn't it, Gavin? I couldn't bear it when we had to stop. Hanna, did they ever find out what made you so dreadfully ill that night at Port Limon?"

Hanna did not raise her eyes from her linked hands. She sat staring down at their long whiteness and the great square-cut diamond for a moment.

"No, not ever. I'd been feeling badly all that day from the heat and it may have been something that I ate, of course—or drank. It was a wretched way for me to wind up the trip."

"Hanna sick?" inquired Doug. "At Port Limon? How come no one told me?"

"Oh, Doug, we must have told you. It was the night after you transferred to the Panama boat," said Lindy. "We were absolutely terrified out of our wits, and there wasn't a doctor in the place, when we sent ashore, because there was some kind of an epidemic in San Jose. I'll never forget that nightmare of heat and noise and terror as long as I live. They were loading a fruit boat by torchlight and all the darkies were groaning out some kind of dreadful chanteys, and Gavin and I were sitting in that little cabin with our hands over our ears, not even daring to look at each other."

Hanna said, her eyes still on her hands, "Darling, you'd make measles sound dramatic. You weren't told, Doug, because—because there simply wasn't anything to tell." She pushed the plate before her aside, untasted, and rose to her feet. "D'you mind if I stand by the fire a minute and get warm?"

Ray, stirring drowsily protested. "Warm? Oh, Hanna, it's warmer than toast here now."

Hanna, spreading long fingers to the blaze, murmured, "I know—I know. It's absurd of me, but suddenly I felt—cold."

Lindy followed her with eyes dark with concern, murmuring under her breath, "Oh, Sherry, she's as white as a sheet. I'm an absolute idiot to have brought that up. She was desperately ill and apparently it upsets her to think about it."

Gavin Dart inquired pleasantly from the love seat near the fire, "Lindy, where is that murder story you promised us? I'm rather a connoisseur of murder. I believe that I have the best collection of nineteenth-century trials in the country."

"Oh, have you?" demanded Joel. "Good night, I didn't know that I'm a nut about it, too, though I go in more for detective stuff than trials. I know every way to bump a guy off that was ever invented, and I've thought of two new ones."

"You're to be congratulated. I'm not an expert on the literary side: reality's so much more brutally melodramatic than fiction that I don't go in much for anything else. I've rather specialized in police courts."

"Well, this place ought to suit you right down to the ground," commented Joel proudly. "Unless you're the victim or the coroner, you'll never be much nearer the scene of the crime than you are this minute If you turn your head about 2 inches, your eyes will encounter X, which marks the spot where the body fell."

"Here?" demanded Ray in stricken tones. "Here in this room? Where we're sitting?"

Lindy smiled faintly from her firelit corner.

"I'm afraid so. Where some of you are sitting at any rate. Sidney's knee-hole desk was right in front of the fire, if legend can be trusted—just about where the big sofa is now."

Ray, with a frenzied squeak of protest, hurled herself straight from her corner of the sofa into Joel's arms, where she was greeted with benignly patronizing murmurs of reassurance.

"Was it Sidney who was murdered?" inquired Gavin Dart, amiable but undeterred.

"Yes, it was Sidney—such a beautiful young man," murmured Lindy drowsily. "He wore a scarlet coat and a little white wig and an unholy smile in the corner of his eye. I fell in love with him when I was 6 and a second, and even now I know 'im for a graceless scamp and rogue, I love him just a little. Aunt Serena has the portrait. It hangs over the mantel in the white dining room. There's lace at his wrists and his eyes mock you from every corner of the room. He was my great-great-great-grandfather and a colonel in His Majesty's forces."

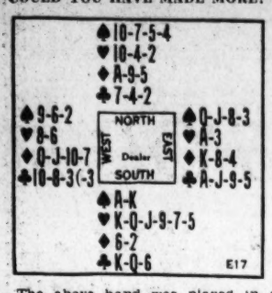
WORK ON BRIDGE

COULD YOU HAVE MADE MORE?



The above hand was played in a game of Contract. The bidding was: South three Hearts, West pass and North four Hearts which ended the contracting. South with five practically assured Heart tricks, two Spades, and one Club with the possibility of two, was quite right in olding three Hearts, and North with an Ace was justified in jumping to four.

At Auction South would have started with a bid of one Heart, and after two passes East might have bid one No Trump, although it always is dangerous to bid No Trump with only one stopper in the adverse suit and no suit to run. There also would have been the possibility of a double by East, but it would make no difference as South, holding a whale, would bid two Hearts.

When the hand was played, West led the Queen of Diamonds; dummy won and led a small trump. South won and continued the trump suit. East took the second trump and returned West's Diamond lead. South ruffed the third round of Diamonds and North then was put in the lead with the trump Ten to lead a Club. East played small, and South won the trick; but was obliged to lead from his two remaining Clubs and consequently to lose them both. So Declarer lost the Ace of trumps, one Diamond and two Clubs; as a result he failed to go game.

Could you have made more?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

After winning the first trick with the Ace of Diamonds, Declarer should have noted that his only chance for game was that East held the Ace of Clubs; and even with it located there the Club lead from dummy might not produce two tricks unless it could be repeated. So before leading a trump North should have led a Club. East, at that stage of the hand, might have played the Ace in the hope of catching a lone King in the South hand; but it was important for North to be able to lead twice if East sould fail to play the Ace.

With a Club led from North as soon as North won with the Ace of Diamonds, the adversaries would be unable to save game.

Identity Suit Filed In Mixed Baby Case

Guardian for Both Infants Asked; Chicago Hospital Inquiry Pends.

Chicago, July 29 (A.P.).—An investigation of maternity ward practices in all hospitals of Chicago stood as a possibility tonight as an outgrowth of the Bamberger-Watkins baby mixup. Alderman Thomas J. Bowler introduced a resolution in city council asking for such an inquiry as the result of the confused identity of two babies born June 30 at Englewood Hospital to Mrs. Charles Bamberger and to Mrs. William Watkins.

The case produced what is thought to be a legal departure today when a suit was filed by Mrs. Grace Dibrell, clubwoman, as "best friend" of the infant brought home by Mrs. Watkins, calling upon the court to decide whether the child is a Watkins or a Bamberger. The Engelwood Hospital, the Watkins and the Bambergers are made defendants. A suit against the hospital for $100,000 for "lost identity" has been prepared, but not filed, pending outcome of the other action.

Today's complaint asks that the court appoint a guardian for both babies.

Mrs. Thaden, Prominent Aviatrix, Mother of Son

Pittsburgh, July 29 (A.P.).—A son was born today to Mrs. Louise M. Thaden, nationally known as an aviatrix and wife of Herbert V. Thaden, aeronautical engineer, of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Thaden won the Women's Transcontinental AirDerby from Santa Monica to Cleveland last summer.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Organdy given real elegance with all-over embroidery, and then named "Katinka!" Thus this charming frock with its black satin ribbons. (Courtesy of Lenief, Paris.)

Paris, July 29.

BOO-HOO-O-O, and a lot of angry wails and almost-tears — and "They thought I was too dumb to know hand-made lace from silk lace!" sobbed Alana, telling me just another one of those shopping experiences that make shopping in Paris have flies 'n' spiders 'n' things in its honey 'n' amber.

Right away, sorta practical like (for once), I asked, "Did you sign a slip for the order?" Knowing, from sad experience, that when you do that, you have to take what you get, whether it's even remotely like what you ordered or not—or take six months or so off to explain to the "tribunal" (look up your French history) when they get around to you, why you don't take it. That is the reason that Americans buying merchandise in Paris have to be very careful whom they deal with.

My sincere advice to any one shopping in Paris is never to sign an order for anything, and to put up a very small deposit, if any, on whatever you do order. Simply say that if the garment is exactly like the one you order, and fits you besides, that you want it, otherwise you don't. If the people you are dealing with don't show the good faith in you that they should, you don't want to deal with them under any circumstances, anyhow.

So Alena dumped a millyun-dollahrs-woith of "hand-made" undies on the counter, and walked out of the store, to a stream of low down French abuse that didn't even ruffle one of her red curls—all she was mad about was that she had waited six weeks for the durn things, and din't have much more time to wait for new ones to be made somewhere else. Oh well!

Now, wouldn't it just be named "Katinka?" I laughed when I saw this name written out on the rough sketch Lenief sent us, laughed because it was so entirely descriptive of the dress, and so whimsical. As was indeed the dress itself, being of the most whimsical of all materials, white organdy, then embroidered all over in white, and finally given its dash of sophistication with its black satin ribbons.

How chic the modern youngster is! Hasn't it ever struck you that way? If not, I refer you to the family album!

I have just seen a picture of the wee Princess Elizabeth of England, and noted the simple little short-sleeved frock of printed gingham she was wearing, collared and cuffed in white—that for a princess. And a good indication, that of what constitutes good taste and real elegance in children's land.

If everybody liked parasols as I do, the milliners would soon go out of business. Because there is something so awfully convenient and refreshing about letting whatever breeze there is play through your curly or uncurly locks, the while you know there is no danger of getting freckled or sunburnt. Don't you think that "Katinka" might carry this long-handled and tiny parasol of printed linen?

There's always something to interest you in the weekly Dare fashion letter. It appears every Sunday in The Washington Post.

Au revoir!

Will Provides Candy for Children.

Philadelphia, July 29 (A.P.).—A $2,000 trust fund for purchasing Christmas candy for children of St. Michael's Lutheran Church at Sellersville, Pa., is among the charitable provisions made in the will of Maurice Clark, admitted to probate today. Mr. Clark died July 12.

No bulk disturbs your summer comfort because Kotex is made to fit

Kotex is lighter and cooler... and is carefully designed to eliminate all unnecessary bulk.

WARM weather... how disturbing to comfort on certain days ... if one didn't have Kotex!

Kotex is the sanitary pad that emancipated women from many old-time discomforts.

Kotex is lighter and cooler. Five times lighter than cotton, for the same amount of absorption. Cooler, because it is made up of many filmy layers, laid lengthwise, which permit free circulation of air.

These lengthwise layers carry moisture away from the surface. This leaves the surface soft and delicate, and prevents chafing.

Kotex deodorizes, too. And is completely disposable, just like tissue.

Don't think for a minute that other pads are "like" Kotex, just because they bear a certain exterior resemblance. Superficially, Kotex can be copied. But in the things that count, Kotex stands alone.

Made of unique substance

Kotex is not made of cotton, nor of any other usual material. It is made of Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding ... the same material used by 85% of our greatest hospitals to replace fine surgical cotton.

Isn't it wonderful that the absorbent chosen by famous hospitals is available to every woman in the United States? Kotex Company, Chicago, Ill.

KOTEX IS SOFT...

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, fleecy softness.

2—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.

3—Deodorizes ... safely, thoroughly, by a special process.

4—Disposable, instantly, completely.

Regular Kotex—45c for 12
Kotex Super-Size—65c for 12

CROWDER TO FACE GROVE IN SERIES OPENER TODAY

BERTHS IN PRO GOLF QUALIFYING CAPTURED BY BEACH AND THORN

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, July 29.—Mr. Jim Farley, the chairman of the New York Prize Fight Commission, is so courteous and patient under criticism, some of it erroneous, that I thought I would call on him and ask him why a man of his means and his commercial and political stature ever took the job in the first place and why he continues to serve as chairman of the New York commission without pay now that he knows the only reward of his service must be suspicion and abuse.

Curiously, I had never thought of going to headquarters for this information before, but had stood off, shying my share of chair legs and coble rocks at Mr. Farley, deducing his motives from his actions and his friendships, and finding much to deride. I had called him a politician, as he is, and a trimmer, as all politicians must be, and had made more or less merry for some years over his necessarily futile efforts to suppress the burglarious practices of a class of boys in whom cheating, stealing, shooting and safeblowing are natural instincts and no more to be suppressed, outside the walls of some big house, than a dog's instinct to chase a cat.

Learned Politics In the Elks.

Mr. Farley sits in a big, breezy office in one of those new buildings on the eastern reach of Forty-second street, a couple of blocks from Grand Central, overlooking the East River. It is a building supply company of which he is president, and I have heard tell that this tall, half-bald, up-country politician, who got his early experience in the Order of Elks, gets close onto $1,000 a week, indicating that he is somebody fairly substantial in the industrial way of life in New York.

On his walls are autographed photographs of his political god, Al Smith, and his demigod, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and some politi al banquet flashlights showing the gruesomely distorted faces which result from trying to take in too much territory with the single, fixed orb of a commercial camera. There was a small, bronze head of Al Smith, smiling, on his desk, and a brass mule for a paperweight which I presently identified as the emblem of his political allegiance.

There has been considerable fretting and scolding on the sports pages of New York and other cities lately, about the fouling and fixing in the ring and the bold stratagems of a small but daring coterie of former convicts who control the leading prize fighters of the day, either as their managers of record or through dummies. Myself, I had quite decided that there had been fakery of some kind in the recent lightweight championship bout in which Sammy Mandell lost the title to Al Singer at the Yankee Stadium, and I had been uneasily conscious of a sense of indignation over these matters.

Expect the Worst and Don't Be Wrong.

A writer should never allow himself to become indignant over anything that happens in the prize-fighting business because that suggests idealism. Expect the worst at all times and of all concerned and you will seldom be disappointed or caught unawares.

"Well," I said to Mr. Farley, "a man sees so much and hears so much that is sordid in the prize-fighting industry just now that I thought I would put it up to you. Do you think prize fighting is a sport and is it possible that you take this job of your seriously, smart as you seem to be, and no flattery intended?"

"It's more an amusement nowadays," said Mr. Farley. "I read the sports pages regularly and I see a lot of writing about the public being disgusted with the fighters and vowing never to go to the bouts again. But I think I talk to as many representative people as any one else does, and I don't hear much discontent. The fact is that nowadays when there is a big fight people want to go because their vanity is touched. Every barber within 100 miles of New York wants to be somewhere in the arena to see the fight so that he can talk about it to his customers for weeks afterward. The rich young executives of the town, the actors and other prominent people want to sit in the ringside rows to be recognized among those present.

People Vain About Such Things.

"Maybe the newspapers will mention them. People, even comparatively big people, are a little vain

Baltimorean's 67 Ties Record; Has 136 for 36 Holes.

Woodmont Pro Is 2d With 142 in U. S. Tourney Trial.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

RALPH BEACH, of the Suburban Club, Baltimore, and Arthur B. Thorn, of Woodmont, formerly of the Town and Country Club, were the fortunate golfers who yesterday won the right to compete in the annual championship of the Professional Golfers Association which will be played next September on the Fresh Meadow course at Flushing, Long Island. The competition yesterday was 36 holes, medal play, on the course of the Indian Spring Club.

The field yesterday numbered 24 golfers, representing the Middle Atlantic section, including Roland Hancock, of Lynchburg, Va., who came so near winning the national open championship at Olympia Fields but who, after a fine morning round of 73 yesterday, was out in 40 in the afternoon and picked up on the second nine.

Beach Wins by Margin Of 6 Strokes.

Beach, formerly with Chevy Chase and Burning Tree Clubs, easily outdistanced the entire field, winning by the wide margin of six strokes and playing two remarkable rounds, his morning score being 69, while in the afternoon he had a card of 67. His total of 136 was the best competition record for 36 holes ever made in this section and his 67 in the afternoon, when his ball hit the cup on the thirty-sixth hole for a 66, equaled the record of the course previously held by Miller B. Stevinson, the present District amateur champion, made in a qualifying round three years ago, and George J. Voigt in the Brightwood caddies' tournament last fall.

Thorn's victory was all the more unexpected because at the conclusion of the morning round he was in a tie with Roland Hancock and William Carson, East Potomac Park, for fifth place. He had finished with an apparently disastrous succession of 5s on the last four holes for a total of 73, while Beach and Warner Mather, Woodholme, had each scored 69, and Robert T. Barnett, Chevy Chase, and George Diffenbaugh, Indian Spring, each had 72.

Diffenbaugh and Mather In Fade-Out.

When the afternoon round began, Beach, Mather and Diffenbaugh were paired together, and naturally attracted a large gallery. Beach, out in 33, was holding his lead, so that the battle seemed to be between Mather and Diffenbaugh, the former having a three-stroke advantage at the start. When Diffenbaugh scored two birdies, narrowing the margin to one stroke, and when Mather sliced his ball from the ninth tee into a trap, the players were even, Diffenbaugh going out in 33, two under par, and Mather scoring 36.

Both Diffenbaugh and Mather faded out of the picture on the second nine. Diffenbaugh took 6 on the short fourteenth, when he sliced into a trap from the tee, was not out with his second, and was over the green with his third, and then he took another 6 on the sixteenth

Chisox Bunch Hits To Beat Browns Again

St. Louis, July 29 (A.P.).—The Chicago White Sox, scoring four times in the fifth inning on four hits and a sacrifice, defeated the Browns today, 6 to 2, and made a clean sweep of the two-game series.

Although hit for eleven safeties, the same number as the Browns made, Al Thomas scattered his blows throughout the game.

The long-distance clouting was done by Jolley, who hit a home run, and Goslin and Ryan, who contributed triples.

ALEXANDRIA TO HONOR JUNIORS

Notables to Attend Banquet Tonight for Legion Team.

ALEXANDRIA, July 29.—Alexandria baseball fandom will tender a public reception to the American Legion Juniors, champions of the State of Virginia, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in historic Gadsby's Tavern, Royal and Cameron streets.

Around 300 citizens are expected to pack the hall to hear talks by the youngsters and celebrities in the baseball world. President Clark Griffith, of the Washington American League Baseball Team; Walter Johnson, manager of the team; Joe Judge, premier first sacker; Art Shires and Al Schacht are expected to be guests of honor.

City Manager Wallace Lawrence will preside as toastmaster. An excellent entertainment program has been arranged. Fred Petitt, Alexandria's Al Jolson, and Talbert Haslett, one of the leading singers in northern Virginia, will render selections. A popular orchestra will render music.

George Downham is chairman of the banquet committee. He has arranged to have Gadsby's Tavern elaborately decorated for the occasion.

Station Director James F. McGrath, of WJSV, announced today that a program would be placed on the "air" at 9 o'clock. This will give Virginians and Washingtonians a chance to listen to the various talks delivered by the celebrities attending.

The Legion fund to buy equipment for the youngsters is nearing the $150 goal. Over 50 citizens have contributed to this fund. On Thursday the Legion Juniors will play the Post 24 Team in a benefit game at Baggett's Stadium. This is expected to attract a large crowd.

Burton Pitton advanced into the second round of the Municipal Tennis Tourney this morning as W. H. Duty forfeited his match. Other first-round matches will be played today.

The Colonials have been declared winners of the Municipal Midget League, as the St. John's Team forfeited a game to them today. This club will meet the champions of the Washington Post Midget League for the midget baseball title of Washington and Northern Virginia.

J. Prex Wilson, director of the local playground system, expects to confer with Washington officials regarding this series this week. One game will be played in Alexandria, while the other will be fought out in Washington, and if a third is needed a coin will be flipped to decide the playing field.

Charlie Horne, St. Mary's Celtic pitcher, has been signed to aid in preparing the American Legion Juniors for their trip to Gastonia, N. C., on August 14-15. Horne will pitch in daily batting practice to the team.

VANCE FAILS TO CHECK BRAVES

Boston Ties Score in Eighth and Wins in Tenth, 4-3.

BOSTON, July 29 (A.P.).—For six innings today Dazzy Vance's speed had the Braves helpless, but the charm failed to last and they came from behind and drove the Dazzier from the mound in the eighth, scoring two runs to tie the score and finally defeated Brooklyn in the tenth inning, 4 to 3.

Ray Phelps was the losing pitcher as singles by Richbourg, Maranville and Sisler drove in the winning run with one out.

Brooklyn piled up a 3-to-0 lead in the first six frames. Boston scored once in the seventh then tied it up in the eighth, as George Sisler doubled after Richbourg had hit a two bagger and Maranville had walked. The veteran first sacker tried to win the game by stealing home in the same inning but was called out on a close play.

Wee Willie Sherdel pitched the distance for Boston and held the league leaders to eight hits, three by Babe Herman.

Miss Nuthall Seeks U. S. Tennis Crown

New York, July 29 (A.P.).—Betty Nuthall, 19-year-old English tennis star, expects to compete in the national women's championship beginning August 18 at Forest Hills, says Louis B. Bailey, president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, who had just returned from Europe.

Miss Nuthall is coming over accompanied by her brother, Jim, a promising youngster, who also plans to engage in tournament play here.

Argentina and Uruguay Meet for Soccer Title

Montevideo, July 29 (A.P.).—Argentina and Uruguay will play tomorrow for the soccer football championship of the world. Record crowds are expected, and reports from Buenos Aires state that there are not enough steamships available to accommodate all the Argentinians who want to root for their team from the Pampas. It is estimated that 20,000 Argentinians will come to Montevideo by morning.

All of the tickets to the stadium have been sold, and they now command a large premium, since there are many partisans of the two teams who have purses to match their enthusiasm. In the semifinals, Argentine eliminated the United States, while Uruguay toppled Jugoslavia, the best of the European entries.

Batting of Waners Defeats Cardinals

Pittsburgh, July 29 (A.P.).—After a series of one run rallies in the late innings that finally sent the St. Louis Cardinals out in front in the ninth, the Pittsburgh Pirates came from behind in their half of the final frame today to win the series opener when Lloyd Waner singled Suhr and Bool across. The score was 6 to 5.

In the third inning, Paul Waner hit for the circuit with Brother Lloyd on base. The two Waners accounted for five of the Pirates' twelve hits, batted in four runs and scored three of them.

Morgan Makes 5 Hits As Tribe Routs Tigers

Cleveland, Ohio, July 29 (A.P.).—Detroit ran up a 4-run lead in the first two innings today but could not hold in the face of a savage Cleveland batting attack and lost its second game in a row here, 14 to 7.

Four bases on balls plus three hits off Guy Cantrell in the second inning produced seven runs. Everill made his tenth home run of the season and a double in that inning. In the next inning the Indians combined four hits and two walks off Charley Sullivan for five more runs. Eddie Morgan, Indian first baseman, got two doubles and three singles in five times up.

Johnson Halts Batting Attack of Champions.

PHILADELPHIA, July 29 (N.Y.W. N.S.).—The Yanks had everything today—pitching, the pepper and the punch—and they rolled over the Athletics in hollow fashion, crashing three second-string pitchers and spiking the big guns of the "three musketeers." The score was 12 to 3, and reduced the Athletics' lead over Washington to six games.

And it might also be remarked that the Yanks had Lou Gehrig. Yes, Cousin Lou was at the ball game. He smashed home run No. 30 and home run No. 31 of his 1930 series over the Shibe Park fences. He is only five homers behind Babe Ruth now. He also smacked a two-bagger and a three-bagger, and of the twelve runs the Yanks scored in their free hitting rush, Gehrig was responsible for six and he scored a seventh himself on a hit by Lazzeri. A pretty fair sort of a day's work.

Ruth Needs Lay-Off, Says Players.

Ruth didn't make any home runs. He did get two hard singles, and was passed once, but his bad hand isn't showing the improvement it should and the feeling is gaining amongst the players that if he is to be in for the final drive of the year he should take a lay-off now.

For the first time in a blue moon the Yanks had adequate pitching. Hank Johnson turned a fine set of innings this afternoon, holding the A's to seven hits. He didn't entirely stop the Big Three. Cochrane got a pair of singles and Foxx a three-bagger late in the game; but the king pin of the ping-pinners, Al Simmons, was very silent. Johnson hung the "collar"—that is, the important cipher in the hit column—on Simmons with neatness. He fanned Al twice, and not once did he let the pride of Philly hit the ball out of the infield.

Johnson struck out eight all told and would had but one run scored against him except for his wildness. He gave six bases on balls and two of these turned out to be runs later.

Still resenting his slip into the eighth notch in the batting order, Harry Rice did a little fancy clubbing today. He hit a double which scored a run in the early innings when runs meant a lot and in the late frames, when they were cheaper. Pitchers Quinn and Mahaffey having passed on, Harry boomed a home run over the right-field fence every bit as far as Gehrig's. Johnson also helped in the Yankee assault with a pair of hits.

SARATOGA MAKES DEBUT WITH 2 HANDICAPS TODAY

2-Year-Olds In $5,000 Stake

Blenheim Given Top Weight in Field of 9 Juveniles.

Petee Wrack Concedes 13 Pounds to Older Horses.

By ORLO ROBERTSON

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 29 (A.P.).—America's ranking thoroughbreds rested in their luxurious boxes tonight, awaiting the bugle call that will send the first of the group forth tomorrow in quest of riches at the opening of the picturesque Saratoga racing season.

As in the years past the Flash and the Saratoga Handicap—each with a value of $5,000 added—will feature the opening card that is expected to draw thousands of the "high and low" of American life out to the staid old Union Avenue Track. Five other races of the allowance class complete the well-rounded program.

Saratoga, gayly decorated and with a holiday atmosphere, buzzed with activity today as the throngs poured into the spacious hotels by train, automobile and airplane. The Cavanaugh Special, carrying the elite of the racing world, pulled in tonight and immediately elm-covered Broadway became the source of tips and counter tips. Horse-drawn vehicles vied with the more modern modes of transportation for business as the thousands of visitors sought out their places of abode for the month of racing.

Nine Juveniles in Handicap.

Nine juveniles were named overnight to start in the 5½-furlong feature for 2-year-olds, while the same number of older horses were selected to face Starter George Cassidy in the mile and a quarter jaunt styled the Saratoga Handicap.

Packing the top weight of 122 pounds, the Wheatley Stable's Blenheim was expected to go to the post the favorite in the Flash, which last year was won by Gallant Fox, now the 3-year-old champion.

The Wheatley youngster, however, will get plenty opposition from George D. Widener's Jamestown, which gets into the starting line-up with 3 pounds less and 1 more than Condescend, his stable mate. The remainder of the field includes E. R. Bradley's Black Tyrone, W. R. Coe's Masked Ball and Rock Belle, Joseph Leiter's Prince Apollo, A. J. Joyner's Red Flare, and Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Never Fade.

Petee Wrack Carries 120 Pounds.

John R. Macomber's Boston-owned Petee Wrack will be giving away 13 pounds when he attempts to win the Saratoga Handicap. The 5-year-old son of Wrack picks up 120 pounds, 13 more than has been assigned to the Mount Royal Stable's Marine and 14 more than the Belair Stud's Frisius will carry. W. R. Coe's Black Majesty and J. E. Widener's Curate get in with 105 pounds, while Coe's Cesare picks up 1 pound less. Mrs. Payne Whitney's Comstockery carries 102 pounds. Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt's Chicatie 100, and C. C. Hieatt's filly, Ben Machree, the feather of 97 pounds.

Toro's Racing Career Is Ended by Injury

Chicago, July 29 (A.P.).—Edward B. McLean's Toro, which ruptured the muscles of a foreleg in the Arlington Handicap Saturday, probably will race no more.

Trainer John Schorr plans to keep the son of the Porter-Brocatelle with him during the rest of the Chicago racing season, after which he will go back to Belmont Plantation, Va., for stud service.

Victorian, winner of the Agua Caliente Handicap last winter, will be turned out to rest until the winter season. The Warm Stable star's recent performances have been far below form.

Field Day Saturday At Woodmont Club

The Woodmont Club has issued an attractive announcement of a field day to be held next Saturday. The feature event will be a four-ball match with Max Weyl and Howard Nordlinger paired against John C. Shorey and Roger Peacock. Weyl has been the club champion during the past two years and Nordlinger won the club championship in 1927. Shorey was the winner of the Woodmont invitation tournament last spring and Peacock was the medalist.

In addition to this four-ball match, which starts at 2 p. m., there will be a handicap tournament, 18 holes, throughout the day and at 4 o'clock in the afternoon a 9-hole mixed Scotch foursome. Putting and horseshoe throwing contests and a handicap tennis tournament are also on the program. At the conclusion of the events, a special dinner will be served in the clubhouse, followed by dancing until midnight.

RAIN HALTS GAME.

Yesterday's showers called a halt on the scheduled Government Baseball League important contest between the Navy Yard and Naval Hospital Nines on South Ellipse diamond. Hundreds of fans, intent on witnessing what promised to be the deciding second series championship game, journeyed to the Ellipse only to be disappointed. The game will be scheduled later.

PLAY-OFF SERIES PLANNED.

Dates were set last night for the playoff series between the Olmsted Grill and C. A. O'Brien senior teams of the Capital City League. Managers Snitz Nau, of the Olmsteds, and Johnny Wiles, of the O'Briens, agreed to start hostilities on August 17. The second game will be played the following week. The first to win two games will be awarded the title.

WEST'S PLAY JASPERS.

The Sam West Midgets, winner of the Capital City League title, will play a series of games with the Jasper Post Nine, the first to be played Friday at 3 o'clock on No. 3 diamond.

—Saratoga and Arlington Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, July 29.—A cheerful racing throng is in Saratoga Springs awaiting the opening of the summer racing season tomorrow. The card of seven races offered by Victor Schaumburg, racing secretary, bristles with class, especially in the featured flash stakes for 2-year-olds and the Saratoga Handicap, which for years have marked the beginning of the season here.

The Saratoga Handicap is a mile and a quarter for 3-year-olds and upward. Nine horses comprise the field. CURATE, which ran second in the Arlington Handicap last Saturday, has been leniently dealt with by the official handicapper in the allotment of 105 pounds and should be the favorite and is picked to win. It is necessary to go to Chicago and recent form on most of this field, and among these are both CURATE and PETEE WRACK, half brother of Gallant Fox, which has shown fine form in the Western city as well as in the East. PETEE WRACK defeated CURATE at Belmont Park; and over that race in the Suburban Handicap, which was a neck finish, CURATE takes off 4 pounds, while PETEE WRACK has the same impost of 122. These two horses probably will be fighting it out in this contest. COMSTOCKERY is probably best of the others, unless it is FRISIUS.

The first race, for fillies and mares, a field of ten, may be a surprise, for CHALICE has been working so fast at this course that she is selected to beat SPELLBOUND. The latter will be the favorite and is a fast mare. CAPTURE, another good one, and top weight, should be next. PROGENY and ELECTA are dangerous.

Four are to start in the steeplechase. WAR FLIER, top weight, is picked to beat INFANT, with WAYFAIR third. INFANT won at Belmont Park. WAR FLIER has given promise of making a fine jumper.

Nine 2-year-olds have been elected for the Flash, third race, 5½ furlongs, $5,000 purse. This is the fifty-sixth running of the Flash. Horses that have become great have been winners of this stake, and Gallant Fox started on his way to fame last year by winning this event. There is a standout colt in this race—George D. Widener's JAMESTOWN, with 118 pounds. MASHED BALL and NEVERFADE will be contenders for place. McAtee rides JAMESTOWN.

The Rancocas Stable's GRATTAN is selected to win the fifth race. This colt, rated at the top by Mr. Vosburgh last year, has had little action. Reports from him are so favorable that he must have a good chance of winning. He was rated high last winter for the Derby, but did not start. IMPERIAL AIR has been doing fine at Saratoga and is rated the contender, while COIN COLLECTOR is regarded as the probable third.

PHANTANSIME will have WHISKER to beat in the sixth race for 2-year-old maiden fillies. Eleven are to start in each division of this divided purse. Both the above-mentioned fillies made a fine showing on Long Island, just missing graduation from the maiden class. The contest between the two should be very interesting. TENEZ is better than she has shown and should get third money.

In the seventh ANGRY PLUME looks much the best. HARLEM has worked well and is rated the contender. YELLOW FLAG, ROCKBELLE, and SCUTTLE have a chance.

ARLINGTON PARK.

The Fort Wayne Purse of $1,800 is the Arlington headliner. DISPLAY should have progressed in his training enough to win this race, even though it is only a mile, he outclasses the field so decidedly. CANAAN should place, with BOOM next best. It looks like a one-horse race if the W. J. Salmon star is himself.

Mrs. John D. Hertz's WRIGLEY FIELD, coupled with EGYPT, will be favorite for the first race, but will have a battle to beat SKIFFY, which is coupled with PORTCODINE. The two entries should win straight, place and show money.

ROMANY BAW has a good chance in the second, with PLAY BALL the most to be feared. LAWYER for the short end.

RED CROSS SISTER is selected for the third gallop over SIR ARGO. CALOME, a recent winner, has a chance to repeat.

MAXIVA is back in form, winning last out, and should take the fifth, with CLOVER CLUB and PRATE next best.

The sixth may go to MASTER ACE, with FAIR ARGUMENT to beat. TOMMY LAD for show.

FADDY is best in the seventh. Mud would suit him better. He is a good horse, but wins few races. He has cheaper opposition than usual in this race. KADIAK and WOODAXTON may be the contenders.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WEE DROP, $5.70, $4.34, $3.20; HYANNISPORT, $9.68, $6.04; JOLLY KING, $5.46.

WEE DROP had most speed, shook off VALEDICTORY and SISTER MARY after leaving the back stretch and, continuing well to the home stretch, held on well in long, hard final drive to outlast HYANNISPORT. HYANNISPORT was shuffled back but finished going much the fastest, outgaming JOLLY KING. JOLLY KING, forward factor, weakened in final drive. SEGURO closed a gap and finished fast. SISTER MARY was raced wide and tired badly. VALEDICTORY and DRY DOCK showed early speed, but stopped badly in the stretch.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:48. Off at 2:50. Winner, Jones Stock Farm's b. f. (4), by Hand Grenade—Leggogal. Trained by B. A. Jones. Value to winner, $1,050; second, $250; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:22 3-5, 0:46 4-5, 1:12 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TADDYWAWA, $6.56, $4.38, $3.10; ROMANY BAW, $8.74, $4.40; THE OKAH, $2.96.

TADDYWAWA was outpaced to the stretch, but closing fast on outside in final quarter, wore down leaders and won going away. ROMANY BAW showed most early speed, set good pace to middle of home stretch, but tired and could not withstand the winner. THE OKAH had speed from the start, raced JOY ROCK into defeat and held on fairly well in the late stages. JOY ROCK went well to stretch turn, then quit badly. WILDALE was outrun. Others raced greatly.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,600. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:18. Off at 3:19. Winner, E. R. Bradley's ch. c. (2), by Durbar II—Believe Me Boys. Trained by H. J. Thompson. Value to winner, $1,150; second, $250; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 4-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:00 2-5, 1:06 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BATHORSE, $6.04, $2.62, $2.30; PITTSBURGHER, $2.70, $2.30; BOOSTER TWIST, $4.90.

BATHORSE shook off MAGOTHY in first quarter, always showed most speed thereafter and, responding under whip, PITTSBURGHER safe, won as rider pleased. PITTSBURGHER moved up fast entering the stretch, disposed of others, but was unable to threaten the winner. BOOSTER TWIST gained gradually from slow beginning and showed a good effort. LA SALLE was badly outrun throughout and was under a pull soon after start. MAGOTHY tired badly.

FOURTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:48. Off at 3:50½. Winner, W. S. Dudley's b. f. (3), by Coventry—Princess Royal. Trained by T. P. Hayes. Value to winner, $1,050; second, $250; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:46 4-5, 1:11 1-5, 1:36 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS BESS, $4.66, $3.60, $2.86; ZIDA, $6.10, $4.32; SUPRYSE, $2.86.

MISS BESS, keeping close up after the start, came fast around the stretch turn and, moving to leaders rapidly, easily wore down ZIDA to win going away in mild drive. ZIDA had the most early speed, disposed of SUPRYSE and drew away, but tired and was unable to match winner's challenge. SUPRYSE had early speed, went well to stretch and tired. BILLY CHAMP raced evenly. BELLI CASUS was outrun and went in dull form. MAUDLIN quit.

FIFTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,800. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:18. Off at 4:18½. Winner, E. Hitt's b. g. (5), by Ed Crump—Ruth Strickland. Trained by T. R. Rodrock. Value to winner, $1,300; second, $300; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 4-5, 0:47, 1:12, 1:37 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HOT TODDY, $7.34, $4.00, $2.60; WILLIAM T., $5.02, $3.00; BUDDY BAUER, $2.48.

HOT TODDY, saved first half mile, was able to get through on inside entering stretch, quickly overhauled JOCK and BUDDY BAUER, drew clear an eighth away, but was tiring in final seventy yards, barely outlasting WILLIAM T. WILLIAM T. was restrained first quarter, moved up fast in final quarter, quickly disposed of remainder of field and would have won at a greater distance. BUDDY BAUER, on the outside, raced trifle wide, had no other mishaps and held on fairly well. LIEUTENANT RUSSELL, from much early speed, but was done in the stretch. BLACKWOOD had brief early speed. JOCK improved position gradually, took brief lead at end of three-quarters, but quit badly thereafter.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 4:47. Off at 4:48. Winner, Mrs. R. Pollard's b. g. (4), by Sand Mile—Mary Powell. Trained by R. Pollard. Value to winner, $1,050; second, $250; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:25 1-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:14 3-5, 1:40 4-5, 1:54 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—J. A. WEIL, $10.40, $4.52, $4.12; ROCK HAWK, $4.48, $3.46; SHADY REST, $4.96.

J. A. WEIL was kept close to the pace and, racing restrained to the stretch entrance, moved up fast around the turn on the outside, overhauled leaders and drew out strongly. ROCK HAWK, always the contender, took lead in far turn, continued well, but was no match for the winner. SHADY REST, a factor from the start, came strong in the stretch and, holding on well, outstayed THE ALDERMAN. THE ALDERMAN had early speed, but tired. HOLD FAST closed a good gap.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:18. Off at 5:21. Winner, Jones Stock Farm's br. g. (7), by Sandy Mole—Karine. Trained by B. A. Jones. Value to winner, $1,050; second, $250; third, $150; fourth, $50. Two-dollar mutuels paid—COCKRILL, $7.32, $4.18, $3.74; LOCKET, $4.02, $3.42; COMET, $5.58.

COCKRILL, began slowly, but quickly racing his way into contention, improved position gradually and, coming with a strong challenge in the stretch, wore down LOCKET and drew away to win as rider pleased. LOCKET opened up a long early lead, but tired after six furlongs and was no match for the winner. COMET closed a good gap, came fast in the final quarter and just missed wearing down LOCKET. LEAH JANE loomed up strongly entering stretch, but tired in the final drive. MARGATE weakened under pressure. FAIRY MAN quit.

STRIBLING AGAIN HEADED FOR BOXING 'BIG SHOTS'

Campolo Bout Looming for Georgian

Garden Hot on Trail of Conqueror of Phil Scott.

Bouts With Sharkey and Schmeling Now Appear Likely.

NEW YORK, July 29 (A.P.).—Yung Bill Stribling, for years the "king of the canebrakes," is headed back to the main highways of fistiana under a head of steam that whistles menacingly for Victorio Campolo, Jack Sharkey and lastly Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion at the moment.

The satisfying news that the Macon aviator had crumbled Phil Scott, the gangling Briton, in two short rounds without a cry of foul being raised anywhere in the Wimbledon dog track arena in London, was hardly off the wires before the finest opportunity of Willie's long and bumpy career was shaping up in New York. Young Stribling has muffed golden chances in the past, but this time the warning lights along the path to the heavyweight crown seem all to have turned green for him.

Frank Bruen, general manager at Madison Square Garden, wants to pit this ferocious 1930 edition of the best-equipped heavyweight in the business against Victorio Campolo, the Manassa mauler of the Argentine, in one of the big ball parks here this September.

May Figure in Miami Battle.

Once past Campolo, a feat that should be ordinary for the youngster who knocked out Otto von Porat and Scott in six minutes of fighting, Stribling can have the leading role in the third annual battle of the balmy breezes at Miami this winter, perhaps with Jack Sharkey again his opponent. The third match promised him is against Schmeling in a title tilt for which the German already has signed with Madison Square Garden for the summer of 1931. "Pa" Stribling discussed the situation with Bruen over the transatlantic phone from London last night.

The possibility of Stribling again tackling Sharkey seems remote, however, for rather knowing information at the Garden indicates that the Boston sailorman, who outpointed Willie in the first struggle at Miami two years ago, has about decided that he will retire unless given a return engagement with Schmeling. Sharkey already has set a price of $100,000 on his services for a Campolo match this fall.

about such things. If there was a heavyweight championship fight tonight, no matter how bad the fight might be on paper, about 4,000 out of 5,000 ringside seats would be bought up by business houses or individual business men in blocks of $1,000 worth or more so that they could entertain their customers. Cloak and suit houses buy tickets for visiting buyers, newspapers buy them for advertisers and so on. And any time a man spends $25 for a prize-fight ticket you may be quite certain that he didn't need the money for the necessities of life. So, as I say, I don't encounter this public indignation.

"But naturally the commission always tries to prevent fakes and fouls and keep known fakers and bad actors out of the business. Here is a hard thing to do. We will take the case of a fellow who handled a fighter in a notorious fake at the Garden. We heard before the fight that it was going to be a fake and afterward we were morally certain that one of the boys took it on the chin for a price. The man who handled the loser hasn't held a New York license since then, but he has operated in other States. However, you may hear that he is a silent partner in the management of some other fighters who do operate in New York. What shall we do? Shall we bar these fighters, who are honest so far as our information goes, just because we think a blacklisted manager owns shares in them? Our powers are great, but I don't like to do an injustice on suspicion.

Never Approached by Politicians.

"You may hear that we yield to political pressure. I am interested in politics. But I can only tell you that I have never been approached by any politician with a proposition to favor any fighter or manager.

"We aren't consistent, I admit. How can you be consistent when conditions change from day to day? A fighter is barred, we will say, and then he goes along to prove that he is one of the greatest fighters in his class. The public then wants to see him fight for the championship. The public likes champions. So, sometimes, we change our rulings. We have to. Otherwise, some of the best matches would be forbidden.

"Now, I read a lot about gunmen owning fighters and I'm not so innocent that I don't know who the gunmen are and what they have done in the past. But here again, they aren't licensed. We try to keep them out, but if they buy in secretly and we can't prove that they have bought in, shall we bar the fighters and forbid matches which will then be made in other States because the public wants to see them?"

I mentioned one manager, a killer, who once handled a prominent fighter. "You let him operate in New York after he had killed a fellow," I said.

"Two fellows he killed," Mr. Farley said.

"But he isn't operating any more," Mr. Farley concluded.

Rixey, of Reds, Halts Cubs in 10 Innings, 10-3

Chicago, July 29 (A.P.).—The Chicago Cubs retained the same standing today, dropping a hotly contested game to the Cincinnati Reds, 4 to 3, while the Braves wrested a ten-inning game from Brooklyn by the same score.

Hack Wilson's thirty-third home run in the sixth inning brought the score up to 4 and 2, but an eighth-inning rally fell short when Cuyler scored on Danny Taylor's single after Wilson had walked and Grimm sacrificed. Rixey went the route for the visitors, while Blake and Malone hurled for the Cubs.

Kuhel while the grabbing was good. We're going to take a look at him in a few days and, if he starts off with a rush, Johnson plans to let him continue in the game until he slumps. Judge, however, is still rated as No. 1 at first and probably will play a large majority of the remaining games this season. He may keep Kubel a benchwarmer next year too, for all I know. It's up to the youngster to beat Joe out, and he's going to find that quite a job."

Next Few Weeks Hold Nats' Fate.

Within the next few weeks, followers of the Nationals probably will know definitely whether or not Manager Walter Johnson has a possible pennant-winning team, with the next ten days offering unusual opportunity for substantial gain.

Being only six games back at this stage of the race, there is still plenty of time for the Johnsons to overhaul the leaders. For instance, by winning today and tomorrow, they could reduce this lead to four games, while they could cut it in half by scoring over the Mackmen in the two games in Philadelphia next week, providing they matched them in results in the interim.

Then comes a home stand by the Eastern clubs against those of the other sector and, should the Nats play their best game, it would not be a difficult matter for them to do a little gaining, especially if the long-awaited slump of the Mackmen should make its presence felt. For the past few weeks experts have been predicting that Connie Mack could not get by with Pitchers Grove, Walberg, Earnshaw and Mahaffey, with Rommel and Quinn stepping in occasionally. So far, this small staff has weathered the storm, but it is noticeable that the enemy is scoring more runs off of the Philadelphia moundsmen than earlier in the season and many see in this fact a sign of the flingers weakening.

All teams slump at one time or other during a season and the Mackmen have yet to have a real one, although they faltered slightly on their first trip through the West. The Nats, on the other hand, declare that they have had their slump and will be ready to take advantage of any let-down on the part of the Mackmen and it is along this line of reasoning that Manager Johnson and his men are still confident of coming home first over the finish line.

CHOICES WIN IN WOMEN'S TENNIS

Mrs. Martinez Beats Miss Walker in Feature Match.

VICTORIES in two second-round and one first-round matches were scored by seeded players in the District of Columbia women's tennis championships yesterday afternoon on the Columbia Country Club courts as play in the tournament continued without incident.

The only match of the day toward which any doubt regarding the outcome had been felt—that between Mrs. Ruth Martinez, seeded No. 3, and Frances Walker, former George Washington University champion, was decisively won by the former in straight sets, 6—1, 6—2. Miss Walker gave her foe a stout battle in each game, but was unable to stem the tide when points meant game victories.

Misses Dunham, Wakeford Easy Winners.

The two other seeded entrants to see action, Josephine Dunham and Marywill Wakeford, won without difficulty. The former made her entrance into the tourney with an easy first-round victory over Katherine Knauss, 6—1, 6—1, while Miss Wakeford advanced to the third round by an equally easy conquest of Alice Rose, 6—2, 6—0.

Frances Krucoff, defending champion, failed to see action yesterday, but should have her hands full today when she tackles Corinne Frazier in the opening match of the day at 2 o'clock. Although not seeded, Miss Frazier is a veteran of the courts and yesterday proved her mettle by disposing of Dorothy Kingsbury in three hardfought sets, 3—6, 9—7, 6—1.

Seeded Doubles Teams Play Today.

As play opened in the doubles competition, the teams of Misses Butler and Detwiler and Misses Ryan and Crist were returned victorious. Neither of the seeded combinations, Krucoff-Dunham or Martinez-Walker played yesterday. The latter will make its start today, however, meeting the de Souza-Laudick duo at 4 o'clock, while Corinne Frazier and Peggy Keyser, who were runners-up for the Public Parks doubles title, also will make their bow, facing the Tabler sisters from Baltimore.

The singles consolation tournament will also get under way today, seven matches being scheduled, starting at 2 o'clock.

Gehrig Tops Hitters In American League

(Associated Press.)

Lou Gehrig almost dazzled the "Big Six" with his slugging, but the other five, with the exception of Al Simmons, were too busy getting hits of their own to pay much attention to his hitting feats. Gehrig slammed his way into first place among the American League's batters by hitting two home runs, his thirtieth and thirty-first, a triple and a double in five times at bat. He lifted his average six points to .390.

Simmons went hitless four times and dropped five points to .386. Chuck Klein was outhit by his rival, Frank O'Doul, getting two hits in four times at bat, while O'Doul hit three out of four, but Klein held first place, gaining one point to O'Doul's three. Bill Terry made one blow in four tries and dropped a point to .398, while Babe Ruth hit twice in four attempts and gained two points.

Vines Upsets Shields In Seabright Net Play

Seabright, N. J., July 29 (A.P.).—Scoring his second victory over Frank Shields in less than a week, Ellsworth Vines, 18-year-old sensation from Pasadena, Calif., smashed his way into the third round of the thirty-seventh annual invitation tennis tournament of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club today.

Vines eliminated Shields in a stirring match, 6—8, 6—4, 8—6, and thus repeated his triumph of last week over the youthful New Yorker in the metropolitan turf court championships. Shields is ranked No. 12 in the national list. Vines ranks No. 2 in the junior list.

Advancing to the third round with Vines were Frank Hunter, New Rochelle veteran whom Vines defeated in the finals of the metroploitan turf court event; Julius Seligson, of New York; Sydney B. Wood, jr., of Pasadena, Calif.; David N. Jones, of New York; J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J.; Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, and Richard N. Williams, one-time Davis Cup star from Philadelphia.

HANES FIELD DEDICATION NOV. 22

Govs. Pollard, Gardner to Take Part in Woodberry Fete.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., July 29. Word came from Orange today that Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia and Gov. O. Max Gardner of North Carolina have accepted invitations to be present and take part in the ceremonies incident to the formal dedication of the new Hanes Field, at Woodberry Forest School, November 22, the date of the annual contest between the football teams of Woodberry and Episcopal High School.

Extensive plans are being carried out with a view of making the occasion an impressive one and worthy of its purpose—opening one of the finest playing fields and running tracks in the South.

Field Gift of Two Alumni.

The field is a gift of two Woodberry alumni, James Gordon Hanes and John Wesley Hanes, both natives of North Carolina. It is surrounded by a cinder running track, 25 feet wide on the 220-yard straightaway and 15 feet wide around the quarter mile. It is also equipped with separate pits for high-jumping, broad-jumping, pole-vaulting and shot-putting. A field house, the gift of an unknown alumnus, is being built near the field.

Gov. O. Max Gardner, whose son is playing on the Woodberry Team, is to present the field on behalf of its donors, natives of the Old North State, and Gov. Pollard is to accept it in behalf of Woodberry Forest and turn it over to J. Carter Walker, head master of the school.

Definite word has been received from Hunter Motley and Strudwick Nash, Woodberry alumni of 1927 and now rival captains of the football teams of the Universities of Virginia and North Carolina, respectively, that they will attend the game and take part in the ceremonies. Five days after the game, Motley and Nash will lead their teams against each other in the new Scott Stadium, now under erection at the University of Virginia.

Impressive Program Planned.

The program for the day will be the most impressive in the history of the school. In the morning preceding the game there will be a meeting of the alumni association and then the alumni luncheon. At 2:30 o'clock the dedication exercises will begin, and the game will start immediately thereafter. That night there will be a dance in honor of the occasion, and in honor of the Episcopal High School Team. A crowd of 3,500 is expected to attend.

Armour-Diegel Play For Canadian Title

Ancaster, Ontario, July 29 (A.P.).—Tommy Armour, of Detroit, and Leo Diegel, pro at the Agua Caliente Club, play 36 holes of golf over the Mailton Country Club course tomorrow to decide which shall wear the Canadian open crown for the next year.

Armour and Diegel tied for the lead at 277 at the end of the 72-hole competition last Saturday and the playoff was set for Wednesday. It will be medal, or stroke, play.

Diegel ruled the favorite to win the title for the second straight year and the fifth time since 1924. He played consistent golf through all four rounds of the championship proper last week, while Armour needed an amazing 64 on his fourth round, two strokes under the course record and six under par, to tie the Agua Caliente pro for the lead.

BEACH AND THORN TOP PRO QUALIFIERS

when he hooked his drive out of bounds. Mather, too, kept piling up strokes through adventures into traps on the eleventh and thirteenth holes and inability to run down putts. By the time the seventeenth tee was reached both were out of the running.

Hancock Eliminates Himself.

Meanwhile Hannock has eliminated himself and Barnett, out in 39, was hopelessly behind, thus opening wide the pearly gates for Thorn. He did not fail to take advantage of the opportunity. He played the first nine in 33 and then came breezing home with four pars in succession, followed by birdies on the fourteenth and fifteenth holes. He was one over par on the sixteenth, when he missed a short putt, and again one over par on the seventeenth, when he took three putts, finishing in 69, two strokes under par, and four strokes ahead of Diffenbaugh and Mather. Beach, as his score indicates, exhibited a brilliant game, with seven birdies throughout the day and an eagle 3 on the seventh in the afternoon. He played several fine recovery shots, notably after a pulled approach on the eighth and an over-approach on the twelfth in the afternoon round. Thorn, who it will be remembered qualified from this section for the national open, demonstrated his courage and ability to stage successfully an uphill battle, due to long, straight drives, accurate approaches and the avoidance of traps.

Hitting of Metzler, Goslin Keeps Browns From Cellar

ST. LOUIS, July 29 (A.P.).—Alex Metzler, the outfielder, who couldn't hit more than .184 for the Chicago White Sox, seems to have been a blessing in disguise for the St. Louis Browns.

When the St. Louis Club recently took Metzler for the waiver price, about all the fans expected was that he would reduce the Browns' team batting average from the already low figure of .260 to a still lower mark. Instead the White Sox cast-off has added punch to the Browns' attack and his fielding has been good. Replacing Fred Schulte in center field, Metzler as a Brown, has been banging the ball at a .462 clip and his home run in the ninth inning won a recent game from the Boston Red Sox.

To add to the joy Metzler is bringing Manager Bill Killefer, "Goose" Goslin's hitting in recent games has helped justify the trade that brought him to St. Louis in exchange for Alvin Crowder and Heinie Manush. Goslin, by smacking out four home runs in two days this week, has brought his homer record to 22 for the season, and his batting has been a big factor in keeping the Browns out of the cellar.

House of David Nine Seeks Alexander as Hurling Foe

Tentative Terms Accepted by Veteran for $1,000 for Three Games Against Bearded Team; May Land Association Berth.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 29 (A.P.).—Grover Cleveland Alexander, veteran major league star, has tentatively accepted terms to play under the management of the House of David baseball team, Ray Doan, manager, announced tonight. Alexander would not be a member of the bearded squad, under the proposed agreement, but would pitch against it for the various local teams scheduled by the Benton Harbor Nine.

Although Alexander tentatively accepted terms of $1,000 for three independent games, Doan said definite acceptance was contingent upon the outcome of negotiations in progress between "Alex" and an American Association team, supposedly the Toledo Club, for the veteran's services. Alexander was to have left Dallas tonight for Chicago to discuss the American Association offer, Doan said.

Alexander, if obtained, would hurl games at Fargo, N. D.; Spokane, Wash., and Salt Lake City, Utah, against the House of David Club, Doan said. The veteran's contract would be extended at the same rate for every additional three games. The contest at Fargo is scheduled for August 10.

D. C. NETMEN ENTER 3D ROUND

Mitchell, Yeomans, Mangan Win in Virginia Title Play.

HOT SPRINGS, Va., July 29 (A.P.).—Washington, Cincinnati and University of North Carolina players advanced to the third round in the Virginia open tennis tournament today as a result of second round victories this morning.

Dooly Mitchell, of Washington, won from Lester Lee, Roanoke 6—2 and 6—3. Paul Kunkel, of Cincinnati, seeded No. 2 in the tournament, eliminated Ballard Moore, Chicago, 6—2 and 6—2.

Edward Yeomans, University of North Carolina player and also a resident of Washington, won from Dr. R. P. Nicholson, New York, 6—4 and 6—4. Byron Huffman, of Cincinnati, defeated John Welch, New York, in two love sets, while Tom Mangin, of Washington, beat Allen Key, of Texas, in straight sets.

Miss Williams Reaches Semifinals.

Miss Maude Williams, Richmond, won her way to the semifinals of the women's singles in the Virginia State open tennis championships today, eliminating Mrs. Herbert H. Lehman, wife of the lieutenant governor of New York, in straight sets, 6—1, 6—3. Mrs. Delois Thompson, of Washington, Pa., winner of the West Virginia State open tournament a week ago, advanced nearer another championship, defeating Miss Ruth Welch, New York, this afternoon 6—1, 6—1. Miss Margaret Carspecken, Morgantown, W. Va., and Miss Ellen Bates, of St. Louis, will be semifinalists by virtue of their victories today. Miss Bates was strenuously opposed by Mrs. Boyd, of North Carolina, who took the first set 6—4 and dropped the second by the same score, but weakened against her opponent in the third, losing 6—3. Miss Carspecken defeated Mrs. Fred S. Valentine, jr., Richmond, 6—1, 6—1.

Fugazy Stops Selling Sports Arena Stock

New York, July 29 (A.P.).—Humbert J. Fugazy, once the chief rival of the late Tex Rickard in the promotion of fights in New York, has agreed to sell no more stock in a $5,000,000 sports arena he planned for years but never built, it was disclosed today at the offices of Assistant State Attorney General Watson Washburn.

Fugazy, who stepped into the fight game through the promotion of an Italian hospital charity fund show five years ago, staged matches for years at Ebbets Field and bid freely against Rickard for outstanding talent. He organized the Metropolitan Coliseum, Inc., became its president, and put on the market $5,000,000 worth of stock. A plot of land was acquired on Twelfth avenue between Forty-fourth and Forty-fifth street. About $180,000 worth of the stock was sold.

STOCKS ARE HEAVY WHILE SALES SLUMP

Late Rally Keeps Average Loss to 1½ Points; Rails Hard Hit.

GENERAL MOTORS RISES

New York, July 29 (A.P.).—Stocks were heavy 'n quiet trading today. Weakness of the railroad and merchandising shares spread to other sections of the list, with the assistance of short selling, but a closing rally reduced the extreme declines by a fraction to a couple of points and final prices ruled 1 to 5 lower, the average loss being about 1½ points.

The market yesterday had gone slightly above the high for the recovery, attained on July 18, but the move had been indecisive and it soon became apparent this morning that the bulls would have difficulty if further lifting power was applied. The opening was heavy. Selling of Safeway Stores, Gillette, First National Stores and other stocks was offset partially by the firmness of U. S. Steel, General Motors and American Can, but as the trading moved along it became apparent that some of the news was being construed bearishly.

Traders on the short side saw prospects of tariff retaliation in the Conservative victory in Canada. Others professed to be disturbed by the possibility of commercial controversies with the Soviet. The market turned more decisively downward, however, on the appearance of further unfavorable railroad earnings reports, notably that of Union Pacific, whose June operating income was off 46 per cent in comparison with a year ago. In addition, an estimate of Southern Railway's first half net income placed her per share earnings at only 36 cents against $5.74 in the initial six months of 1929.

The rails were offered in some volume on this news. Union Pacific dropped 8 points, while Southern Railway slumped 7 to a new low. There were extreme losses of 2 to 5 points in Rock Island, Louisville & Nashville, Atlantic Coast Line, St. Louis & San Francisco, Norfolk & Western, Chesapeake & Ohio, New York Central, Southern Pacific, St. Louis & Southwestern and New Haven.

1,849,000 Shares Traded.

A notable feature of the decline, however, was the repetition of the dullness which the market has developed in recent weeks on the appearance of selling pressure. The volume shriveled during the afternoon and sales for the day totaled only 1,849,000 shares.

There was some encouragement in the statement by the United States Steel Corporation, which, in addition to announcing second quarter earnings equal to $3.02 a share, reported an expectation that the operations would improve during the remainder of this quarter and that volume would pick up in the last three months of the year. Wall street has been confident of an upturn in the steel business, but it was glad to be reassured from so authoritative a source.

A few more unfavorable earnings statements came to light, among them National Cash Register's, which had been discounted in recent liquidation of the stock. United State Steel's report, in line with conservative estimates, showed that the company had earned $6.46 a share for the first half against dividend requirements of $7 for the entire year.

Failure of the directors to declare an extra dividend caused no surprise despite the late rally, most of the market's prominent stocks closed lower. There were net declines of 1 to 2 points in American Can, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Anaconda, Columbia Gas, Gold Dust, American Telephone, Gillette, Public Service of New Jersey, New York Central, Westinghouse Electric and United States Steel, the last named losing just a point. Autostrop, First National Stores, Safeway Stores, Atchison, Norfolk & Western and St. Louis-San Francisco dropped 3 to 4, while Southern Railway and Rock Island were off more than 5 and Union Pacific retained its extreme loss of 8.

Bethlehem Steel Regains Loss.

Selling of Bethlehem Steel, which recovered half of a 3-point break, was accompanied by reports that some stockholders were dissatisfied over disclosures in the Youngstown suit.

A few strong spots appeared. General Motors was well supported professionally and rose ½ net. Eastman Kodak, Child's, Cluett-Peabody, Du Pont, Standard Gas & Electric, Transue & Williams and Western Union closed 2 to 3 higher.

Wheat was easy, losing about a cent and a half in sympathy with weakness in Winnipeg. Bullish Iowa and Minnesota estimates, as well as severe crop damage in North Dakota, strengthened the corn market, which rallied about a cent. Cotton closed steady, 3 to 8 points lower.

Sterling cables reached new high ground since early this year, rising to within less than a cent of the gold export point. The day's gold movements balanced each other, $1,000,000 going to Canada and $1,000,000 arriving from Uruguay.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, July 29 (A.P.).—An early decline in cotton was followed by rallies on the failure of weather advices to indicate any decided improvement in Southwestern weather conditions today. The bulge met a renewal of realizing or liquidation, however, and after selling up from 12.46 to 12.68 the new October contract closed at 12.53, or 15 points off from the best. The general market closed steady at net declines of 3 to 8 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 1 to 8 points under overnight selling orders, and the more active positions showed net losses of about 10 to 13 points right after the call, with the new December selling off to 12.61 and March to 12.92. Offerings were absorbed by buying on the relatively steady showing of Liverpool and the failure of overnight weather reports to indicate any break in the Southwestern drought.

The buying became a little more active after the posting of the official forecasts, which evidently were regarded as holding out no definite promise of rains in droughty sections, and there may have been some buying in anticipation of bullish features in the weekly weather report tomorrow. The advance extended to 12.86 for the new December and 13.14 for March during the early afternoon, making net gains of about 10 to 12 points.

The demand then tapered off, and the market eased during the latter trading under a renewal of local selling and realizing or liquidation. There may have been some selling for Southern account at the opening and again toward the close. The last prices showed reactions of about 15 to 17 points from the best on the more active months.

A private crop report was published, placing the condition as of July 21 at 68 per cent of normal and the indicated yield at 14,937,000 bales, which came in for some comment and may possibly have promoted some of the selling. On the other hand, it was reported that rather more numerous complaints of crop deterioration were being received in trade circles here from the Southwest, and there probably was some buying on these reports during the middle of the day. There still appeared to be more or less uncertainty as to the weather outlook for the Southwest, which probably had a tendency to restrict business.

Liverpool cables said that continental and Bombay selling in that market had been taken by trade calling and covering. Exports today were 2,279 bales, making 6,814,899 so far this season. Port receipts, 6,197. United States port stocks, 1,581,469.

RAILS PROVE ACTIVE; BOND MARKET MIXED

Secondary Issues Undergo Sharp Changes; Foreign Section Strong.

SEABOARD OFF 3 POINTS

New York, July 29 (A.P.).—Trading in railroad bonds assumed large proportions today, and a mixed trend in this group was characteristic of the whole listed market.

While best grade rails and utilities were steady, sharp changes occurred among secondary issues, with the movement in several measured in points instead of fractions. There was heavy trading in convertible obligations of several carriers and in common with the rest of the stock privilege group they turned downward in sympathy with weakness of shares.

French 7½s climbed to a record high price to set the pace for the foreign dollar bonds which displayed group strength. Expanded dealings in United States Governments, however, were at moderate fractional concessions coincidental with the firming of time money rates.

General Gas Flotation.

The market had little competition from new offerings today. General Gas & Electric Corporation is planning short term financing amounting to $50,000,000 through the sale of 4½ and 5 per cent serial gold notes due 1931-1935. Proceedings will be used for extensions and additions to the properties of subsidiaries and affiliated companies and acquisition of additional investments, it was announced.

The best grade rails showed marked resistance to the pressure against carriers, which apparently was partially influenced by the continued reports of decreases in earnings. Market leaders remained practically stationary, with changes of small consequence.

Wide fluctuations in less active bonds included Chicago & Alton issues, up about 6 points; Northern Pacific 4s, up 2½; Soo Line 6s, up 3⅜; International Great Northern 6s and New Haven debenture 4s, up about 1½ points each. Seaboard and Florida East Coast bonds dropped 3 and 2 points.

American Telephone Off.

Few stock privilege issues escaped the reactionary trend which set in the afternoon, and American Telephone 4½s and Atchison 4½s dropped a point or more and St. Paul adjustment 5s sold off 2 points. Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, Rock Island 4½s and International Telephone 4½s lost about half a point each. Moving contrary to the general trend was American I. G. Chemical 5½s, up more than 1 point.

In the quiet trading in utilities, American Telephone debenture 5s advanced half a point to a new top. Brooklyn Gas 5s of 1945 touched the year's best price. Third Avenue adjustment 5s, a New York traction issue, were strong, rising 3 points.

French 7½s were the most active issue of the foreign group and rose five-eighths to reach 125⅜, the best figure of the year. Belgium 6½s sold at new high and other leading European governments held firm. Royal Dutch 4s with warrants were the subject of special inquiry and reached a new 1930 high. Mexican issues, which have profited from a strong demand the past two days, sagged.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

CAPE MAY, N.J.—WINTER CHRISTIE SETS NEW MARK IN FLYING START KILOMETER RECORD FOR AMERICAN BUILT CARS—25 SECONDS IN A DIRECT DRIVEN 120 H.P. RACING CAR.

JULY 30, 1905.

Howard A. Cleveland died a natural death in the Maine State Prison. He was convicted and sentenced to death in 1869, but was never executed because prison officials forgot about the sentence.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson denied reports he had given his resignation to President Roosevelt.

Four hundred and ninety-six mothers and their children were given an outing at River View by employes of the Navy Yard.

Washington has the tallest outfield in baseball in Huelsman, Jones and Anderson.

What Today Means to You

"LEO."

IF July 30 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 11:30 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m., and 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 6 a. m. to 7:30 a. m., and 8 p. m. to 9:30 p. m.

It will be an uphill job to make this either a pleasing or fortunate date, as influences are against you in most factors of life. You will call upon the assistance of others. Distrust strangers! Signs oppose traveling!

It would be a pity to strangle the individual oddnesses of the child born on this July 30, as they are the embryo elements in its character which will make it an interesting and worth-while adult. It will have a live imagination, and a spirit of adventure.

You are a dynamic being, forceful without being displeasingly so. You infuse life into others. When you laugh, they laugh too. Your chief charm lies in your perfectly sincere interest in everything and everybody. There is nothing new under the sun to you. The secret of your happinss in life is that you are content to be merely yourself, and are not trying to play some role or other that takes your fancy, or that circumstances suggest. You please your audience without being conscious of them. You attract notice without trying to do so. You carry with you an aura which is beneficial to all.

You not only spin wonderful ideals in thought, but quietly and silently, you seeks to make them realities. You possess the wonderful faith, which those born under this sign inherently have. The whole of your life will seem to be devoted to doing good to others. Your influence is something which will be felt by many

Leo governing the heart, causes this part of your system to be most easily affected. It is essentially for your well-being and health that you have a few minutes each day, when you can be quite alone and perfectly at rest. This enables you to start the machinery from the heart at an even and a harmonious rate of vibration. Love, peace and harmony are your best medicines.

Successful people born July 30:

1—William T. Adams ("Oliver Optic")—Author.

2—Robert J. ("Bob") Burdette—Journalist and humorist.

3—Elmer R. Reynolds—Ethnologist.

4—Lettie S. Bigelow—Poet and author.

5—James E. Kelly—Engraver and sculptor.

CLAIRVOYANTS

CLAIRVOYANT
THE MAN WHO KNOWS
608 12th St. N.W.
Over Woolworth's 5c & 10c Store

This strange man sees the way and tells it all. Just what your life has been. Just what it will be. Tells you when and whom you will marry; whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false. Tells as to absence, trust, loss of absent friends, divorce, wills, deeds; whether it is best to buy or sell. He tells the good and the bad. A visit will convince you of his wonderful power.

Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse to call. Do not delay.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

COUNTY COURTHOUSE CONTRACT AWARDED

Charlotte Firm's $65,600 Lower Bid Wins Job in Montgomery.

HYATTSTOWN FETE SET

The Montgomery County Commissioners yesterday awarded the contract for the erection of the new Montgomery County courthouse to the lowest bidder, the J. J. McDevitt Co., of Charlotte, N. C. Work on the project is expected to start within two weeks.

The McDevitt Co. offered a bid of $384,400, which is $65,600 less than the amount authorized by the State Legislature. In announcing the award the commissioners made special emphasis on the fact that the bid had been carefully scrutinized by the board of county commissioners, counsel to the county commissioners and members of the Montgomery County general courthouse building committee, as well as by the architects, Smith & Edwards, of Washington, who prepared the plans.

Special attention has been paid to the financial responsibility of the company and the reputation for integrity of the winning contractor, and each item has been carefully checked and rechecked before the award was made.

With the award of the contract and an early start on the construction promised, it is expected that the new courthouse will be ready for occupancy at an early date, possibly by fall or early winter.

The North Takoma freight siding, which precipitated a bitter court fight and became a political campaign issue, today will pass into the limbo of forgotten things. Workmen of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad yesterday began tearing up the tracks and are expected to complete the task today by noon.

The fight for the removal of the siding was waged for several years and was one of the campaign issues in the Takoma town elections in 1928. Citizens of North Takoma argued that the siding was no longer needed as an unloading place for supplies for Walter Reed Hospital and that the land upon which the siding was located had been deeded to the town as park land long before the railroad siding was laid as a war measure. After long and tedious litigation, the railroad company decided to tear up the siding and unload the freight at Takoma Park, D. C., and at Silver Spring, Md.

The fight for the tearing up of the siding was led by J. Bond Smith, corporation counsel of Takoma Park. The land next to the siding has been made into a community recreation center, which will include the railroad track space after the completion of the clearing away of the tracks.

The annual carnival of the Hyattstown Volunteer Fire Department will begin tomorrow, continuing through Friday and Saturday. The carnival will feature a hook up contest between volunteer fire departments and athletic events.

A reception will be held on the lawn of the home of Miss Emily Barnsley and Miss Effie Barnsley at Avery tomorrow evening at which Democratic organization candidates will meet the general public of that neighborhood. The affair is being held under the auspices of the Rock Creek Valley Democratic Club.

Former Representative John H. Smithwick of Florida; Robert G. Hilton candidate for the State Senate; Stedman Prescott candidate for State's attorney; William F. Prettyman president of the Rockville Bar Association and Miss Lavinia Engle, candidate for member of the House of Delegates, will be the speakers.

Officers of the club are: Francis E. Fraley, president; Lee Adamson, first vice president; Samuel S. Welsh, second vice president; Mrs. Walter Pack, third vice president; Walter Pack, secretary, and Mrs. John B. Welsh, treasurer.

Maryland Buys Reformatory Site

Land for Institution at Roxbury Sold by Eight Farm Owners.

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., July 29. — The Maryland Board of Welfare today completed the transaction for the purchase of a site for a new $5,000,000 correctional institution at Roxbury, near this city. Eight farm owners were paid approximately $100,000 for 754 acres of land. Those who sold their farms are Mrs. Flora A. Heller, Samuel Walters, Charles E. Needy, B. V. L. Chaney, Daniel Baker, Rena A. Houser, Cyrus W. Kershner and David R. Williams. Robert A. Case, secretary-treasurer of the board, handled the transferring of the farms to the State.

Only prisoners who are capable of being reformed will be brought to the new institution, which will be completed in about three years. The prisoners will be employed in farming and in stone quarries, where stone for State highways will be quarried.

The firm of J. B. Ferguson & Co., Hagerstown, one of the two firms of engineers engaged to supervise the construction of the institution, is now making a topographical survey of the site and also studying the possibilities of a water supply. Water either will be brought from Beaver Creek nearby or purchased from Hagerstown.

Spotsylvania Forest Fire Finally Put Out

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg Va. July 29.—The forest fire which has raged near Brokenburg, Spotsylvania County, since late Friday evening, was extinguished early this morning after it had burned over 500 acres of woodland, including sections of the Goodwin-Nelson mine tract and the farms of S. P. Powell, county Commonwealth attorney, and Henry Stubbs, a Negro.

Fifty men, among them being fire wardens and paid and volunteer workers, fought to prevent spread of the flames to adjoining forests.

Robert L. Pine, 64, Is Dead.

Charles Town, W. Va., July 29 (Special)—Robert L. Pine, of Ranson and formerly of Middleway, died early today, aged 64 years. The deceased was a native of Berkeley County and at one time was engaged in the mercantile business at Middleway prior to coming to Charles Town. Surviving, in addition to his widow, are six daughters and two sons. Interment will take place here.

Confidence Urged In Future of U. S.

Roanoke College President Declares Level Heads Are Needed.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 29.—The American people must keep a level head, a steady hand and a strong heart and not give way to long faces, fear and radical tactics in order to provide a solution to the era of changing economic conditions now taking place in America, Dr. Charles J. Smith, president of Roanoke College, of Salem, told Harrisonburg Rotary Club today.

"There is no excuse for fear in the present situation," Dr. Smith said. "We should remember that our forefathers faced situations far more critical than the present and always conquered by being courageous.

"Every generation experiences a cycle of changing conditions such as we are going through. We have to adjust our living and our business to meet the changes. If we get afraid and give up this depression may continue longer than it should. We must keep in mind that during the past decade we have experienced an era of greater prosperity then ever before and that conditions are now being sifted down to a firm foundation, which will pave the way for a greater prosperity in the end."

JUDGE CHALLENGED TO DEBATE BY BALL

Smith Assailed as Virginia State Senator Airs Views on Child Labor.

CLAIMS CHARGES FALSE

Demanding that Judge Howard W. Smith either meet him in joint debate and let the "public decide" or else refute publicly "his false accusation," State Senator Frank L. Ball, of Virginia, one of five candidates for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Eighth Congressional District last night defended his advocacy of the Child Labor Amendment to the Constitution in a radio address over Station WJSV.

Senator Ball said in part:

"Judge Smith has gone afield in trying to find something to criticize me for and small wonder also that my record of sympathetic and effective work for the farmers has been so clear that he can not find a single thing unfavorable to comment on and must sink to misrepresentation of my vote on the Child Labor Amendment in order to create a false atmosphere in farming neighborhoods. In his controlled newspapers the statement has been made and repeated that while in the State Senate I voted for the Child Labor Amendment and that the natural result of my vote, had it prevailed, would have been to transfer from the State to the Federal Government complete control of all minors under 18 years of age.

Reviews Labor Reforms.

"The Child Labor Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which Judge Smith attacked so vigorously and wih such apparent ignorance of both its intent and effect, grew out of the extremely sad conditions in many factory centers of the country where children of tender years were being employed from eight to eleven hours a day in the most confining work.

"To remedy this situation a stormy campaign of appeal and education was put on in this country, but the States wherein the abuses were taking the products of factories employing child labor and the Supreme Court set this law aside by a divided vote. Congress then passed another law restricting the transportation of intersetate commerce of the products of such factories. The Supreme Court set this aside also. Neither of these Federal acts in any way affected the farmers. In fact they were in effect for some months and I am sure that the farmers did not even know that they had been passed except from information in the press. It became a question of whether we would permit conditions which were a disgrace to any civilized nation to contine to exist or so amend the Constitution of the United States as to give Congress power to prevent them. This duty, of course, belonged first to the States.

Challenge to Debate.

"I believe that when these conditions have arisen in some of our States and the States themselves have refused to act, it is time for the Federal Government to be authorized to step in and act so that it can refuse to permit the shipment of goods in interstate commerce which are manufactured in such factories and mills.

"This amendment would not have affected Virginia because we have a model child labor law with standards higher than the Federal Government ever dreamed of. The power to legislate was not taken from the States, as Judge Smith says.

"I now and here challenge him to meet me in joint debate and talk with me face to face on the public platform before the people whose votes we are seeking and let them judge who is right in this matter. I will speak at Alexandria on Friday night, in Remington on Thursday night, and at Nokesville on Saturday night, and I call on him to appear and debate with me this question or else refute publicly his false accusations."

Baltimore Dispensary Passes After 77 Years

Baltimore, July 29 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—After 77 years of service as a charitable institution, the Northeastern Dispensary of Baltimore City finds itself no longer needed and its directors have asked the courts to order its dissolution.

Proceedings to this effect were begun by Robert N. Baer, attorney for the directors, and Judge Robert F. Stanton is expected to sign an order of publication of the proceedings today. The dispensary is located at 1224 East Monument street, and a regular staff of physicians did volunteer work among the poor there daily. What was once a residential neighborhood has given way to business and the dispensary has outlived its usefulness.

COOPERATION IS SOUGHT

o Blacksburg, Va., July 20 (A.P.).—Dr. F. B. Bomberger, of the Federal Farm Board, told the Institute of Rural Affairs here tonight that the Farm Board is trying to improve the farmer's lot by cooperative marketing, but the board is not "blind to the fact" that producers must form their own program of production stabilization.

"In the language of Alexander Legge, chairman of the Farm Board, the best way to control the surplus is to prevent it," said Dr. Bomberger. "And yet there has been a surprisingly large volume of doubt, dissent, and even of protest against acreage curtailment programs designed to bring production of certain agricultural commodities somewhat in line with market requirements."

He spoke before a joint session of the Institute of Rural Affairs and the Farmers' Institute. Dr. Bomberger is assistant chief of the division of cooperative marketing of the Federal Farm Board.

Acceptances Are Grudging.

"It is somewhat startling to find," Dr. Bomberger said, "that in answer to a questionnaire provided by one of the leading agricultural papers in the Western wheat section a summary of replies showed 230 had answered 'yes, but,' and 210 had answered 'no, because,' to the question, 'Are you in favor of the policy of preventing surplus production by limiting acreage as suggested by the Farm Board?'

"A grudging, qualified acceptance by slighity over half the growers with a positive, argumentative refusal by the remainder indicates a degree of unwillingness on the part of the growers of that region to listen to counsels of safety and conservatism.

"And yet cooperation is the real remedy for the 'agricultural problem.' Not merely local, regional or even national commodity cooperation is enough, although that is desirable. There must be concerted thinking, planning and acting by farmers throughout the whole program from the beginning of production to the conclusion of distribution.

Not Self-Acting Plan.

"So far as opposition to the work of the board on the part of business interests is concerned, the chairman of the board has already stated that there was little to fear so long as the board had behind it the solid backing of the farmers.

"Let no one deceive himself, for the agricultural marketing act is not self-acting, and the Federal Farm Board cannot of itself meet the requirements of the situation. Just to the extent that the farmers cooperate with themselves and with the Farm Board and with the Government will they aid in bringing about that which is desired by all—restoration of agriculture to its equal place among the industries of the United States."

Certificates of merit were awarded two men who have made distinguished records in Virginia agriculture at the first meeting of the State Farmers Institute tonight in War Memorial Hall at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. David Oliver Nourse, Newburgh, N. Y., former professor of agriculture at V. P. I., and Hezekiah Love Bonham, orchardist, cattleman, lumberman and former legislator, received the certificates.

Women Narrowly Escape Drowning

Annapolis Merchant Saves Two Sisters Bathing in Chesapeake Bay.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., July 29.—Two Baltimore women, Mrs. Adeline M. Williams, 38, and her sister, Mrs. Ruth Robinson, 25, were saved from drowning in the Chesapeake Bay this afternoon by Harry Klawans, Annapolis merchant, who was enjoying a day's outing at his summer shore near Bembes, 3 miles from here.

Mrs. Williams is said to have stepped into a hole along the beach, and her sister went to the rescue and also nearly drowned. The women were brought to the Emergency Hospital by the Naval Hospital ambulance and a corps of enlisted men, following respiration exercises in charge of members of the Annapolis Fire Department's rescue squad.

The women refused to give their names for a time, and it was only when the hospital refused to admit them if they did not that they revealed their identity. Mrs. Williams was obliged to remain at the hospital.

Son of Road Chairman For Maryland Is Dead

Special to The Washington Post.

Mount Savage, Md., July 29.—Edwin Roy Uhl, 32, son of G. Clinton Uhl, chairman of the Maryland State Roads Commission, died suddenly early last night at his home here from a heart attack.

Mr. Uhl completed his studies at Lehigh University. He was secretary and treasurer of the Mount Savage Fuel Co. and had charge of the Cumberland office of the Greenbrier Quarry Co. Mr. Uhl was secretary of the vestry of St. George's Episcopal Church and secretary of Kemp Lodge of Masons, of which he was past master. He was a Knight Templar, Shriner and a member of the Order of the Eastern Star. He was unmarried. Besides his parents he is survived by three brothers.

1637 Violin Discovered In Remodeled Building

Special to The Washington Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., July 29.—A violin bearing the date of 1637 was found today when a building was being remodeled at Shenandoah Junction. C. W. Myers, the owner, who was a clerk at the Williams Store 40 years ago, and who now owns the building, purchased the instrument from an old colored man and says he put it away for safe keeping and overlooked it until it was discovered by the workmen.

The violin was carefully packed in the case and well preserved. Mr. Myers is said to have been offered $5,000 for it.

Doctor Catches Mumps After Curing Hundreds

It's one thing to cure others and give them advice on how to combat disease, but it's something else again to dodge disease yourself, according to Dr. Robert E. Feagans, head of the Fairfax County Health Unit, who is confined to his home on Cedar street in the town of Fairfax with a severe case of mumps, a malady which he successfully assisted in stamping out in the county last winter when it threatened to become epidemic.

Dr. Feagans fell victim to the disease last week, and while his condition is not alarming, he is suffering no little pain from it, as well as from goodnatured "joshing" by his many friends throughout the county.

VIRGINIA SWELTERS UNDER HEAT WAVE

Charlottesville Has the First Rain in Month; Valley Section Still Bakes.

PRAYERS SAID FOR HELP

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 29.—The drought-stricken Shenandoah Valley continued to swelter today under a blazing sun and in a temperature of 102 degrees, with only scattered thundershowers bringing slight relief in some sections.

Heavy showers to the south and northeast of Harrisonburg were reported but Rockingham County, for the most part, found little relief in the fifty-first day of the record-breaking drought.

Charlottesville, Va., July 29.—An electrical storm of brief duration late this afternoon brought the first rain here in five weeks.

Today's maximum temperature recorded at the university's observatory was 106 degrees. This brought the average for the past eleven days up to 102 degrees, an all-time record for this section.

Bedford, Va., July 29.—Members of all the denominations of the town gathered at the Presbyterian Church yesterday in a prayer service and special petition for rain. A short talk was made by the Rev. W. E. Thomas, pastor of the Methodist Church, and a number of prayers were made.

A few drops of rain fell here Sunday morning and there were indications of a rainy day, but the shower was of only a few minutes duration Conditions have reached a distressing stage among the farming people. Pastures are crispy dry and there is no food for the cattle. The growth of tobacco and tomatoes, the principal crops of this season, are at a standstill, and if rain does not fall soon, these crops will be a complete failure.

Tire Factory Worker At Cumberland Dead

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., July 29.—George Vegtman, Frostburg, for 43 years the director of the Arion Band of that city, was fatally stricken by the heat early this morning at the Kelly-Springfield tire plant here, where he had been employed since the last miners' strike in this region. He had previously worked in coal mines at Frostburg.

Mr. Vogtman, who was 69, came to this section from Germany with his parents in 1871. He was twice married and is survived by his second wife and five children of his first marriage.

Retrial Granted Man Convicted of Murder

Annapolis, Md., July 29 (A.P.).—The State Court of Appeals today granted a new trial to Lorenzo Price, Negro, convicted in Baltimore for the murder of Reuben Heyman. He had been sentenced to hang April 11. The court in a majority opinion, to which three members filed dissenting opinions, held that the jury had erred in giving in its verdict no qualifications as to the sanity or insanity of Price.

Price was convicted of first degree murder and was convicted also of assaulting Mrs. Dorothy Burgess, companion of Heyman, in an automobile parked near a local park.

Police Clerk to Study Fingerprints.

Lynchburg, Va., July 29 (Special). S. A. Harvey, recently made clerk of the police department, will go to Roanoke August 19 to spend several months to study the Bertillon system of identification.

Drought Prevents Martinsburg Fair

Nature Settles Problems of Whether to Exhibit This Year.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 29.—Nature has settled the problem of the Martinsburg Fair for 1930 by leaving a drought so severe and so continued that there apparently will be little of sufficient excellence to warrant putting into the farm products competition this year.

The management today announced that plans for the annual fair would be abandoned for the season because of the drought and resultant injury to fruit, flowers, garden products, and indirectly to cattle through damage done pasture.

The question of whether the fair should be continued—it is now in its tenth year—has been under debate since a profitless experience for several years. The management distributed questionnaires throughout the county to test sentiment and found a rather even division. Then came the drought to settle the issue for this year at least.

University Governors To Be at Field Meeting

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 29.—The board of governors of West Virginia University will attend the summer field meeting August 21 of the West Virginia Horticultural Society, at the university experiment station, newly established at Kearneysville, near here, it was announced today. It will be the first time the board has been in this belt in a body. The board will also inspect the State apple packing plant at Inwood; hold a special business session here, and then go to Wardensville, W. Va., to inspect the State dairy farm.

Members of the board are: E. G. Smith, Fairmont, president; D. A. Burt, Wheeling; Frank H. Babb, Keyser; Hugh Ike Shott, jr., Bluefield; Miss Gertrude Roberts, Huntington; A. B. Koontz, Charleston, and Cleveland M. Seibert, this city.

ZONE CASE APPEAL TAKEN IN ARLINGTON

Question Concerning Piles of Building Material Is Still Unsettled.

SCHOOL BIDS DUE TODAY

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Corncerning the many inquiries as to when the lot on Wilson boulevard, said to be the property of Max Bregman, will be cleared of the huge piles of building material, Police Judge Harry R. Thomas yesterday stated that Bregman has noted an appeal to the circuit court from the decision of the police court.

The records show that on May 15 of this year Bregman was given an opportunity by Judge Thomas to comply with the zoning ordinance by clearing the property. On June 28 he was fined $34.25, including costs, by Judge Thomas. July 8 he noted an appeal to the circuit court, giving bond in the amount of $100.

The property is in that area which has been zoned residential.

The question will come before Judge Walter T. McCarthy in circuit court at the October term.

With wells in many sections of Arlington County going dry as a result of the continued drought, County Engineer C. L. Kinnier declared yesterday that the county water system installed in the county more than two years ago is invaluable.

While the water department has continued to be busy in making connections to homes in all sections of the county up to the past week, the force has been able to keep up with all applications. But since there appears no apparent relief the office has been rushed with applications for water connections.

Bids will be received and opened by the County School Board this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the office of County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp for additions to school buildings at Lyon Park, Bon Air, Aurora Hills and Aurora Heights.

It is understood that the inspector for the work on the Washington-Lee High School, which is now under way, will be named following the opening of bids today by State Architect Raymond Long.

Continuing its study of the forms of county government made available through acts passed by the last General Assembly, the committee from the Arlington County Civic Federation, together with the special committees from the Arlington County Bar Association and the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce met last night. Arthur Orr, who recently returned from a survey of cities of the State, where he gained information as to advantages of incorporation, one of the forms of government possible for Arlingtaon County, made the following report:

"Arlington County's revenue could be increased approximately $132,000 yearly through incorporation without any aadded burden to home owners. The county's principal source of revenue is the general property tax. Cities also levy a general property tax, but in addition thereo they may levy license taxes upon any of the subjects to be taxed by the State.

"Franchise taxes from the various public utilities, including electric, gas and telephone companies and bus and street car lines, also contribute materially to city revenues. In some of the cities studied, notably Fredericksburg, Charlottesville and Lynchburg, these special taxes augmented the general property tax by more than 30 per cent. The average augmentation for nine cities studied is 22 per cent.

Arlington County's general property tax, he continued, is approximately $600,000. An increase of 22 per cent through special municipal taxes would bring an additional revenue of $132,000.

In connection with the special license taxes, he pointed out that the City of Alexandria imposes a special license fee of $100 yearly on commercial vehicles used by Washington and Arlington County firms operating over the streets of Alexandria, Arlington County is powerless to impose any license tax whatever upon such vehicles and the result is that hundreds of trucks from Alexandria and Washington use the county highways without paying anything to help maintain them.

The most striking example of loss to the county, he claims, is the many plants on the county's side of the Potomac River which do almost all of their business in the District of Columbia, using Arlington County roads to transport their materials to market. Under incorporation these firms would be compelled to contribute materially to the county's revenues.

Orr cautioned the committees that his figures do not necessarily indicate that the county should be incorporated. It should be borne in mind, he said, that the county would lose between $60,000 and $70,000 in gasoline taxes and also the construction and maintenance of State highways within its boundaries.

In conclusion he stated that most of the cities obtain a substantial amount of revenue from police court fines. Cities may impose maximum fines of $500, while counties are limited to $50.

The Arlington Rotary Club will hold its weekly luncheon meeting tomorrow at 12:30 o'clock at the Washington Golf and Country Club. Friday night members of the club will go to Leesburg, Va., where they will be the guests of the Leesburg Club at a dinner in honor of the Leesburg Club's having won the silver loving cup at the recent national Rotary Conference at Chicago for the largest attendance at the conference. Every member of the club went to Chicago.

The County Board of Supervisors will meet today at the courthouse at 10 o'clock, with Chairman Edward Duncan presiding.

The Ladies Auxiliary Unit to Arlington Post, No. 139, American Legion, will elect officers at its meeting tonight in the rooms of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce at Clarendon.

Tennis Endurance Test Started in Richmond

Richmond, Va., July 29 (A.P.).—A tennis endurance contest—believed to be the first of its kind in the present endurance rage—was under way here today.

Frank Kellam and Sam Rudlin, local high school tennis stars, started playing early this morning. The players hoped to continue their contest until dusk.

$4,592,494 Estate Left by Virginian

John Kerr Branch Fortune Bequeathed to Members of His Family.

Richmond, Va., July 29 (A.P.).—The will of the late John Kerr Branch, prominent Virginian, who died July 1 at his villa in Florence, Italy, disposes of an estate of $4,592,494.81. The will was filed for probate today in chancery court here.

Members of the Branch family are legatees of the estate, of which $4,458,589.81 is in personal estate, while the remaining $133,905 is in real estate.

The widow, Mrs. Beulah Gould Branch, is bequeathed all real estate and houses with their contents, including the Branch villa in Italy. Each of Mr. Branch's grandchildren, E. A. Rennolds, jr., Beulah Rennolds, Zayde Gordon Rennolds and John Kerr Branch Rennolds, are given $25,000 to be invested for them, the principal and accrued income to be paid to them on their twenty-fifth birthday.

Mr. Branch's son, John Akin Branch, is given the name of Thomas Branch & Co., which was given the elder Mr. Branch by his father, John P. Branch. The remainder of the property is to be divided into two equal parts, one-half of which is to be divided into four equal parts and to be held in trust for Mrs. Branch and her three children and the other half to be divided between Mr. Branch and his children.

Maj. Gen. Sladen and Guests View Final Inspection at Fort Myer.

CAPITAL BOYS HONORED

Citizens Military and Reserve Officers Training Camps in the Washington area were unusually active throughout yesterday, with Fort Myer the scene of a final inspection by Maj. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, commanding officer of the Third Corps Area, with uniformed military envoys of several embassies present as surprise guests.

With Maj. Gen. Sladen on the reviewing stand, in addition to Col. Harry N. Cootes, camp commander, were Col. R. C. Foy, of the General Staff, and Maj. Georges Thenault, assistant military attache of the French Embassy, commander of the famous Lafayette Escadrille during the World War; Lieut. Col. Marco Pennaroli, Italian military attache; Maj. Larrivo, of the Mexican Embassy, and a delegation from the Japanese Embassy.

The annual C. M. T. C. stunt night of the camp, an event of interest to the public and service men alike, will be held at 7:15 o'clock tonight in the riding hall, with Lieut. H. A. Franklin, of the 305th Cavalry, Philadelphia, in charge.

Graduation exercises to be held tomorrow morning will be featured by the presence as guest of honor of Maj. Gen. Preston Brown, deputy chief of staff of the Army, and representatives of a number of patriotic organizations. Immediately after the review outstanding soldiers and athletes will be presented with awards.

At Fort George G. Meade, Md., yesterday were announced the proficiency honors won by several District youths in arms competition. Peter J. Collins, jr., a Georgetown University student, won second honors in firing a regulation Army rifle. In the firing of the Army automatic pistol, sharpshooters medals were awarded to Walter Bonnet, Willis T. Frazier, Frederick H. Marshall, David S. Miller and Henry J. Whiting, all Washington youths at the University of Maryland.

Several Washington young men are participating in the annual two-day road march which started yesterday as a closing event of the Field Artillery Citizens Military Training Camp at Fort Hoyle, Md. They include Ray C. Ault, Robert F. Biglow, Luis W. Huertam, Alfred Moe, Elwood S. Moorhead, Walter R. Murphy, Frank G. Law and Kay E. Chapman.

At the C. M. T. C. at Fort Eustis, Va., Sergt. Jad Demonet, a Washington youth, yesterday was awarded a prize for the best essay on "American Citizenship," and the silver cup for the highest efficiency in machine gunnery.

Prices of Tobacco Fall Below Cost

Average in Georgia Bright Leaf Area Is 12 Cents a Pound.

Atlanta, Ga., July 29 (A.P.).—Reports to the State Department of Agriculture from seven warehouses in the bright leaf tobacco area today showed a price range of from 10 to 15 cents per pound, with the average around 12 cents, a figure which Eugene Talmadge, State commissioner of agriculture, said was below the cost of production.

From Hazlehurst came a report of 400,000 pounds on the floor at market opening time, with a price ranging from 10 to 11 cents. Blackshear reported 250,000 pounds at 12½ cents; Statesboro, 200,000 pounds with no price quotation; Waycross, 130,000 pounds at 15 cents; Camilla, 45,000 pounds at 12 cents; Nashville, 350,000 pounds at 12½ cents, and Thomasville, 125,000 pounds at 12 cents.

Mr. Talmadge said reports from the remaining markets might bring the average prices, but that he did not expect it to reach the 19½-cent average of the first week of last year.

Vacation Church School Closes Lincoln Session

Special to The Washington Post.

Lincoln, Va., July 29.—A number of the parents and friends of the 63 children enrolled in the fourth annual session of the Lincoln Vacation Church School attended the closing program held at the Lincoln High School Building yesterday. The program marked the end of three weeks of daily religious instruction. The average attendance of the school was 51.

The following were workers in the school: George Selleck, principal; Mrs. Florence Selleck, intermediate teacher; Miss Mary Ann Nichols, junior teacher; Miss Cecelia Beiser, primary teacher; Miss Emily Taylor, kindergarten teacher; Miss Lula Neill, secretary; Miss Anna Branch Nichols, pianist, and Lawrence Lee Taylor, assistant in boys' handicraft.
